History of Battleship Oregon

The memorable trip of the battleship Oregon holds a perennial interest for all Americans who are old enough to remember the stirring days of 1898, and Oregonians especially take pride in the grey ghost of its former glory which lies in Portland harbor, the object of interest and almost reverence, which is visited daily by people who marvel at what was accomplished by this battleship, then the pride of the American navy.

The Outlook secured the following account of the Oregon's trip, through the courtesy of Charles W. Boylan, now employed on the battleship. A question asked of Col. Hiram U. Welch was referred to Mr. Boylan and elicited the story.

"We were just coming out of the dry dock at Bremerton, Washington, February 16, 1898, when we received the news of the sinking of the Maine. What a stir it made, for we nearly all had friends among the crew of that ill-fated vessel. Repairs were speeded up, supplies quickly loaded and very shortly we left for San Francisco. Here, Captain Chas. E. Clark joined the ship and assumed command. Working night and day we took on 1600 tons of coal and 500 tons of ammunition and sailed fom San Francisco on March 19th. With our coal, ammunition and big guns we had a displacement of 12,000 tons which was no small weight to be driven through the ocean under forced draft. Our first stop after leaving San Francisco was Callao, Peru, 4000 miles, which we made in the remarkable time of 16 days. At Callao, we took on 1100 tons of coal, for it must be remembered that these were the days before oil was used as fuel.

"The Peruvians were very much worked up about the prospect of our war with Spain and a strict guard was maintained to avoid a repetition of the Maine disaster. They were very curious as to just what time we would depart. Fortune favored us, for one night shortly after coaling, when a heavy fog drifted in at sundown, we slipped out into the night. No doubt the Peruvians considered this another "Yankee trick" when they looked for us in vain the next morning. From Callao we proceeded south. The terrific heat below decks was almost unbearable to men raised in northern latitudes and nearly everyone lived on deck.

"We passed through the Straits of Magellan in 11 hours making 15½ knots per hour in those storm tossed waters which would be considered a record even in these days of big ships. Just about 4 p. m. and almost dark we sighted the little town of Punta Arenas, the most southerly town in South America. They believed that war had broken out between Argentine and Chile and having no cable communication with the outside world were very much alarmed. During the time we were in South American waters we were always on guard against a terrible battleship owned by Spain but later on it turned out to be a very inferior cruiser which was terrible only in name. The good people of Punta Arenas were very friendly and clearly showed their sympathy for the United States but we soon left and after a quick run up the east coast arrived at Rio on April 30th at 4 p. m. Here we met the cruisers 'Marietta' and 'Nichtheroy', afterwards called the 'Buffalo'. Our captain received sealed orders telling him how to proceed. Here also was received the news of Dewey's great victory in Manilla Bay. After leaving Rio we had to drop the two cruisers 'Nichtheroy' and 'Marietta' as they were too slow and kept us back.

"On May 8th at 8 p. m. we arrived at Bahia, Brazil, and here the port captain objected very vigorously to our entering the harbor, fearing reprisals from the Spanish fleet should it be known that we had been there. Here Captain Clark pulled a real 'Yankee trick', for pleading for 48 hours to repair his engines he quickly changed the color of the battleship from a brilliant white to the dull grey of war service, and the next day sailed for the Barbadoes which we reached on May 18th at 4 p. m. From the Barbadoes we sailed north to Jupiter Inlet, Florida, where we coaled and our captain wired to the secretary of the navy as follows: 'The Oregon is here and awaits orders'. We then knew that the run to Jupiter Inlet was a stragetic move to give the Spanish fleet through their spies, the impression that we had proceeded north. We were then ordered to proceed south to Key West, Florida, which we reached on May 26th.

"What followed after leaving Key West is a matter of history. On June first in the early hours of the morning we shot our first shell at Moro Castle, Santiago de Cuba, and from that time until the memorable day of July 3d, when the Spanish fleet was wiped out of existence, we were constantly firing at some of the Spanish fortifications.

"In making this trip, the battleship traveled 14,000 miles in 68 days which even today is considered a wonderful record. She was called a hand-built ship because every rivet in her was driven by hand. The record of this ship taught the skeptics of Europe this lesson—that a heavy battleship of the Oregon class can cruise with safety under all conditions."

STRAWBERRY WEEVIL BEGINNING TO APPEAR

In checking over the strawberry and raspberry fields in various parts of the county it is found that there is a considerable variation in the time of appearance of the adult beetle. On the lighter gravel soils west of Gresham and in the Rockwood and Russellville and Lents districts, about one-half of the weevils have changed to the adult form and are on top of the ground. In these cases it is time to apply the bait for the first application now, says S. B. Hall, county agricultural agent.

In the higher elevation and on the heavier soils immediately around Gresham, and east and south of Gresham, and in the Corbett district they are a little slower in emerging.

Preparations should be made to apply the weevil bait about the middle of next week. On farms, or in areas where the weevils are present, it is advisable to bait all of the strawberry, raspberry and loganberry plantings. A great deal of the injuries to the raspberries and loganberries are traceable to the work of the strawberry root weevil.

The use of the weevil bait gun greatly reduces the labor in applying the bait.

Further announcement will be made in the next issue of this paper.

RECITAL GIVEN BY PIANO PUPILS

An interesting recital was given by the pupils of Miss Frieda Bratzel at her studio on June 8, which was enjoyed by 45 persons, including pupils, parents and friends. This ended the happy association of teacher and pupils, and many expressed their appreciation of the work done, the progress made by the pupils and regret at the going away of Miss Bratzel.

The theme of the program was spring. Selections from three composers, Schuman, Grieg and Mendelssohn were given, revealing each artist's idea of spring. The program presented an excursion on a lovely spring day over meadow, through the wood and by the sea, every piece expressing an event in the excursion.

The pupils taking part were Ruth and Franz Olbrich, Margaret Kerslake, Anna Louise and Julia Larsen, Jane Harlow, Thelma Davies, Audrey Chapman, Fern Jennings, Vernon and Lois Kelly, Athaline Radford, Mrs. Walter Metzler, Vera Stone, Adele Vicklund and Laura Todd. Gertrude Ruhlin was unable to attend on account of illness.

Miss Bratzel left the same evening for her new position in Hebron, North Dakota. She will be greatly missed by those with whom she has been closely associated, who have learned to know her sterling worth.

SCHOOL DISTRICT TO ELECT DIRECTOR

An election will be held at the high school on Monday, June 27, from 2 to 7 p. m. for the purpose of electing a director for a five-year term in the place of G. A. Noreen, whose term expires at this time.

The contracts have now all been closed with the teachers comprising the faculty of Gresham Union high school for the coming year. They are Miriam Inglis, Mildred Wallace, Henryetta A. Lawrence, Marjorie Machen, Alice Prindle, Melba Sanders, Ulala Stratton, Augusta Hahn, Eva Kirby, Clarence C. Ownbey, Charles Saverude, W. R. Shattuck, Dorsey E. Dent, C. W. Kruger, W. K. Gowen, Lyle Mason and Edward B. Starkey.

It will be noted that there is an increased number of gentlemen on the high school faculty for the coming year over previous years. Exactly one half of the instructors, including the principal, are gentlemen. It has been found advantageous to employ men teachers, as they are available for drivers on the various school busses, and this from the standpoint of discipline alone, would justify the departure, it was explained.

BIDS WANTED.

Sealed bids are asked on the construction of an addition to the Hillsview schoolhouse, District No. 312, Clackamas county, (No. 83, Jt., Multnomah county). Specifications will be shown by the district clerk. A certified check for 5 per cent of the amount must accompany all bids. Bids must be in the hands of the clerk by 6 p. m., Friday, June 17.
