FATHER ACQUITTED HIS SON CONVICTED

Deputy District Attorney George La Roche conducted the hearing in justice court at the city hall yesterday afternoon in which John Homan, a Lusted farmer, was the complaining witness for the state in the criminal case of Homan vs. Hossner, Jacob Hossner and his son Walter being made defendants in the assault and battery charge preferred by Homan. After more than three hours of detailed testimony, in which both sides produced a number of witnesses to support their contentions, the jury of six consisting of George Kenney, George Leslie, James Jennings, Swea Ackley, Pat Collins and G. H. Waite returned separate verdicts in which Jacob Hossner was acquitted, and Walter Hossner convicted and given a fine of $35 by Justice O. A. Eastman. Young Hossner will appeal his case. He was granted his liberty on $250 bail.

This case apparently has grown out of one of those long-standing and deep-seated feuds which loses no opportunity to seize on the slightest pretext for its renewal. Mr. Homan made the charge that the elder Hossner threw some pieces of wood into his berry patch. On the day of the trouble, July 20, Homan demanded the removal of this wood, whereupon blows ensued on both sides, the two elderly men plainly showing the results of the fist encounter of that day. Later the younger Hossner went to the Homan residence with the obvious intention of starting trouble and a second fight resulted.

Ashby Dixon, former circuit judge, represented the Hossners in the defense. The case attracted a number of lookers-on besides the witnesses who had been subpoenaed for the occasion. Miss Rosella Inglehart, private secretary at the First State bank, took the evidence in shorthand for the counsel of both sides.

Health Workers Optimistic.

In a recent statement made by the Multnomah County Public Health association relative to the general standing of the organization the sentiment of appreciation is expressed toward the executive board and members for the interest shown and the helpfulness rendered.

The annual meeting in June was the best attended and the most gratifying in the history of the association and is proving an inspiration for working toward an adequate health service for Multnomah county.

The association hopes this year to furnish ways and means for corrective dental service, provide a summer camp for malnourished girls and boys, conduct baby clinics, give preventive treatment for diphtheria and do such social and nursing service as is necessary to further health programs.

Arrangements have been made to return membership dues to districts where there is an organized health group and these may be used for health work in that particular district. The association hopes to double its membership this year.

KLAMATH INDIANS HELPED BY CLINIC

The Indians of Klamath Reservation are taking full advantage of the new hospital at the agency where the National and State Tuberculosis association recently completed a health survey. Miss L. Grace Holmes, statistician for the Oregon Tuberculosis association, who returned to Portland recently, reports that 20 Indians, mostly children came to the hospital for tonsil operations, and five for preliminary trachoma operations. Dr. Collard, the trachoma specialist who remained at the reservation after the survey closed, performed a series of tracheotomies. This is the final operation for trachoma and consists of removing the tarsal cartilage of the eye. A high percentage of permanent cures result from such operations.

Miss Holmes reports that 28 cases of tuberculosis and five suspected cases were found by the chest specialists, Dr. G. C. Bellinger, Dr. Harold C. Bean, Dr. E. A. Pierce, and Dr. Paul Woerner. Several of these were already on record with the state board of health and at least two had been treated at the Portland Open Air sanatorium where the disease had been recorded as arrested cases. Three young Indian boys were found in the last stages of tuberculosis. Two of these have died since the clinic closed. Thirty-four Indians out of the 463 examined were found to have trachoma. Removal of tonsils was recommended in 63 cases.

MUSSEL POISONING TO BE AVOIDED

The outbreak of mussel poisoning in California should serve as a warning to avoid shellfish taken from polluted waters.

Mussel poisoning is a comparatively rare occurrence. Sixty-one cases were reported in Great Britain from 1827 to 1909, eight of which were fatal. Figures are not available for this country, but they probably do not exceed those of Great Britain.

Judging from the symptoms there are three kinds of poisonous mussels. In one form there is nausea, vomiting, pain in stomach, griping and rapid pulse. The symptoms of the most frequent form are more purely nervous. A sensation of heat and itching appears, usually in the eyelids, soon involving the whole face and perhaps a larger part of the body. An eruption called nettle rash may occur. Such cases are unquestionably an instance of food sensitization. The symptoms of the third form are intoxication followed by paralysis, coma, and death.

Many theories have been advanced to account for poisonous mussels. It was at one time believed to be due to copper, but on analysis no copper was found and copper does not produce these symptoms. The theory that there is a poisonous specie has been abandoned since it has been shown that edible mussels may become poisonous when left in filthy water 14 days or more, and on the other hand poisonous ones may become fit for food if kept four weeks in good water.

The prevention of mussel poisoning depends primarily upon the control of sewage pollution of waters in which the mussels grow. Many popular rules have been formulated for the easy recognition of poisonous mussels, but they have been based on fancy rather than fact. In spite of the difference between healthy and poisonous mussels there is no ready means by which one can tell whether or not they are toxic. Cooking does not render them safe. All kinds of shellfish taken from polluted waters should be avoided.

In order to protect the public the Oregon state board of health has cooperated with the United States public health service and adopted rules and regulations governing the gathering and handling of shellfish. Copies will be forwarded to those who are interested.

EDITOR IS PAUPER ACCORDING TO OATH

A. E. Hill, editor of the Montavilla Times, was released from the county jail upon order of Judge Rossman, after he had taken a pauper's oath to avoid the payment of a judgment.

Several months ago Hill conducted a subscription campaign, offering as a grand prize an automobile, which was won by Mrs. J. W. Galloway, 2143 East Hassalo street, Portland. After being awarded the car the sales agency repossessed it, and Mrs. Galloway sued the editor for fraud and obtained a judgment of $605. The judgment was not paid and Mrs. Galloway caused Hill to go to jail for ten days.

Editor Hill was well known in Gresham, where he was a member of the Outlook force for several years.

HUBERT WHITNEY DIES AT MYRTLE POINT

Hubert Whitney, a former resident of the Rockwood district, passed away at his home at Myrtle Point on Sunday, July 17, age 56 years. Funeral services were held at Myrtle Point on Monday following, and interment was at Banks on Wednesday.

The Whitney family lived at the Section Line and Rockwood roads for nine years, leaving here in 1916 for Myrtle Point, where the family home has been since then. Mrs. Whitney died about five years ago. Mr. Whitney had been ill for the past two years. Three children survive, Willard, Emerson and Marian, the latter 10 years old. Other survivors are his mother, Mrs. Martha Whitney of Portland, Mrs. John A. Thornburgh of Forest Grove and Mrs. Gertie VanDyke of Portland, sisters, also Harry Whitney of Klamath Falls, a brother.

Do You Know?

Questions and Answers by M. O. Nelson.

ANSWERS.

1. A tree shelter belt on level land will shelter from wind one rod of crop for every foot in height of the trees.

2. "Guy" is a term applied to a person ridiculously dressed. Its origin is in the history of the Gunpowder Plot, whereby in 1603, a conspiracy was formed to blow up the house of parliament and King James. The chief conspirator was Guy Fawkes. Thereafter for many years on November 5 the English people celebrated the day of the discovery of the plot by dressing up an effigy of Guy Fawkes and burning it. For short this effigy was called a "Guy", and from this came the legitimate use of the term, and also the slang term which is loosely and sloppily applied to any male person.

3. Americans eat an average of more than 100 pounds of sugar per capita annually, which is three times as much as the average European eats, and is more than that is consumed by any other people.

4. Commercial bakers bake more than half the bread used in American cities. In Portland 65 per cent of the bread eaten is thus baked; and in New York and Los Angeles, 99 per cent.

5. Camphor is obtained by distillation of the wood and bark of the camphor tree which grows mostly in the Pacific islands. There are now 50 acres of camphor trees growing in this country. On the Pacific Coast are four factories making furniture and finish from camphor tree wood brought from the Philippines and from Borneo.

6. There are but about 600 North Americans living in Chile. A government draughtsman while tracing the coast line of Alaska made the notation "name?" at an unnamed cape, writing the "a" like an "o". By error the notation was printed as the actual name of the cape.

7. A small tribe of monkeys has for many years lived on the Rock of Gibraltar. These are said to be the only monkeys living wild in Europe.

JUDGE MORROW GIVES MOONSHINER 3 YEARS

To prove that prohibition really prohibits and is no longer the experiment its foes would like to believe it is, a moonshiner, Howard Coffman by name, recently got the jolt of his young life when he was sentenced to three years in the state penitentiary following his plea of guilty to the charge of operating a still.

Coffman was arrested on July 11 by Deputy Sheriff Beeman's liquor squad at 7694, 57th avenue southeast. The prisoner evidently thought he might escape with a minor sentence by throwing himself on the mercy of the court, but Judge Morrow was not in a playful mood and tacked on the little 3-year sentence.

Paddy Lynch and Jack Paisley, who were arrested in the same raid, pleaded not guilty and are awaiting trial. The officers found a 75-gallon still in operation on the place, together with 600 gallons of mash and 30 gallons of finished product.

Liquor Found in Chocolates.

Francis E. Marsh, assistant United States attorney, yesterday filed libel proceedings against 160 cartons of chocolates, each carton containing 30 individual Cennials, alleging that they were adulterated since they contained "spirituous liquor," to use his words, in violation of the pure foods act of 1906. Some had already been sold to dealers.
