FLAG DAY.

June 14 is now universally recognized as Flag day. Just 32 years ago it was first officially acknowledged as such, the governor of New York ordering the Stars and Stripes to be raised on all public buildings in the state on that day. June 14th is the anniversary of the adoption of the flag by the Continental Congress in the year 1777.

The history of the flag is an interesting one. After Washington had taken command of the Revolutionary army at Cambridge in 1776, he unfolded before them a flag of 13 stripes of alternate red and white, having upon one of its corners the red and white crosses of St. George and St. Andrew on a field of blue. Uniting as it did the flags of England and America, it showed that the colonists had not yet | decided to sever the tie binding them to the mother country.

But on the 14th of June, 1777, it was resolved by congress, "That the flag of the 13 United States be 13 stripes, alternate red and white, and that the union be 13 white stars in a blue field." In 1818 congress enacted a requirement that for each state admitted into the union, a star should be added to the blue field. At the present time the stars in the flag number 48, representing the 48 states composing the United States.

Many stories are in existence concerning the making of the first flag, but it has been decided that the honor of giving the rippling banner its most familiar name belongs to William Driver, a Salem, Massachusetts sailor. In 1831 he was presented with an American flag to fly from the masthead of his brig. He immediately christened Sunday evening. it "Old Glory."

"The flag of the United States symbolizes that freedom, equality, justice and humanity for which our forefathers sacrificed their lives and personal score of the first game standing 5 to 3 fortunes. Today this flag represents a and of the second, 3 to 1.
