Plans for Memorial Day Are Maturing

Plans are being formulated for the observance of Memorial Sunday and Decoration day, the two days this year falling on the same date, May 30.

The ladies of the Relief Corps and the auxiliary to the Legion are engaged today in making wreaths to place on the graves of veterans in Gresham, Pleasant Home and Hall cemeteries.

A day or so yet remains in which those interested will want to make some improvements and clean up the local cemetery. For some time past private parties have been at work clearing out dead leaves, weeds, etc., and making the place more presentable, although much yet could be done in this direction.

BEE INSPECTOR BUSY IN THIS VICINITY

County Bee Inspector F. Beier is very active in his duties of inspecting the bees of the county, in order to clean up the foul brood troubles which have been destroying the bee industry in this part of the state.

Mr. Beier will be working in and around Gresham for a few days and is very anxious to get in touch with people who have one or more stands of bees. His headquarters will be at the county agent's office and he can be reached there by telephone or by personal inquiry.

Mr. Beier states that only a small percentage of the people who have bees have secured their license up to the present time for 1926. The state law requires each person having one or more stands of bees to secure from the county clerk a license.

In order to start the work in this community Mr. Beier is anxious to meet all of the bee keepers in the east end of the county at the county agent's office on Tuesday, June 1, at 1:30 o'clock for a general inspection meeting.

After assembling at the county agent's office they are going to some of the near bee keepers where instructions will be given on the control of foul broods and other problems. Mr. Beier is as much interested in having those who have only a few stands of bees or even one, as he is those who have a larger number of bees, as one diseased colony in a community is liable to destroy the whole bee industry of that community.

Transformer Removed to Beaverton.

The local sub-station plant of the Portland Electric Power company at the lower depot came to the assistance Wednesday of the Beaverton station when a 11,000-volt transformer burned out at the latter place and officials of the company came to Gresham and "borrowed" a transformer of the same voltage to replace the damaged piece.

While the big transformer is out of its usual place, the sub-station will be idle. Boring and Lents Junction will help to supply Gresham with current and unless too heavy a freight is routed over the tracks here, no inconvenience is anticipated from the failure of the automatic apparatus to operate until the transformer is restored to its place again.
