

Fairview Women Are Making Plans for Fair

The fair city of Fairview is planning for a big fair—and what could be more fitting. The eventful day will be Friday, November 19 and the place the city hall. The Women's Society of Smith Memorial church is responsible for the affair, and extensive plans have been laid to fill the afternoon and evening with interesting features.

The women have been working for weeks on plain and fancy aprons, quilts and various articles of fancy work. These will be arranged in attractive booths and reasonably priced. The sales will continue during the afternoon and evening.

The committee in charge of the sewing consists of Mrs. Clarence Fancher, Mrs. S. L. Lockwood, Mrs. Frieda Fancher, Mrs. Edwin Quigley and Mrs. C. E. Bunn. Mrs. Clyde Stone is in charge of the home-made candy booth, and Mrs. John Jonas in charge of the dinner, which will be served between 6 and 8 o'clock.

What fair would be complete without its side shows and amusement features? Other fairs have had their "Trall" and "Pay Streak," and Fairview fair will have its "Sunshine Alley." Features on "Sunshine Alley" will be open only in the evening. Among them will be found the original "candy kids," an in-door swimming match, trained wild animals, a show "for men only," and other attractions. There will also be a baby show. Popular vote will decide the prettiest, homeliest, fattest, skinniest and cutest baby at the show. It will be worth a visit to the fair just to hear the spellers spiel.

A short, snappy program is planned for the evening. Among its features will be Ausby Bishop, baritone; Norman Norton, ventriloquist, accompanied by "George Washington," all of Portland. The program and amusement features are in charge of Mrs. Geo. Lumsden and Mrs. Lester Campbell. A small general admission charge includes admission to the program also.
