Spring has arrived.

Here we need to be reminded of the vernal equinox for to all outward appearances it has been spring for a month or two.

To any close observer it is a surprise to note the great variety of plants and shrubs now in exquisite bloom in this locality.

A baby show was held in Cleveland and the winning baby was not announced for a week later. We suppose that was to allow the judges ample time to take refuge in Canada.

"POLITICS"

This is the title of an editorial in a recent issue of Western Breeder's Journal, published in Portland. The editor deprecates the tendency in large and small communities, in congress and in lodges and organizations, to run things into "politics," or to let "politics" run things.

"Politics" is the work of politicians and a politician is one who espouses and works to put over a "policy," or scheme, of government or management.

There are always those in a community or organization who have their ideas of how things ought to be done and they often disrupt wiser, safer plans and methods to put over their pet ideas. In certain ways politics and politicians are all right and, indeed, are necessary to our form of government. It is when selfish interests enter into the plans and policies of those who would lead, whether in government or society, that the curse of "politics" is seen. The statesman is broadminded and works for the best interest of his country. The politician may be a mere time and self server who would wreck his government to accomplish his selfish purpose. We need to be on our guard against such "politics" and politicians. The warning in the Breeder's Journal is timely.

We have come to the conclusion that very nearly the worst enemy of progress in any field is what we call "politics."

If you go into a small community you won't be long before you will find cliques—small groups working against each other.

The same thing is true of the larger cities. Cities adjacent to each other, too, are constantly quarreling instead of working together. In lodges, clubs, business associations, even churches, in organizations of every description, and for whatever purpose they exist, there are factions suspicious of each other, jealous of power and watching for an opportunity to "put something over" on each other.

Your state legislator is not concerned with the welfare of the state as a whole, but with what he can appear to be getting for his own section. Your representative in congress is not concerned primarily with the national welfare but with what he can grab for his own state. The consequence is that law-making bodies are the scenes of sordid barter, under-ground maneuverings and secret wire-pullings—a travesty upon statesmanship.

Unfortunately, you find the same sort of an atmosphere in many of our farm and livestock organizations. It is difficult to escape it, but to the extent that it is escaped progress results. Idealism and intelligent self-interest both demand that factionalism and petty politics be kicked into the ash-can of forgotten things.

"SEEING RED"

Several weeks ago Mrs. Frances Drake Nesbitt, a young college graduate, was murdered in her home in a little Ohio town.

Only the other day her husband, also a young college graduate, confessed he killed her.

"Oh, I know I shouldn't have killed her," he cried to detectives who had grilled him for five hours. "But I just saw red when she slapped me. Everything went red before my eyes."

His attorneys are using the statement that young Nesbitt "saw red" in an effort to keep him out of the electric chair. "Temporary insanity—superinduced by blinding rage," will be the defense.

"Seeing red" always gets people into trouble. "Seeing red" kills and maims humans, shatters homes, wrecks reputations, breaks love ties, ends in the penitentiary or the hospital for insane or in the grave. Anger run wild never helps anyone or anything.

Young Nesbitt was known as a pleasant fellow, always calm in demeanor, never quarrelsome or vicious. But he "saw red" once—only once—and admits he is ready to pay for it in the chair.

Why should anyone ever "see red"? Why should men and women permit themselves to become victims of fits of "blinding rage?"

Serenity of temper is something not everyone can enjoy. No one can remain immobile, unperturbed, every moment. But we think everyone can go through life and life's ups and downs without "seeing red"—even once—if only they'll remember that nine out of every ten who "see red" regret it too late.

Kill Worry or It Will Kill You.
If you don't worry, you're exceptional. If you worry, as most folks do, and you're not trying to kill this pernicious habit, you're mighty foolish. For, by and by, the thing you ought to kill will get a death grip on you. And then, enter the doctor, preacher and undertaker.

We might all be infinitely more happy, healthy and prosperous if we would only take hold of ourselves and stop the silly, insane, useless, strength-robbing habit of harassing ourselves with worry.

The weather won't change and the land lord will remember you anyhow despite all your worrying. The doctor's bills will be higher and the imaginary troubles will be changed into real ones in proportion as you persist in worrying.

Get rid of it, student. Kill it, business man. Junk it, madam. Crush it, everybody!

It's all in your head, anyway, and if you don't clean up inside you'll literally think yourself into a hole in the ground before your time comes.
