ELECTION TICKETS.

Again at election time the voter was confused by a multiplicity of recommendation tickets. It was apparent some of them were put out by irresponsible persons who willfully disregarded the provisions of the corrupt practices act.

Nearly every election time this same thing happens and an investigation is started to run down the guilty parties but if they are found and convicted nothing is ever heard of it.

If the corrupt practices act is not complete enough to stop this breach it should be amended to cover such cases. If the parties responsible can be discovered they should be punished and exposed through the papers.

For instance, two entirely different tickets were circulated headed "Citizens' Committee" and signed with the same surname but different initials and address. They were exactly alike in appearance but recommended a different ticket.

Another, the so-called "yellow ticket," was signed by a name of a former Klan leader who declares the signature unauthorized and a clear forgery.

THE THISTLE.

Sometimes what one person or people despises another honors and cherishes. This is true of the thistle. Did the farmer or gardener ever have a worse pest in an exotic plant? Its habit of growth and method of disseminating its seed makes it very undesirable.

However, the thistle is well thought of by some. It is the national flower of Scotland. In regard to its origin as such the following story is told. When the Danes invaded Scotland, they stole a march upon the Scottish camp by marching barefoot; but a Dane inadvertently stepped on a thistle, and his sudden, sharp cry, arousing the sleeping Scots, saved them and their country, thus establishing the thistle as the national flower of Scotland.

ELECTION AFTERMATH.

An attorney in Portland, a defeated candidate for district judge, now starts proceedings to enjoin the county clerk of Multnomah county from counting as valid the votes cast at polling places located in churches, on the ground that to pay churches rental for such polling places amounts to the state contributing to the support of a religious institution which is unconstitutional. It is evident the candidate was wholly unfitted for the judgeship he sought and the ends of justice would not have been furthered if he had been nominated and elected. But the chances are that if he had been nominated he would have made no objection.

That was a dastardly trick, the putting out of an alleged Klan ticket the day before election and listing some of the best candidates as endorsed by the Klan which defeated them regardless of their general good qualities and ability. We have it from some personally that they were not in sympathy with the Klan did not desire any such endorsement, in fact, it led to their defeat.

The vote polled in Gresham represented only about 50 per cent of the registered voters. That leads to some serious thoughts regarding the primary system. We personally heard people say that they wouldn't bother to vote at the primary, they would vote when election time came. The excuse some gave is that their vote would not count for much in the nominating election where there are so many candidates. Others say they cannot decide who of the many candidates to choose, etc. It all leads us to conclude that many are disgusted with the primary when any Tom, Dick or Harry who wants a little publicity, has a pet hobby to exploit, or just wants to get in the swim, can place himself in the running. To complicate the ticket with so many unendorsed candidates, for instance in some cases seven or eight where one is to be nominated, is confusing to the voter and he often doesn't care whether he votes or not, especially if he has not studied the conditions closely. This matter might be discussed at greater length and will be from time to time as it is apparent some change should be made.

"The difference between a woman and a glass," said the funny fellow, "is that the glass reflects without speaking, while a woman speaks without reflecting."

"They put fools in the world for the same reason they put the black keys on the piano, just to vary the monotony."

A pessimist is a man who won't milk a cow because he is afraid the milk is already soured.

LOCAL STUDENTS ENTER MILITARY TOURNAMENT

Five students of Gresham and vicinity will be entered in the fourteenth annual military tournament at O. A. C. May 29. By means of the tournament the military department each year shows the training it offers and the serious purpose the physically fit college men give to their work in the reserve corps.

Lyle D. Quick will take part in the exhibition of the engineering corps in which a pontoon bridge is built in ten minutes that will hold the heaviest of army trucks, and destroy it in a few seconds by explosives. Stafford Dowsett and Charles C. McKinney are listed for the infantry exhibition drill where the companies will do close-order drill, extended order and combat formations. W. Ray Lasley and Grant McMillan will act as corporals in the impressive retreat parade at the end of the tournament.

An air service demonstration directed by Lieutenant Oakley G. Kelly, America's premier long-distance flying ace, will be an outstanding feature of the program. It will include formation and stunt flying and a parachute drop. The air demonstration at 1 o'clock will open the tournament.

A review of the entire cadet corps will follow the air stunts. Other events scheduled include cavalry drills; artillery and machine gun contests; the pony express race; and other feature stunts. Every grammar and high school student in Oregon will be admitted free, Major Donald A. Robinson, tournament director, has announced.

TWENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO IN ST. LOUIS, MISSOURI

Clair Stockton, who returned with his uncle, J. F. Douglass, on Wednesday from an auto trip to eastern central Oregon, is showing two copies of "The St. Louis Republic," found in a homesteader's cabin near Wamic. The man was killed many years ago in an accident and his cabin has remained unoccupied since.

The old newspapers are dated July 11 and 15, 1901, which is about the time the man named McGregor came to the homestead from St. Louis. The papers are peculiar in appearance and tell of the fearful droughts which existed that year in Missouri and other states. This was a summer of intense heat throughout the middle west which can be recalled by those living there at that time. One article deals with a situation where the people met and prayed for rain. The issue of July 15 tells of the pardon of James and Cole Younger, notorious outlaws of an earlier day who had served time in the Minnesota penitentiary.

Aside from the general strange-looking makeup of the news section of the dailies, may be noted the nature of the advertisements in the papers. In one column is advertised pure whiskey at 80 cents a quart and in another is set forth the advantages of a particular make of buggy to be drawn by a team of horses. Automobile and radio ads are conspicuous by their absence and a hasty survey of the two papers does not reveal the presence of those two words so common in the smallest country periodical of today. Perhaps the oddest of the advertisements was that of some up-to-minute dress patterns of that period. The trailing petticoats and dresses, the wasp-like waists, the hat perched high on the head and the high collars serve to remind the feminine portion of readers, at least, that "the world do certainly move."

Glen Winters Visits Sound City.
Glen Winters, first pitcher on the O. A. C. varsity team this year, greatly enjoyed his trip to Seattle last week when, with about 30 members of the baseball team and the track meet squad, he had the pleasure of visiting the Sound city. The boys chartered a car at Portland and to say they enjoyed themselves would be expressing it mildly.

The O. A. C. team was forced to divide the honors evenly with the University of Washington, each winning a game. Winters, a sophomore at Oregon Agricultural college, was one of four Pi Kappa Alpha fraternity men to make the trip. He was entertained at dinner at the home of Hugh Benton, a Seattle boy attending O. A. C., and there were many other pleasant diversions. One of the most instructive tours of the business district was a visit to the famous 42-story Smith building. In the Chinese room at the top of the tower the students viewed the Chinese room, the furnishings alone of which cost $50,000. The boys returned to Corvallis Sunday.
