AN ACHIEVEMENT.

The Outlook—editor, reporters and mechanical force—twelve persons in all, including several extras—may be pardoned for viewing the Holiday Outlook of last Tuesday as an achievement—a little bigger and better than anything of the kind ever before accomplished hereabouts.

The plans were extensive and the labor arduous, requiring at the finish almost three days and nights of continuous effort. But all who labored so strenuously feel that it was worth while and the Outlook has assurances that the public is appreciative.

Extra copies have been taken readily and prospects are the supply will soon be exhausted.

The house and senate are struggling to pass a radio control bill. The two bills proposed, one in the senate and one in the house, are wide apart as to method and an effort is being made to harmonize them. One proposes a radio bureau in the department of commerce, the other proposes the creation of an independent radio commission. With hundreds of broadcasting stations and hundreds of thousands of receiving sets, those directly interested in regulation of radio may be easily counted into the millions. The radio is no longer an experiment. It has its most important uses which are most important and its entertainment uses which are most popular.

An exchange says a knocker is a two-legged animal with a cork-screw soul, a water-soaked brain and a combination backbone of jelly and glue. Where other men have their hearts he carries a tumor of decayed principles. When the knocker comes down the street honest men turn their backs, angels in heaven weep and devils shut the door of hell to keep him out. Therefore, don't be a knocker. You can saw wood with a saw, not with a hammer.

Christmas trees are shipped from this locality by the carload but no one offers them for local sale. We know of a few that would snap them up quick. No one should go onto another's property and cut trees without permission. Here's a chance for someone to make a little extra money by bringing in a load or two for local sale.

Portland is the home of the second largest furniture manufacturing plant in the United States. Most of its output is taken up by domestic trade but a good proportion goes into foreign trade, according to the report of the traffic department of the Port of Portland commission.

The public is apparently rather disappointed over the seeming failure of justice in the acquittal of Fall and Doheny. There is a general opinion there was some skull-duggery about that oil lease deal that merited conviction of the principals. But they seem in a position to secure protection.

The storm conditions of the past few days have slowed up Christmas buying but there will be a grand rush from now on—except for those who took the good advice of "shopping early."

Hail the Hungarian emigrant, Harovitz, who discovers a safe and sure narcotic cure—Narcosan. Let's ask God to bless him and the remedy and enlarge our faith in humanity and divine providence.

GROWNUPS IN TOYLAND

By EMMAFLO WILSON

OYLAND is open. Preparatory overtures to Santa Claus, in all their gay intrigue, are giving the children an early lesson in politics, and truly, there's no thrill like it.

For it's an old-fashioned Santa Claus who this year stands welcoming at the door of this joyful land, holding out promises of untold happiness to good little boys and girls, who seriously promise to win, by good behavior, all the golden treasures he carries in his pack.

If you would feel the years fall away, and catch again something of the glad spirit of childhood, when cares were not so heavy and magic and mystery wove their spell, then pay it a visit—this land of woolly dogs and little tin soldiers, horns and colored ships and curly headed dolls, with their glad little painted smiles.

Nevertheless, you will find this happy land has its tears. If you visit the Toylands opened in Gresham, in spite of the blast of horns and shrieking of whistles and little squeals of childish delight, you will feel a funny, tight little sensation in the throat as you recognize many of the old treasures which you thought had forever passed from the stage of childhood to give place to smarter and more ingenious toys to the liking of the modern youngster.

For they are back—almost all of them. Our old friends, the German dolls, with eyes that sleep and with long, flaxen curls, the old-fashioned kind with the kid body, soft and yielding to the touch, with parted lips and arms outstretched in waiting. They are the kind of dolls that brother used to operate on when appendicitis first became fashionable, and a button, hidden in the sawdust stomach, was the elusive appendix.

All of the wicked vamp dolls seem to have been abolished, as if in keeping with the old-fashioned spirit of Santa Claus. Gone are the bathing suit beauties, the naughty flirtatious damsels of the goggle eyes—the irresponsible shimmy dancers. The most popular thing in doll-dom is the baby doll, an exact copy of little brother a few days after the stork paid his call. These dolls come singly, in twins, even in triplets, with complete little layettes, cradles and all.

And you will find the same stuffed, woolly animals you knew when you were a child, although you may hardly recognize the teddy bear because they have all taken to wheels—just like their elders.

Judging from the toy display, the dark Darwinian scandal hasn't touched the North Pole, for Noah's Ark, with old Noah himself and all the wooden animals are back and going strong. The children know who he is, too. Yet with the wide tolerance of youth, the monkey enjoys equal popularity with the other animals.

Almost every line of industry is represented in Toyland this year. There are moving vans, milk wagons, and grocery trucks, even horses that can be hitched and unhitched, for childhood, in search of diversion, does not scorn ancient methods.

There are trucks and trams, and trolley cars and busses—every mode of transportation is represented. Real phonographs in miniature, taking the place of the old-fashioned harp that could play three pieces, and a few cash registers seem to be the only concessions Santa has made to modernism.

No, it hasn't changed much these 20 and 30 and 40 years—and there is a thrill in store for the grownups as well as for the children.

Rybnick and Winston Strong. As time passes the results of coaching will be evident. Debates will be held with other schools but to date the schedule has not been definitely determined. It is quite likely Gresham Union high will debate with Oregon City, West Linn, Milwaukie, Parkrose, Estacada, Molalla and other schools. This is our first attempt at debate for four years. It is hoped sufficient interest will be manifested so that debaters will be encouraged. Patron-purchaser tickets admit to all debates.

The organization of a Camera club in the high school is fast taking form and it will not be long until the dark room is finished and members of the club will be developing and printing their own pictures. The membership will necessarily need be limited but indications point to a full membership of 20. The club promotes and provides snaps for the annual and offers an opportunity for good, wholesome recreation. Some instruction will be given in developing, printing and coloring pictures.

The first basketball game of the season will be played here soon, the exact date to be announced later. Coach Kruger states his team will be strong this year. Most of the games will be double headers with other schools, consisting of a preliminary girls' game followed by the boys' game. The girls' games will start promptly at 7:30.

Peter Lenard Is Experienced Tailor

One of Gresham's most substantial citizens is Peter Lenard who for the past 12 years has conducted a tailoring and cleaning establishment in this place. He has had nearly 30 years' experience as a tailor and understands the alteration and cleaning business well. Mr. Lenard believes in buying the best machinery possible for his shop and about a year ago invested in a Sharples continuous flow dry cleaner which cannot be surpassed in a city plant.

Mr. Lenard has built up a good business and is a very busy man in his line. He is assisted at times by Mrs. Lenard.

Zamsky Studio Does Fine Art Work

Adolph Zamsky came to Gresham in August of this year and purchased the photographic studio of R. M. Hardy. If application to business and the love of one's chosen profession count for anything in reaching the goal of success, Mr. Zamsky ought to be highly rewarded along that line, for he is a thorough artist and brings to his work unbounded enthusiasm.

He is a graduate of a college in Bohemia, a province of Czechoslovakia, and considers the educational system of that country much superior to that of the United States as far as accuracy is concerned. The discipline of the Bohemian schools is very strict. Many courses of study which are regarded as specials in schools of this country are there made compulsory, says Mr. Zamsky. For instance, whether a student has any natural ability as an artist or musician, before he can graduate from college in Bohemia he must master the technicalities of those subjects before being granted a diploma.

Mr. Zamsky came to the United States 20 years ago and saw service in the late World War. He does all kinds of photographic and kodak work, and all lines of finishing are completed in the Gresham studio.

Fred Todd Paints and Helps Fishermen

"Every man to his liking," is an old adage, and F. E. Todd is a good example among Gresham business men. He has a neat store on Powell street which reflects his tastes and abilities from the front windows to the back room.

He has three main lines of activity. In the order of his preference they probably are fishing, sign painting and wall papering. But in the order of urgency the fishing probably comes second or third.

However, Fred knows where the good fishing is to be found and the kind of bait and tackle most effective and he keeps a good supply.

But Fred is an artist with the brush. He paints 'em up right from floor to ceiling and isn't ashamed of his signs anywhere under the sun. If the walls don't look homelike he also knows how to dress them up to look better than any flapper, or he will tell you how to do it fairly well yourself if you prefer to try your hand with the wall paper he sells.

Fred is in such demand as a painter he is hardly ever at home, but Dr. R. H. Todd or Mrs. Todd, or Cecil Shelly can usually supply your needs.

LAND IS BEING CLEARED RAPIDLY

That there is an increasing amount of land being cleared this winter is indicated by the increased amount of Pyratol that is being used. Two carloads have been distributed by the county agent at Gresham already this fall. These cars contained 57,500 pounds of actual powder.

Orders are being taken now for the third car load. It is hoped that enough orders will be received to make up this car before Christmas, so delivery can be made during January. At the price of $7.65 per 100 pounds (two boxes) for this powder, the cost of land clearing is reduced and much labor can be saved by the use of an additional amount of powder.
