

Young Man Succumbs to Serious Injuries

The deepest regret was expressed by many when it was learned that Burleigh Quesinberry, who had been ill for several months, had passed away on Friday evening last, November 12, at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Walker Quesinberry in Rockwood. The deceased was born in Dug Spur, Carroll county, Virginia, March 18, 1901. At the age of three he came west with his parents and the family settled in Rockwood where he spent his boyhood years. He graduated from the Rockwood graded school and attended the high school at Gresham two years, but did not finish his course there until four years later when he returned and graduated with the class of 1923. He then took up studies for the profession of dentistry at the North Pacific Dental college in Portland and was looking forward this fall toward entering his senior year, when his illness and death prevented.

The immediate cause of the young man's death was said to be a tumor on the brain which developed as the result of injuries received in playing football two or three years ago, and later in an automobile accident.

He married Miss Josephine Townsend June 1 of this year and together they spent the summer at Bandon, Oregon. Besides his widow he is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Walker Quesinberry, and seven brothers and sisters, Dexter, Mae Quesinberry, and Mrs. Lloyd McCormick of Portland; Dr. E. G. Quesinberry of Corvallis; Lt. R. W. Quesinberry of the U. S. S. Black Hawk; Mrs. F. H. Springer of Seattle and Frederick who resides with his parents at Rockwood.

Funeral services were held in the Methodist Episcopal church at Rockwood Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock. The Rev. E. R. D. Hollensted, pastor of the Smith Memorial Presbyterian church of Fairview, read the scriptures and preached a short sermon and the Rev. J. F. Dunlop, pastor of the Rockwood church, offered prayer. The church was filled with neighbors and friends and an exceptionally large number of young men, former companions and schoolmates of the deceased. The room was beautifully decorated with flowers, besides the large floral offerings of set pieces and wreaths from relatives and friends. The Luschner boys of Fairview sang, "Safe in the Arms of Jesus", and at the close of the service, "Beautiful Isle of Somewhere." Interment took place at Lincoln Memorial park. The pallbearers at the funeral were selected from the ranks of the young man's former school associates, several different schools being represented. Ross Brown of Gresham, one of the pall bearers, had attended the grade school with Burleigh years ago at Rockwood; Jack Brown had been a schoolmate at Rockwood and Gresham Union high school; Johnny Mickleson was a member of the Montavilla baseball team where Burleigh formerly played; "Babe" Thomas was from Franklin high school which Burleigh attended for a time; Francis Peak was a classmate of high school and a schoolmate in the dental college, and Douglas Horton was a close friend and high school classmate. In addition to those who were the regular pallbearers, six young men, members of the Montavilla baseball team, acted as honorary pall bearers.

Burleigh was a popular young man and had a host of admiring friends. One of these deserves special mention, as he showed his love and loyalty to his friend by staying with him nights and ministering to his comfort to the last. He was enjoying life and, as any normal young person, did not want to leave it. He made a brave fight against the relentless enemy of death, but bowed to God's will. He had a bright and promising career ahead of him and no doubt looked forward to a life of happiness and usefulness with his bride, but it was otherwise willed. He loved sports and athletics and was an all around baseball player, playing this game he loved, as well as the game of life, strictly on the square.

Card of Thanks. We wish to acknowledge and express our sincere appreciation for the many tokens of love and sympathy extended us during the sickness and death of our beloved husband, son and brother, Burleigh Quesinberry. Signed Mrs. Josephine Quesinberry, Mr. and Mrs. Walker Quesinberry and Family.

IMPORTANT ANNOUNCEMENT

Beginning January 1, 1927, the subscription price of the Outlook will be $2 a year, six months $1.10, three months 60 cents.

The Gresham Outlook began publication as a twice-a-week newspaper in March, 1911. For more than fifteen years it has maintained its original subscription price of $1.50 a year. During all these years the paper has enjoyed an encouraging growth, has greatly increased its service to the community, has grown with the locality and met every demand of increasing population and business progress and has steadily gained in prestige at home and abroad.

Most newspapers in Oregon and generally throughout the country raised their subscription rates during or following the war when the costs of production increased 50 to 100 per cent. The advanced costs have not receded and are not likely to. They seem to have struck a permanent level.

The Outlook has been slow to ask of its subscribers this small advance in subscription rate. It believes the subscription price of a newspaper should be kept at the lowest possible level. It has and will continue to carry out this policy. It believes, however, that it is entitled after all these years of growth and consistent service to its constituency through changing conditions to the advance it now asks—without the loss of a single valued subscriber.

Neither does the Outlook ask this as a reward but rather with the purpose and expectation of increasing the possibility of a greater and better service to the readers and to the community which it is proud to serve.

As is usual in similar situations, the Outlook will consider the time from now until the new rates take effect A BARGAIN PERIOD, during which time renewals and new subscriptions will be taken at the present rate.

Many subscriptions expire with the new year or soon after. These will be renewed at $1.50 a year, or 85 cents for six months, if paid on or before December 31, 1926.

The Outlook recently enlarged its pages from six columns to seven columns, thereby increasing its reading space materially and improving its appearance noticeably.

We ask the cooperation of subscribers, advertisers, correspondents and the public generally to aid the management in its purpose and efforts to make this the only newspaper in eastern Multnomah truly representative of this exceptionally progressive and attractive portion of our state.

GOLDEN RULE DINNER NETTED GOOD AMOUNT

Approximately $100 were received as the result of the Golden Rule dinner given Friday evening in the Masonic hall in the interests of the Near East Relief. The Rev. J. J. Handsaker, regional director for the Near East Relief for the Northwest, was present and held the attention of the audience by his apt illustrations and vivid portrayals of the harrowing conditions existing among the refugees. The proceeds of the dinner Friday evening is a part of the general contribution to help the children in the orphanages which were destroyed in recent earthquakes which visited that region.

The Rev. E. G. Judd, chairman for this district, and others who worked untiringly for several days in putting over the affair, are more than pleased to realize as much as they did. This was the first attempt of anything of this kind in Gresham or vicinity and the educational value of the campaign was considered worth the effort. The management is particularly grateful to the Masonic lodge for the use of the hall which was donated free of charge for the occasion. Much credit is due the eight Gresham grade school girls who trudged through rain and wind to dispose of tickets, also the ladies who did the actual work of preparing the repast and serving it are to be commended.

Laundry Work Wanted. Will take washing and ironing at my home. Have electric washer. Mrs. Alta Truitt, Gresham, phone 366x.

For real estate loans see or call B. W. Thorne.—Adv.

WALRAD COMPANY ADDS BOOKKEEPING MACHINE

As a means of minimizing the office work of the Walrad Mercantile company a new machine has been installed called the Remington bookkeeping machine, which is the last word in efficiency. Its appearance is that of a modern Remington typewriter with a standard key board, but in addition to having all the conveniences of the typewriter it can add, subtract, bill, make out statements and take care of the accounts receivable accurately and with almost human ingenuity under the guidance of an experienced operator.

Miss Helen Rogers has been studying the intricacies of the machine, which is electrically driven, and is fast becoming proficient. Mrs. G. W. Schroeder was out from Portland last week and assisted with the office bookkeeping with a second machine which had been brought for the purpose.

Perennials for Sale. Must sell a large number of my perennials and shrubs to make room for dahlia stock. They will go very cheap to those who will come for them. Mrs. Vera L. Tucker, phone Gresham 268x2.—Adv.

Miss Ruth Annable is here to assume charge of the Bailey Bob & Beauty Shoppe. Hair dressing, marcelling, scalp treatments, shampooing, facials, manicuring. Satisfaction guaranteed. Phone 851 for an appointment.—Adv.

Thanksgiving Turkey. Order it at once from Gresham Meat Market, A. J. W. Brown, proprietor. Best selected birds, ready for the oven, at the lowest possible price.—Adv.

Pioneer Woman Dies in Portland Hospital

Amid the beauty of a wealth of floral offerings and to the strains of subdued musical notes sympathizing relatives, neighbors and friends of the late Mrs. Mary J. Cathey gathered on Saturday afternoon, November 13, to pay their last mark of respect to the memory of one who lately moved among them. The Methodist Episcopal church, where the funeral was held, was filled to capacity.

Mrs. Cathey passed away on the previous Wednesday evening, November 10, at Good Samaritan hospital where an operation had been performed that morning for the removal of a toxic goiter. The operation was considered successful when, apparently without warning, the slender hold on life began to relax and she passed away about 6 o'clock.

When Mrs. Cathey, who had been in declining health for several years, decided to submit to an operation, she seemingly sensed the possibility that it might not be successful and a request had been made by her that the Rev. Frank Burns, long an intimate friend of the family, might preach her funeral sermon. Mr. Burns spoke from I. Thess. 4:13, using the words "Sorrow Not" as the basis of his remarks. He emphasized the kindness of God and spoke of the confidence of the Christian when nearing the crossing. He closed with a tribute to the deceased, eulogizing the beauty of character that grace had developed in her. Tennyson's "Crossing the Bar", Mrs. Cathey's favorite poem, was recited by Mr. Burns.

The Rev. L. A. Skuzie, pastor of Gresham Free Methodist church, and the Rev. O. F. DeFoe, pastor of Central Free Methodist church in Portland, assisted in the service. The Central church quartet sang, "A City Eye Hath Not Seen" and "Abide With Me," and at the special request of Mr. Cathey, C. E. Risher rendered most feelingly a splendid solo, "One Sweetly Solenn Thought", accompanied by Miss Amy Cooper. The pallbearers were selected from the ranks of old time friends in this vicinity—George and John Sleret, J. H. Metzger, D. M. Roberts, C. F. Ruegg, and Gus Richey. Following the church service, interment was made in Gresham cemetery where the parents of D. M. Cathey are buried.

Mary Josephine Sippy was born in Linn county, Oregon, April 19, 1859. She was the daughter of pioneers who came west in 1849 and settled in the vicinity of Eugene, afterward residing in Linn county. She was married to David M. Cathey on January 14, 1880, to which union four children were born, one son dying in infancy. Practically all her married life was spent on the farm where she came as a bride. Besides her widower she is survived by three children, Clarence D. and Mrs. Mary Gossett of Gresham, and Mrs. Winifred Heden of Sacramento, California; a sister, Mrs. Lizette Powell of Portland; seven grandchildren, Allan and Lois Cathey, Mary Elizabeth and David Gossett, Wesley and Edwin Bowman and Mrs. Aletha Starkis, and a great granddaughter, Adrienne Starkis of Sacramento.

In early life Mrs. Cathey had been converted and united with the Methodist Episcopal church, but shortly after marriage she and her husband joined the Free Methodist church, which relationship had since been sustained. "She was always to be found in her place of worship as her health permitted and ready to aid in every good enterprise. She was of a quiet retiring disposition. Her home was her haven—the members of her family the objects of her love and devotion. Although unassuming in her disposition, her life reached out and touched a host of friends, and those who have had the privilege of basking in the acquaintance of this generous and sweet-spirited woman, feel that it has been one which has enriched their lives.

Besides the daughter, Mrs. Winifred Heden, and her granddaughter, Adrienne Starkis, who came from Sacramento for the funeral and who expect to remain in Gresham several weeks, others present included the Rev. Frank Cathey and Mr. and Mrs. Will Cathey of Seattle, Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Cathey of Albany, Hershel Brock of Longview, Washington, Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Kirkpatrick, Dr. and Mrs. George Cathey and Dr. and Mrs. C. S. Cathey, all of Portland.

Card of Thanks. Words are inadequate to express our appreciation for the many tokens of kindness and sympathy in words of condolence, beautiful floral offerings, songs and other expressions of helpfulness which have gone far to lift the burden from our hearts in this our sore bereavement.

D. M. CATHEY, CLARENCE CATHEY, MRS. WINIFRED C. HEDEN, MRS. MARY C. GOSSETT.

Grandma Linnemann Passes, 98 Years Old

Death came early yesterday morning to "Grandma" Linnemann, burdened with the years of nearly a century, and released her spirit from the shackles which bound it. More than a score of years ago she felt that her work was finished and often told her friends that she was ready to go and was only waiting for the summons. For several years past she has been practically helpless because of the infirmity of her years, still her wonderful vitality kept alive the spark of human life until she passed the 98th milestone. Her daughter, Mrs. Iona McCol, has given her constant attention for several years past, with the aid of competent helpers. Her granddaughter, Mrs. W. C. Belt of Newport, Oregon, came the latter part of last week and was present when the end came, about 1 o'clock on the morning of November 15.

Funeral services will be held on Wednesday afternoon, November 17, at 2 o'clock, at the Linnemann Memorial Methodist church in Gresham, so named 20 years ago when the present church was built, because of a large donation to the building fund given by Mrs. Linnemann in memory of her husband. The funeral sermon will be preached by Dr. A. Thompson, for many years a close friend and advisor of Mrs. Linnemann. The Rev. David Cathey, who all his life lived neighbor to the Linnemann family, will take part in the services, which are under the direction of Gresham Funeral parlors.

Catherine Elizabeth Von Felde was born in Gerde, Kingdom of Hanover, Germany, September 1, 1828. She came to America in 1851, and the same year was married to John Gerard D. Linnemann. They lived in Illinois until the spring of 1852, when they joined a small party of emigrants bound for the Oregon country.

The journey, which took four months to accomplish, was made by ox team and mule team. There was much sickness and suffering from the privations of the trip, and all were in constant fear of an attack from savage Indians. Before the journey was ended all able-bodied persons were obliged to walk to give their places to the sick and relieve the loads for the tottering oxen, and Mrs. Linnemann told of walking the last 800 miles to The Dalles. Her skirts were hanging in shreds from the brambles and sage brush of the trails. With other emigrants they drifted down the Columbia in a boat to the upper cascades where they were caught in a whirlpool and came near perishing. They were able to reach shore and from the lower cascades made the trip to Portland on a little steamer which was the first to operate on the Columbia above Portland. They arrived in Portland, then a village of 400 inhabitants, on September 18, 1852.

Mr. Linnemann was a tailor and he lost to time in opening a shop, which was on Third street. He was interested in getting a farm in the new land and the following summer he and his wife took a half section of land and built themselves a log cabin near the present Linnemann Junction. Another tailor and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Giese, took an adjoining claim, and the men worked in Portland as their trade, walking home once a week with provisions and walking back to their work.

Mrs. Linnemann put her young strength to the clearing of land for the raising of a garden and did excellent work in that line. All of the land was heavily timbered. After a few years Mr. Linnemann gave up his work in Portland and devoted himself entirely to his farm. He died on January 22, 1892. They had five and worked together on the farm for 40 years and had brought about a remarkable development. The hospitality of the Linnemanns became proverbial in the early day. No stranger could pass their door unassisted, and in sickness or in trouble they were quick to give their assistance.

After her husband's death Mrs. Linnemann lived on the farm for about two years, then built herself a house on Powell street Gresham, where she resided until her death. In 1858 Mr. and Mrs. Linnemann, who had no children of their own, adopted a little girl whose mother had died. She is now Mrs. Iona McCol, who has spent the greater part of her life in Gresham and the last few years caring for her mother.

Mrs. Linnemann was reared in the Lutheran faith but many years ago joined the Methodist Episcopal church in Gresham. Her interest in the church and its enterprises was keen while she was able to take part in them, and for many years she was a trustee of the church.
