ROCKWOOD

The Rockwood grange fair which was held at the grange hall here Saturday was well attended and a success in every way. One hundred and forty dollars was cleared from the sale of dinner and supper and the auction which was held in the evening of vegetables, fruits, canned goods, cereals, rugs, fancy work and other articles too numerous to mention. Judge George Stapleton was the auctioneer and the grange has expressed its appreciation for his help in this capacity. The money which was received is to be applied on the excavation of the basement of the hall. While this hall is known as the grange hall, the management wishes to state that it is open at all times to any community or church affair, free of rental. In connection with the auction, it may be mentioned that a canning machine was donated by Heninger & Ayes Mfg. Co., of Portland, which brought $19.75 at the sale.

Governor Pierce came out from Portland at 2:30 and spoke, then went back to the city, returning to Rockwood at 9 o'clock, where he addressed the grange for the second time. He spoke at length on the bills of the income tax, the oleomargarine and the compensation act, explaining in detail the advantages to be derived from these bills if passed. Jefferson Myers, state treasurer, spoke on how the school funds had been misappropriated in the past. Congressman Elton Watkins gave a summary of the immigration laws as applied to undesirable entering the United States. Warden Smith of the state penitentiary spoke in the place of Milton A. Miller, who was unable to reach here. The addresses were interspersed with musical numbers.

PORTLAND SYMPHONY ANNOUNCES CONCERTS

The management of the Portland Symphony orchestra and chorus, announces a brilliant series of concerts and artists for the coming season, under the baton of Carl Denton.

The first concert is scheduled to be given on November 5th, with one of the most beloved of pianists, Percy Grainger, as the soloist. Everyone knows the charm of this young Australian pianist and composer, and his delightful "Molly on the Shore," and "Country Gardens" own optimistic outlook and easy brilliance of style.

Sophie Braslau, contralto, created a furor when she sang here a few seasons ago. She might be termed brilliantly dramatic, but she can sing simple, heartfelt songs with touching power. Her deep, rich voice is lovely. Her concert with the Symphony orchestra, whose date has not yet been announced, will be an event of wide reaching appeal.

Mieczslaw Munz, pianist whose recitals were a distinct surprise to the inner musical circles of New York when he appeared there a couple of seasons ago, is one of the new pianistic lights. He is said to be intensely a lover of tonal beauty, and the critics have predicted for him a notable future. This will be his first appearance in the west.

Georges Enesco, the young Polish violinist, has, in the estimation of the critics of the great music centers, won his right to be one of the small group of "the world's best" violinists. His tone is said to be exquisitely lovely and his playing full of the sort of art that is born with the player and that cannot be taught. He too is new to the west, and his appearance with the orchestra is being looked forward to with the greatest interest.

M. Alfred Cortot, the foremost exponent of the most brilliant genre of pianism that the world has ever known, will be welcomed again in Portland. His scholarly playing founded upon phenomenal virtuosity, is recognized as pre-eminent in the musical performances of the century. He is more than an individual pianist; he represents a national technical movement in music. He is a stylist of the first order.

Royal Dadmun, baritone, is one of the most artistic singers of his time. No one who has heard his electrifying interpretation of Moussorgsky's tremendous tragically satiric song, "The Flea," will ever forget it, or him! The appearance of this artist as soloist with the Portland Symphony orchestra, will be an absorbing musical event.

Nine concerts will be given this season by the Portland Symphony orchestra under the conduct of Mr. Carl Denton. Six of these concerts will feature the eminent artists mentioned above. Three of the concerts will combine the Symphony orchestra with the fine chorus formed last year, in the performance of the world's great choral-orchestral works and with soloists chosen from the ranks of the chorus itself.

The nine concerts will be included in a season ticket for the former price of the six usually given. The prices for the whole series of nine concerts will range from the incredible figure of $2.50 to $12 for the best location in the house. The extraordinarily small range of prices is notable achievement in itself. The increased space of the auditorium, in contrast with the limited seating space of the hall formerly used, makes the small prices possible, and will bring the great symphonic and choral music of the world's masters, within reach of every music lover.
