It is better never to receive favors than to be unthankful for those received.—Stephen J. Field.

With Apologies.

Words of great men remind us. We should make our statements brief. And departing leave behind us. Less to cause the printers grief.

Good Reasons for Giving Thanks.

The things you own do not bring contentment or happiness. Though possession does not of itself bring happiness, lack of possessions is the seed bed producing huge and continuous crops of discontent. Jack or Jill, sixteen, want a roadster all their own because Jim or Jane possess such a vehicle. Possession of a car won't make Jack or Jill happier; on the contrary, in most cases they'll get into trouble, but lack of a car creates in them a feeling of discontent that drives peace out of the household and poisons family life until it is removed either by purchase or the firm application of the parental foot.

If discontent is largely due to unsatisfied wants, then the United States should be, comparatively speaking, the most contented nation on earth. Fewer Americans lack the necessities, more Americans possess luxuries than the most advanced of the European nations. On the last Thursday of November more turkeys will be eaten, more automobile rides will be taken, more radios will be turned on, more silk stockings will develop runs, more food remnants will be placed in more electric refrigerators than ever before. As a nation we should be able to give thanks most heartily for the material blessings bestowed upon us.

Yet, are we any happier than Diogenes? All he asked of Alexander the Great, ruler of the world, was that he step aside out of his sunshine.—December Sunset.

Diphtheria Decreasing—Scarlet Fever Next to Go.

Within the past three years an active campaign has been waged against diphtheria by the Oregon State Board of Health, by county and city health departments, and by the medical profession generally. Emphasis was laid upon early diagnosis of the disease and upon the prompt administration of diphtheria antitoxin. Greater stress was laid however, upon the immunization of susceptible individuals, particularly children, by the use of toxin-antitoxin. The results of this campaign are now tangibly evident. In the first nine months of 1925 there were reported to the Oregon State Board of Health 873 cases and 69 deaths from diphtheria. For the same period in 1926 there were reported 693 cases and 44 deaths. It is confidently expected that with the increasing use of toxin-antitoxin diphtheria will soon become a rare disease.

The wonderful headway being made in Oregon against diphtheria has awakened deep interest in another preventable respiratory disease, scarlet fever. It was only a few years ago that the Doctors Dick demonstrated the germ, streptococcus scarlatina, to be the cause of scarlet fever. They showed that this germ secreted a poison, or toxin, and that this toxin could be used not only to indicate persons susceptible to this disease, but could also be employed to immunize them against it.

The Dick test for the recognition of susceptibility to scarlet fever is carried out by injecting into the skin a very minute amount of the diluted scarlet fever toxin. If the person is susceptible there will appear, at the sight of the injection, a zone of redness of about the size of a penny. This redness is most marked at the end of 24 hours, at which time the test should be read, and rapidly fades thereafter. Persons immune to scarlet fever have no reaction whatever.

To immunize susceptible persons a very minute amount of the scarlet fever toxin is injected hypodermically, and then at intervals of five to seven days slightly increasing doses are injected, until all five doses have been given. There is no discomfort or pain; even local reactions being rare. At least a month after the final injection the Dick test should be made to determine if the person has been completely immunized. Now is the time to get protection. Consult your physician or your health officer. Oregon had 1408 cases and 18 deaths from scarlet fever in 1925. These figures should and will be materially reduced by the end of next year if health officials, physicians, and the public wage as active a campaign against scarlet fever as they did against diphtheria.

Medical Terminology.

By John Joseph Gaines, M. D. Perhaps many of our readers are attracted by the various health articles appearing in the newspapers; these, when written by capable talent are valuable to the public as educational features. Medical terms are sometimes difficult for the public to interpret for personal use. In this sketch, it is my purpose to make some of these words easier understood.

We find "itis" at the end of many names of diseases; this little terminal means "inflammation." For instance, appendicitis literally means inflammation of the appendix; bronchitis is inflammation of the bronchial tubes; laryngitis is inflammation of the larynx. Peritonitis is inflammation of the peritoneum—the membrane lining the abdomen; pericarditis is inflammation of the sac which encloses the heart; "per" means around; "cardi" the heart; "itis" is inflammation. And on through the "itis" words.

"Algia" signifies pain. Gastralgia is pain in the stomach; neuralgia is pain in a nerve; cardalgia is pain in the heart; enteralgia means pain in the intestines; odontalgia means toothache. None of the "algias" are diagnostic. Gastritis, neuritis, etc., are more accurately descriptive.

"Phobia" literally means dread. Photophobia is simply dread of light, as in inflamed eye structures. Hydrophobia is dread of water. It has been said that the dog with rabies falls in a spasm, the moment he sees or comes in contact with water. Our wise old ancestors therefore declared that the disease is hydrophobia. The term has no accuracy as indicating the true condition.

"Rheoa" means a flow. Hence "diarrhoea" means "a flow through" when applied to disease.

Champ Husker

Fred Stanek of Fort Dodge, Iowa, shucked 28.2 bushels of corn in one hour and twenty minutes and won the championship for this year—defeating 50 of the best huskers in the country, among them Earl Williams of Nebraska who holds the world's record of 35.8 bushels. Zero weather made husking difficult this season.
