THE TARIFF ON SUGAR.

While the tariff is not a conspicuous issue in the present campaign, it nevertheless enters into the determination of party principles on which the voter should base his choice.

The republican party has always stood for a reasonable tariff for the protection of American industries and the encouragement of home production. The democratic party has as consistently stood for free trade which would open the door to free competition with the cheap labor of foreign countries. Until economic conditions throughout the world, especially Europe, are more equal, this would undoubtedly lead to unemployment, lower wages, and depressed conditions in this country.

Quite recently attention has been directed to the tariff on sugar. The Outlook has received a statement from a recognized authority on sugar, William B. Tyler, assistant secretary of the California and Hawaiian Sugar Refining corporation, which operates the largest cane sugar refinery in the world. It is located in California. Mr. Tyler says:

"There is no reason why the present political controversy over the tariff should be limited in its scope to a single commodity—sugar. As a matter of fact, the general subject of tariff is an economic one which has been the inspiration of political campaigns and economic debates for many years. "The American protective tariff in principle is either right or wrong. If it is right, then most certainly a fair tariff should apply to sugar as well as to all other domestic commodities. If the protective tariff is basically unsound, then it should be entirely eliminated and free trade adopted.

"Big American interests who foreclosed on defunct Cuban sugar plantations following the debacle of 1920 now raise the hue and cry that American investments in Cuba should be encouraged, hence the attack on the protective tariff. "American capital sent abroad to develop the resources of other countries instead of being used to develop the resources of this country should expect scant consideration from our government.

"The California and Hawaiian Sugar Refining corporation at Crockett, has a daily refining capacity of 2,400 tons of cane sugar, all of which is domestic cane sugar produced on American soil, with American capital, transported in American ships and refined by American labor.

"According to the most recent figures of the Department of Agriculture, sugar provides 13 per cent of the energy obtained from food consumed by the people of the United States. We cannot afford, therefore, to place our sugar bowl in the hands of non-American producers."

THE TARIFF ON WOOL.

American grown wool is protected by the republican tariff from the importation of competing cheap wool. It is well for the American industry it is so protected. Yet John W. Davis and the democratic party are officially on record as favoring free wool. The wool grower has no easy time of it as it is, yet he is aided by the tariff which is a reasonable protection of American industries.

COOLIDGE'S WAR ON HIGH TAXES

All taxes laid against productive enterprises are paid by the ultimate purchaser. Taxes are a legitimate cost item, and the selling price of any finished article is based on the total of all cost items, plus a profit on each one. The consumer pays this profit on all the taxes that figure in the cost, in addition to the taxes. In striking at high taxes, President Coolidge is laying the axe at the root of one of the chief causes of high prices. He is reducing the cost of living. He is shortening the spread between producer and consumer. He is enabling the farmer to get a bigger share of the consumer's dollar.

It is true that measured by the figures on the tax receipt, national taxes are now much less than state and local taxes, and that the president is powerless to reduce the latter. But national taxes are grievous in themselves. Moreover, the federal taxes are to a great extent levied against industrial, financial, transportation and utility enterprises, and individuals engaged therein, thus directly entering into costs that are pyramided and passed on. The poor man who thinks he pays no income tax is mistaken. He helps pay some of the biggest income taxes, if he buys anything at all. The farmer helps pay them when he buys a piece of machinery or any manufactured article. The working man helps them when he buys food or clothing for his family. Everybody pays.

The national debt and the cost of operating the government are the causes of the federal taxes. The only way to get rid of the national debt is to pay it. The only way to reduce the cost of government is to economize. President Coolidge is doing both, with amazing success.

Let me help you solve your painting problems. Todd, The Paint Man, Gresham, phone 1971.—Adv.

SURE AND CERTAIN RULES

THE matter of freight rates enters very largely into the overhead of most every business and in connection with agriculture, it has always been a large factor in determining its profit and loss. The way to insure sure and certain returns for the farmer is to ship his products in concentrated form.

That is why we, here at the First State bank, have always advocated diversified farming, with dairy cows, chickens and hogs, fed and kept by the hay and grain raised on the farm. In this way, concentrates of alfalfa and wheat or oats, such as butter, milk, cream, eggs and pork, can be marketed instead of the bulkier crops. What do you think of this plan, Mr. Farmer? Come in and give us your views, and perhaps we can help you put your farm on amore profitable basis.

We should like every farmer in this community to spend a few days at the Pacific International Livestock Exposition at Portland, Nov. 1st to 8th. Here will be assembled the greatest gathering of purebred beef and dairy cattle, hogs, sheep, goats and chickens in the entire country. It will afford you an incomparable opportunity for observing and studying the methods and results of successful breeders.

Health Reminders

Modern Sewage Disposal and Purification.

One of the first problems of sanitation is the safe disposal of sewage. Various devices for the disposal of the waste of animal life have had their day. With the almost universal introduction of running water into the home the water-carriage system has been generally adopted. Sewage may contain all the original vehicles of disease, as it carries excreta from the skin, the alimentary, pulmonary and genito-urinary tracts. The problem is how can sewage be treated, disinfected or purified so that it will not carry disease.

Whenever a city or town introduces a system of sewers, it is easy and natural to dispose of sewage by letting it run from the main sewer into a river or stream. In case the amount of sewage is relatively small and the body of water large, this practice does not seem openly objectionable. But the growth of many of our cities has increased the amount of sewage and transformed many of our beautiful streams from something giving pleasure into an open sewer shunned by all mankind.

It is now known that streams do not purify themselves to any great extent. The disposal of sewage into streams is to be depreciated unless the sewage can be first properly treated. It is for this reason that all new sewage disposal systems and water supplies or alterations in these systems require the approval of the State Board of Health. Many cities are operating systems that have not complied with the law and will undoubtedly render themselves liable and force themselves into litigation unless proper steps are made to comply with the law.

Polluted water is a problem that requires intelligent consideration. The proper sewage disposal is just as important, if not more so, than safe bridges across our large streams and should receive the same amount of engineering consideration. The problem of how a city of three hundred thousand people is going to properly dispose of its sewage can not be solved by the corner grocery philosopher. It is a great undertaking and its solution demands the services of a great engineer and not a surveyor of back lots.

Our sewage systems can only be made safe by the community demanding sanitary methods of sewage disposal.

posals. There are four principal methods of sewage treatment, consisting of sand filtration, contact bed, trickling filter and activated sludge processes. All these processes may be supplemented with chlorine disinfection. The particular process depends on local conditions and is a problem for the properly qualified expert. Many of the cities of the United States have protected their streams by the installation of plants for Modern Sewage Disposal and Purification. The improvement of the neighboring streams makes these a real asset instead of a growing menace.
