The makin's of many Halloween pies, or possibly preserves or sweet pickles, are on exhibition in the Outlook window, and are attracting considerable attention. They are not pumpkins, however, as most people think them, but Keurbis, or "great melons," according to J. Suhr of Suhr's flower farm, who grew them. The seed came from Mrs. Suhr's brother in Hamburg, Germany, and this is the second crop here. Two specimens in the Outlook windows grew on one vine and each weighs 38 pounds. It is said that they should grow to two or three times that size in their native soil and that they will develop to that size here. They are described as much more delicious for pies than pumpkins and are likewise fine for preserves or pickles.

Better Breeding Promotes Prosperity No. 4

Livestock Prices Improve

SALES recently made show that the livestock industry is coming back, particularly in the cattle industry, both in the beef and dairy breeds.

Livestock raising, through careful breeding and modern production methods, can profitably be engaged in by every farmer and should be especially attractive to those who have heretofore depended upon one crop for their income. We, here at the First State Bank, are naturally desirous of seeing this great industry become an ever-growing part of farming operations in this community. Cooperation is gladly given to those who merit it.

"On To Portland," is the slogan of many farmers who desire to see and study the greatest exhibits of purebred beef and dairy Cattle, Horses, Sheep, Goats, Swine and Poultry ever assembled under one roof in America. The Pacific International Livestock Exposition will be held there October 31 to November 7. Do not miss it!
