When You Get to Florida

SUBSTANTIAL HAINES CITY

ACTUALLY built on actualities—that is Haines City. There is no flagrantly exaggerated tale of things that may be done; instead, there is to offer to the investor a long list of accomplishments by the residents and developers of Haines City.

These accomplishments are in the form of solid, substantial improvements, working constantly for the Haines City of the future rather than temporarily for the Haines City of the minute.

Substantiality—there is a character of prime importance to every investor. For example—a program of city improvement which will pave every street in the city; ample water and sewage facilities; plenty of homes to be provided under a $5,000,000 building program for the next few months; and a community of neighbors desirable because of their never-failing interest in Haines City.

Surrounding all this activity is a countryside where an increasing number of farmers and growers are producing the necessities of life. Their presence means that the aforesaid substantiality is not confined to the city. It is the substantiality of a whole district.
