

LEGION BALL TEAM WINS 5-4 IN 10TH

It took the fighting Legion ball team ten innings to win from Corbett Sunday on the Corbett grounds. In the 10th the score tied three all and Stockton and Brown on base and two down, Ernest Hamlin picked off one of Woodward's slants for a long single which scored the two ahead of him and broke the 3 to 3 tie which had existed since the 6th inning. In Corbett's half of the 10th they threatened when with 2 hits, an error and a fielders choice they slipped over a run and had a man on third but Stockton bore down on E. Chamberlain, who had singled twice previously, and forced him to pop an easy one which Stockton promptly grabbed and threw him out at first.

Although out hit 9 to 12 the Legion boys showed a better brand of baseball and also showed marked ability to hit when hits meant runs.

The game was played in a drizzle of rain, making the ball slippery and hard to handle. Corbett players made 7 errors as against 5 for Gresham. Woodward whiffed 12 Gresham plays and Stockton 4.

Each team accepted a run as a gift in the first inning and again in the third each team scored one run making the score 2 all. In the sixth Gresham scored their third counter on hits by Lovelace and Ernie Hamlin and Jack Brown hit by pitched ball. In Corbett's half of the sixth they tied it at 3 all by bunting 3 hits on Stockton. Neither team threatened until the 10th when Stockton, first up for Gresham slammed a 3 bagger into right field which went foul by inches. He then hit one into left which was good for a single but it also fell foul. His third attempt to get on base resulted in a hefty clout to left field which went for one base but poor old Stocky was so done up that he could only make one base on it. Even at that the hit looked like a foul until it hit the ground and was easily good for two bases. F. Hamlin went out by E. Chamberlain and Lovelace fanned. Jack Brown made first on an infield single, Stockton taking third. At this stage of the game up stepped our hero, Ernest Hamlin, who drove the ball into deep right for a single which scored Stockton and Brown. Ernie was responsible for three of the Legion's runs when in the sixth his single brought in Lovelace from second, who had singled and gone to second when J. Brown was hit by pitched ball.

Despite the slippery condition of the ball, each pitcher was stingy with walks, Stockton issuing one and Woodward three.

Next Sunday the locals will play the Colored Bees, of Portland, on Stapleton field. The Bees have not been very fortunate here in past games and they expect to atone for their several losses by trimming the Legion boys. However, the locals will give them a run for their money. The line-up will be the same as last Sunday's.

The line-up last Sunday was as follows:

Gresham Players	Position	Corbett Players
Quassy	C.	N. Chamberlain
J. Hamlin	1.	B. Woodard
Stanley	SS.	Stockton
F. Hamlin	P.	Woodward
Lehman	2.	Rogers
Beers	M.	V. Evans
Lovelace	3.	D. Woodard
Hopkins	3.	E. Chamberlain
J. Brown	for Beers in 3d.	Rikert
E. Hamlin	for Lehman in 3d.
Federspell	for Ports in 9th.

I am just going to leap into the dark.—Rabelais.

LARGE CROWDS ATTEND F. M. CAMP MEETING

Rev. O. F. Defoe of Central Free Methodist church occupied the pulpit Sunday evening at the campmeeting services which are now in progress on the fair grounds. In spite of the inclement weather the tabernacle was well filled with an appreciative audience who listened to a discourse on the second coming of Christ. There are now over sixty tents on the ground with more in prospect toward the end of the week. One party of 11 has come from Yachats, a distance of 200 miles; the Macey family, of Los Angeles, who are touring the northwest, have stopped off for the meeting. The boarding tent in charge of the Rev. and Mrs. E. I. Harrington, of Woodburn, is proving popular. On Sunday an organized Sunday school of 300 members convened, which service will also be held on the coming Sunday. On Wednesday there will be a missionary convention with addresses by a number of returned missionaries. Russia, India, Africa and Japan will probably be represented by those who have labored there. The Sunday school convention has been postponed from Monday until Thursday on account of Prof. C. H. Watson, of Seattle, being unable to reach the grounds sooner. Sunday school workers from all denominations are cordially invited to be present at this meeting.

Growers Should Make Cover Crop Planting Now

Cover crop planting is the logical thing for the berry growers of this vicinity to do at the present time, according to suggestions to members of the Cooperative Berry Growers incorporated in a letter to them by the manager, D. E. Towle. There are other items of interest, also instructions which should be heeded by all members of the organization. The letter is as follows:

"The drought is broken so we should loose no time in sowing the cover crop. In sowing now, we are assured from 90 to 100 days to growth before winter and if the cover crop should winter-kill, you will be well repaid for your seed and work by the fall growth and the writer thinks that the growth of a heavy cover crop will help to prevent the late fall growth of the berry canes that are very apt to freeze back and be a complete waste of soil fertility and reduce your prospect for a good crop of fruit next year. Prolonged drought always results in making available a large quantity of plant food even in poor soils and if you can take this up in a cover crop to be returned to the soil next spring, you will do the right thing by your berries.

"As a mixture we recommend 50 pounds of vetch, 25 pounds of winter rye, and 25 pounds of winter or gray oats, making 100 pounds per acre, which should be sown, preferably with a drill to insure uniform depth of planting, and is much better than the haphazard method of sowing by hand. The young canes should be placed inside the wires to prevent chafing and the wires should be hooked up to keep them in place and if the old canes have been taken out and burned before seeding so much the better as the work is done and the cover crop will get more sunshine and if there is any disease or insect pests in the old canes when the canes are burned you can say goodbye to these pests. On the lighter soils where the drainage is good the writer thinks that plowing is not necessary in preparing the soil for the cover crop as a good thorough cultivation is all that is necessary but on the heavier soils, where the drainage is poor, plowing towards the canes rows shallow near the plants and deeper, say six inches in the center, will help the winter drainage which is very beneficial, especially with red raspberries, as the excess water will be drained away from the roots. In pruning out the old canes great care should be taken to not injure the roots and the writer is convinced that much damage is done to the root system by the use of dull pruning hooks in the hands of careless workmen, especially when the soil is very wet and loose. To prevent this damage the best tool to use is the pruning shears which will cut off the old canes without injury to the root system. An especially designed shears with handles say 2 feet or 2½ feet long that can be used with one hand would prevent stooping and make the work easier than by grasping the cane with one hand and the shears with the other, the trick is done and if you throw the brush into piles two rows together, it is then ready for the brush fork and the job is done.

"How about it, have you gathered up and returned to the cannery all of the empty crates and orchard boxes or have you left them out in the field to be found next spring. Please do not forget that. This waste cannot be tolerated as the crates do not belong to you and unless they are taken care of you will have to pay for them, so either return the crates for credit now or store them in clean dry storage and report the number stored at the office, as we want to complete our crate record. Also those can crates that you borrowed to carry hallocks in, have you returned them? Your association has paid $1.00 for each of them and to get it back we must return the crates.

"Another important item at this time is your report of the number of crates of berries you have sold during the season under your sale permit. We want a full and complete report in order to close the different berry pools. This is largely a debt of honor with you so come clean with your report and you will feel better and besides you will have lived up to your contract. Many members have already made this return and you will be surprised to know that the amounts range all the way from 50c to $75 and $100. This money is covered into the different berry pools and apart of it will come back to you. We like the sale permit plan very much as it places all of our members on an equal base with the independent grower and you have the satisfaction of knowing that if the market breaks you do not need to sell but you can bring the berries to the cannery and help to bring the price back to a living fair price, and it breaks the stranglehold of the dago peddler.

"So please report in full for every crate you have sold in the open market and be able to look your neighbor in the eye and say 'I made a full report of all the berries I sold' and you will strengthen your manhood, and when you run for president, we will all vote for you.

"We have a limited number of inner sugar sacks in lots of six, also a few sacks of sugar. First come, first served.

"If you wish to buy sheep or stockyard fertilizer, let us know us soon as possible as we can buy cheaper in large lots. We have samples at the cannery."

COMMANDER SCHNEIDER GAINS COMMENDATION

In order to awaken interest in the local observance of national defense day on September 12 Commander Schneider has sent out cards to the eligible men of Gresham asking them to join his organization for one day, September 12, in accordance with plan approved by the commanding general.

The card prepared by Mr. Schneider reads as follows:

"As an expression of my good will toward the National Defense I hereby voluntarily enlist in the National Guard of the State of Oregon and of the United States, for the date of September 12, 1924, only. Unless prevented, by good cause, I further agree to assemble at the Armory, Gresham, Oregon, at such hour on September 12, 1924, as the president of the United States may designate.

The purpose is to get as large an expression of loyalty to the plan of national defense as possible and encourage the citizen soldiery idea.

Mr. Schneider has been commended by the editor of The Oregon Guardsman on the method used.

First Lieutenant C. G. Schneider, in command of headquarters company 186 of the Oregon National Guard, located at Gresham, has received merited recognition of his efforts to promote guard activities. His alertness has resulted in keeping up the interest in the local company and in correcting false impressions as to the purpose of maintaining this branch of the national defense.

Lieutenant Schneider has been highly commended by General Geo. A. White for the answer he wrote to criticism of the military demonstration recently given in Gresham and Colonel Welch has asked for a copy to be sent to the war department. Mr. Schneider's answer was published in the Gresham Outlook.

MILITARY MANEUVER MERITED COMMENT

The military maneuver recently held at Gresham at the opening of the fair was given a good write-up from the military standpoint in the last issue of the Oregon Guardsman, which presents some angles not caught in the press reports at the time.

The battalion headquarters company of Gresham, which had charge of the signal service in connection with the demonstration, has been commended by Colonel Libby for the efficient manner in which it established and maintained telephone communication between the scattered elements.

The report as given in the Guardsman is as follows:

"The Gresham county fair opened with a 'bang' on July 29, and when we say 'bang' we are actually as well as literally correct. The president of the fair association is Mr. A. W. Metzger, who, being an ex-service man and head of the Legion at Gresham, wanted a military show, and asked the national guard to put it on.

"Following a conference with the commanding general who was in hearty accord with the plan, Lieutenant-Colonel Eugene C. Libby was placed in charge of arranging for a demonstration of a battalion of infantry in attack, supported by machine guns, howitzers and field artillery.

"The units selected by Colonel Libby to stage the demonstration were Company B, 186th Infantry; Company H, 162d Infantry; Howitzer Company, 162d Infantry; Battery A, 148th Field Artillery; and the First Battalion Headquarters Company, 186th Infantry, located at Gresham.

"A detachment from Company H under command of Captain Fred L. Wiegand represented the enemy; Company B, under command of Captain Fred R. Dierking, constituted the attacking infantry battalion, which was supported by the remainder of Company H, under command of Lieutenant Ralph B. Ward; the Howitzer company commanded by Captain Alvin C. Baker and the Battery under Captain William Jackson. The battalion headquarters company, led by Lieutenant Clifford Schneider, was the subject of commendation by Colonel Libby for the manner in which it established telephone communication between the different elements. Thirty seconds, Colonel Libby's report shows, was the maximum time required to get in personal touch with the commander of any element.

"The maneuver was carried out at dark with the aid of flares and signal rockets. Smoke candles were used also, which gave added thrills to the spectacle, which was witnessed by thousands. Spectators got plenty of thrill when the big 75 mm. guns of the battery crashed into action and the excitement reached a fever heat when Captain Baker moved his one-pounders right up in front of the grandstand.

"Commencing with the start from the Armory in Portland until the troops returned the maneuver was carried out with clock-like precision. The entire movement was governed by actual field orders issued in advance by Colonel Libby, who was warm in his praise for the work of the troops.

"Considerable publicity was given the Guard as a result of the demonstration and Guard headquarters is being besieged with requests for similar demonstrations."
