OPEN AIR CONCERT ENJOYED BY MANY

A splendid attendance greeted the first appearance of the Gresham band in the summer series of open air concerts to be given in the 1927 season, held Wednesday evening at the fair grounds entrance. The 14 numbers on the program drew forth a storm of applause in the form of automobile honks, as the majority of the audience was seated in autos parked in a semi-circle around the band stand area.

Although the mosquitoes strummed a lively obligato during the evening, the band boys managed to drown out their noise and those present put up with their inconvenience in order to enjoy the excellent music. Mosquitoes are an unusual adjunct of a western Oregon summer and are exceedingly troublesome this year. The open air concerts are scheduled as a regular feature of each Wednesday evening throughout the summer at the entrance to the Multnomah county fair grounds on Main street and are entirely free to the public.
