DEMON CARBON A GAS EATER

An important detail to watch, and that which keeps the engine running efficiently, is compression. An engine with faulty compression may appear to run fairly well when the car is rolling at a reasonable speed or when it is working hard. Lost compression shows up when the car is being driven at comparatively low speed.

Under either of these conditions the engine will run with an irregularity that makes the car jerk or jump instead of running steadily, as it should. This condition indicates that there is considerable loss of power and that much more gasoline is being burned than when the engine is developing its full power.

Thousands of gallons of gasoline are wasted every day by motorists because of the inefficient operation of their engines. In fact, gasoline mileage may be cut in half through compression loss, and still the engine may continue to run fairly well, according to the ideas of the amateur driver.

If the engine is not running well and a compression loss is suspected, the easiest way to detect it is to use the crank and turn the engine over by hand, thus feeling the compression in each cylinder. You will nearly always find that some pistons will go over compression much easier than others, and this means that somewhere there is a leak in this cylinder.

The number of miles which a car should run without having the valves reground varies greatly, depending upon oiling and other condition.

With the average car under normal running conditions, it is probably wise to have the valves ground at least once every 5,000 to 7,000 miles, depending upon the running condition of the engine.—Erwin Greer, President Greer College of Automotive Engineering.

THINK! Little editorials suggested by Arthur Brisbane and gathered from other sources to help you think on live issues of the day.

For the first time in his several hundred thousand years of existence on this planet, man can truly say the earth is his and the fullness thereof. He goes up into the clouds and down into the ocean.

With such wonders happening so rapidly, who knows but men may suddenly find a way to live on this earth without cutting each others' throats in war.

President Coolidge, it is said, will cut twenty-five millions a year from the cost of the United States army—a good idea. Soldiers marching over the ground in future war from the air will be about as useful as so many rabbits when eagles attack them.

The president's economy will be twice as valuable if he will arrange to spend the twenty-five millions cut from the army on the building of more flying machines.

Henry Ford will use United States ships, if he gets them, to take cars south and around into the Gulf of Mexico and bring fruit and vegetables back to the north.

That program would be welcomed by millions. It would help to solve one problem of distribution and develop the great producing regions of the south as they should be developed.

Messrs. Fall, Dooney and Sinclair have been re-indicted for conspiracy by a grand jury in the District of Columbia. If you find anybody anxious to bet that Mr. Fall will go to jail for selling the people's oil lands and taking secret payment for the sale, take the bet. We don't jail the really big criminals in this country. Little criminals, yes. It's a dangerous country, for them, if they're caught.
