OREGON'S NAVAL BASE.

The development of a naval base at Tongue Point on the Columbia river near Astoria moves slowly or not at all and an effort is being made by the committees of the Chambers of Commerce of Portland and Astoria to speed up action.

A party of representative men of the Columbia river basin has been called to make an inspection, meet in conference and formulate plans to hasten action on the part of the government with reference to the use of this particularly strategic point in relation to naval defense.

The establishment of a naval base here was first suggested twenty-five years ago. In 1917 it was strongly recommended by the Helm commission, headed by Rear Admiral J. M. Helm.

A tract suitable in size, about 115 acres of hard land and 250 acres of submerged land, has been donated to the government. Very little has been done out of the initial appropriation of $250,000 made in 1920, just a few wooden docks and some dredging.

The last legislature assembly of Oregon adopted a resolution of memorial to congress urging the completion of this project in the following words:

Be it resolved: That this legislative body memorialize congress and the secretary of the navy in the president's cabinet, to provide the funds needed for a further and continued development of the nucleus of a naval base already established at Tongue Point near Astoria, and that this development at least take form sufficient to accommodate a base for submarines to act on the defensive, and also a base adequate to accommodate light cruisers, destroyers and airplanes that are used by the navy in intelligence operations, and that in providing these facilities the usual equipment to accommodate such craft, repair them in emergencies and meet the requirements of an emergency haven in war-time operations be provided.

W. J. Bryan may be a radical in politics but in religion he is ultra conservative.

It is estimated the automobilists will spend three and a half billion dollars this summer on tours. And as much more, it is suggested, on detours. Such is life.

THINK! Little editorials suggested by Arthur Brisbane and gathered from other sources to help you think on live issues of the day.

The automobile industry is now greatest in the United States, totalling more than $3,163,000,000. The steel industry comes second, about $100,000,000 behind the automobile. Third comes the business of slaughtering and selling animals, more than $500,000,000 behind steel. We have reached the age of billions, our first ten industries being above the billion mark. This is to be a great automobile year. April produced 420,373 cars. May is expected to go 20,000 higher.

If you believe that every man's death is fixed in advance, this interests you. William Frie, working underground in Missouri, might have said that, with all its disadvantages, working in a mine at least kept you safe from lightning. But lightning struck the steam boiler at the top of the mine shaft, knocking over Roy Fenix, followed a steam pipe 150 feet into the ground and killed Frie."

"No man can escape his fate," says a German proverb, and superstition, which has frequently stimulated courage, has carried on the theory. The ancient gentleman, warned by the oracle that he would be killed by a house falling on him, did not save himself by sleeping out of doors. flying eagle dropped a huge turtle, crushing the man's head. The turtle's shell was its house.

Miss Rose Maretta, in private life Mrs Gerber, and a grandmother 66 years old, recovering from a long illness, returns to bareback and trapeze work in the circus. A woman should be healthier at 66 than at any younger age, says this determined grandmother, and she is right.

Women have one advantage, with all the hardships that have followed them since the episode of the apple and the snake. Once they pass 50 their chance of long life is much better than that of a man past 50. For this there are several reasons, the most important, that they behave themselves and thus give themselves a chance to live. Many old men don't do that.

A Fair Question.

Homeguard—"See that man coming out of the telephone booth? He's just 102 years old."

Visitor—"So! How old was he when he went in?"

Mail order seat sale volume for "Rosaria" is far beyond expectations, according to Hal White, ticket manager in charge.

RED CROSS LEADERS SAY SWIMMING IS EASY

"It is easy enough to stay on top of the water if you want to get ashore, just reach for shore, first with one hand and then the other. That's all swimming is, but if you want to drown yourself and get to heaven, reach for it with both hands." This statement was made by Commodore W. E. Longfellow, assistant national director, American Red Cross Life Saving Service, who has been conductng a campaign to encourage people to learn to swim.

"The human body is lighter than water," the Commodore explained, "and very little effort will enable anyone to lie on his back and paddle easily with the hands. In this way one can stay up for a long time. To rescue another by swiming usually requires either a good side stroke or a good breast stroke, as these have a kick efficient enough to enable a swimmer to propel both himself and another person who is being controlled by the hands of the swimmer. In default of a better hold, the hair offers a splendid place to grasp with one hand while you swim with the other and both legs.

"If over-turned from a boat or canoe, stick to the boat. If the rest of the body is kept submerged a wooden row boat or wood and canvas canoe will hold up the heads of a number of persons for hours." Commodore Longfellow said that canoists around Portland, however, are rated among the most expert in the whole United States.

Most swimming fatalities occur during the months of May and June, because the water is still cold from the winter snows and ice and people are still soft from their indoor inactivities of the winter. Those who have been swiming all winter in swimming pools have kept up their endurance in the water and are more nearly ready for emergencies. It is the opinion of Commodore Longfellow that every good swimmer should practice life-saving evey time he goes swimming.

The American Red Cross is endeavoring to make the water safe for young and old by courses in swimming and life saving, and it was for this purpose that Commodore Longfellow came to the Pacific Coast to conduct five Red Cross Life Saving institutes. The graduates of these institutes, all expert swimmers and leaders in outdoor sports, will make it their business to guard swimmers and teach others how to protect themselves.

Spooning!

Caller—"How do you find your new hired girl?"

Farmer's Wife—"Oh! I look for the hired man."

Perfectly Natural.

Home-town Visitor—"Say, whatever became of Clem Crowley?"

Native—"He went into the soap business and cleaned up."
