

Professor Edward S. Morse, noted authority on geology, is dead, but still useful. Yesterday, his brain was sent by express to the Wistar Institute of Anatomy and Biology in Philadelphia. Professor Morse was "ambidextrous," could use one hand as readily as the other. He had, in effect, two right hands. Scientists say an examination of the brain may explain that. One thing is certain. If your little boy is left-handed, don't try to make him use his right hand. That stupidity, which, centuries old, injures a child's mind, is useless.

In England the body of King Edward has been moved so that his corpse, now dead for a long time, may lie beside that of his Queen, Alexandra, recently dead. It is sweet British sentiment, but it is like taking the shells of the eggs from which two chickens have escaped, and putting those shells piously side by side. With the eggs it is the chicken that counts. With the human body it is the soul. How close now are Edward's and Alexandra's souls? That's the question.

Is the coal business not a public necessity? Can people live without heat? Is it not the business of government to protect the public welfare, putting that ahead of all other duties? The real objection is not that Governor Pinchot's suggestion is "a dangerous panacea," but that it would interfere with the plans and profits of "Big Business," which is the real government of the United States.

A girl, 12 years old, is found unconscious in the street. Explanation, bootleg liquor. The police are investigating a dance given at a most respectable women's club. Explanation, too many bottles of bootleg liquor found in the place when the entertainment was over.

Ma Ferguson, lady governor of Texas, says evolution must be removed from Texas public school books. One book actually said that for men to speak of "men and animals is unwarranted egotism, for man is an animal, just as truly as the beast of the field.

High finance denounces Governor Pinchot's suggestion that the coal fields be declared "a public utility." "A dangerous coal panacea," say spokesmen for "Big Business."

Mexico Works.
The J. G. White Engineering Corporation undertakes a $30,000,000 irrigation scheme for Mexico. Anything that helps Mexico pleases us, but what about the waters of the Colorado river that wander, wasted, through the United States and then down into Mexico?

As fast as she uses water for irrigation, Mexico establishes an international right with which this country must not interfere.

While western states are fighting as to which shall have the water that goes to waste through the deep canyon, while private power companies block any use of that water, fearful that the people may get the benefit, Mexico will establish a claim, and our states through which the great river passes will be informed that they must not draw off enough water to interfere with Mexico's established irrigation rights.

President Coolidge might interest himself in that. It may become a serious problem for himself or his successors.

Churches Plan Skyscrapers.
Three of the largest, richest Lutheran churches in New York are considering a merger, the combination to build a skyscraper with a church tucked away in it, according to modern ideas.

How would that impress Martin Luther, who says in his "Table Talks": "For where God built a Church, there the devil would also build a chapel."
If the Lutherans build a skyscraper church, would the devil find it necessary also to build a skyscraper chapel?

Rev. James S. Montgomery, chaplain of the House of Representatives, puts the modernist and fundamentalist problem in few words:
"Modernists say, 'There ain't no hell.' Fundamentalists say, 'The hell their ain't.'"

The average man says, "There may, or there may not be, such a super-heated resort. But to avoid running risks I shall behave decently."

You may add that he doesn't amount to much who refrains from sin only because he fears that he may go to hell.

Great Britain Defended.
Great Britain with her rubber monopoly takes from this country about $700,000,000 a year, more than enough to pay her debt to us.

By way of reprisal the Massachusetts legislature is asked to drive out British insurance companies. Such talk is foolish. Uncle Sam, his pockets bulging with gold, and playing the part of a "cry baby," makes himself unnecessarily ridiculous.

Besides, in the California fire English insurance companies paid what they owed in full, which is more than can be said for some American companies.

JAY S. UPTON IN RACE FOR GOVERNORSHIP

Jay H. Upton has announced his candidacy for governor of the state of Oregon and very explicitly has set forth his views embodied in an extensive platform. He states that he is 46 years of age and a republican. He expects to win but if he does not, he says he will support the man who can defeat him at the republican primaries. He plans to give the people a dignified, efficient and economical business administration and states he will be the governor of all the people of Oregon.

He further states that as president of the senate in 1923, he appointed a Ways and Means committee which cut appropriations below the demands of the budget makers and saved the taxpayers more than one million dollars. He says that expenses can be cut if those in authority have nerve enough to cut them. Commenting further on this, he says: "There has been too much slackness. I will put a stop to junket trips by those who hold office under me and will endeavor to stop that practice in other departments. The way to economize is to stop spending."

The following will serve to illustrate some of the most important planks in his platform and which covers various important phases of state government: In regard to the emergency board, he thinks it should be abolished. "If the various departments knew that they would have to close up shop if they did not keep within the appropriations made for them, they would do so. The state needs a head with firmness and common sense."

Mr. Upton is firm in the matter of law observance and considers it as important as law enforcement. He urges the cooperation of people and officers in the matter of enforcing the laws and thinks that respect of law should be taught in every school, church, lodge and civic organization. No officer should be retained who himself violates the law. While the governor cannot pass new laws, he can cooperate with the legislature and bring about needed reforms by intelligent leadership.

One plank of Mr. Upton's platform which many will be interested in is for the effort to reduce the amount paid for auto licenses. He takes the stand that the auto has built the good roads and yet each year sees successive burdens placed on the car owner. He thinks that the costs of auto licenses could well be reduced half a million dollars annually.

He maintains that roads and highways which still remain unimproved should be graded and macadamized. Also he demands a re-adjustment of taxation and assessment, claiming that the ratio system should be abolished and the tax commission given authority to supervise the work of county assessors and to harmonize assessments throughout the state.

He does not favor bonds being exempted from taxation, believes that the forests should be preserved, is against federal game control and says that the money which is collected from sportsmen should be used to propagate and preserve the fish and game of Oregon and not be put into the general fund.

He has decided views on prison management and declares that the parole board should be abolished and the management of prisoners put up to the warden.

He is strongly in favor of cooperative marketing, assuming that agriculture is the basis of prosperity. He thinks that a competent state market agent could be appointed who would devote his energies to cooperation and who would help the struggling farmer to intelligently solve his perplexing problems.

Mr. Upton has for more than ten years been associated with the effort to reclaim the great areas of farm land in Oregon which have great possibilities from an agricultural standpoint. The state should aid those projects which were constructed under war conditions where the land cannot carry the load.

In conclusion the candidate for governor says he will appoint a non-political commission to investigate and recommend a feasible and satisfactory plan to save the farmer and protect the good name of the state and will use every possible influence to have the legislature enact laws that will carry this recommendation into effect.

Chiropractic For Your Child

QUESTION—"My little girl is undernourished, has poor appetite, is fretful, nervous, tires easily, sleeps poorly. How can you apply Chiropractic to this case? Please explain."

ANSWER—Parents are often surprised and alarmed when their child suffers from MALNUTRITION. Not merely children from poor homes, where food is scarce or of poor quality, but children from wealthy homes where the best of everything is lavished upon them. Bear this in mind, when malnutrition persists in spite of due attention to correct eating, it is because there is something wrong with the nervous system causing lack of assimilation. The final step in the digestive process, in which food materials are converted into living bodily tissues does not take place. Bring your child to our office for a complete Spinal Analysis and let us show you the true cause of the trouble. Do not continue to neglect your child's health. Due attention now will obviate much suffering in later years.

partment through the radiator, and making use of the combustion heat to raise the temperature of the engine and cooling system water. Such control can only be had through some obstruction on the radiator, he said.

"Hudson and Essex owners are fortunate in that their cars are equipped with adjustable radiator shutters," Webster said.

Heats More Quickly.
"This enables them to control the circulation of air through the engine compartment, and by closing the shutters while starting get the required engine heat more quickly than otherwise."

"This enables them to control the circulation of air through the engine compartment, and by closing the shutters while starting get the required engine heat more quickly than otherwise."

"The sooner an engine reaches the efficient temperature the less gasoline it consumes in running, for while the bloc is cold part of the gasoline vapor is not consumed and it requires a greater amount of gasoline to get the same results as if the bloc were at the right heat."

"Owners of cars other than the Hudson or Essex can partially remedy conditions by placing cardboard, metal or cloth over the radiator opening, but such makeshifts are not as satisfactory as a radiator shutter that can be operated from the driving seat."

Greater Comfort Also.
"They are important though during the cold weather and should be used by all drivers, for it makes the car run better, gives the driver greater comfort through excluding the cold air that would otherwise come up from beneath the floor boards, and provides greater safety in driving. This is especially important when the car is being driven into a cold wind."

"Everyone knows how easily a cold engine will stall if given too much gasoline. Such stalling is dangerous if it happens on a railroad track, or in the path of speeding vehicles. The reasons for getting the correct temperature as soon as possible can easily be seen and appreciated for it gives the driver better control over his car, as well as making it more economical to drive."

Hudson-Exsex Dealer Points Out Economy and Safeguards in Regulating Such Flow of Air.

For safe and economical operation weather, get your engine running at the most efficient temperature as soon as possible, is the advice given by M. C. Webster, dealer of Hudson-Exsex line in Gresham.

This can be done, Webster points out, by controlling the amount of cold air allowed to enter the engine com-
