

"We" Covered by Insurance

Map Shows Route of Lindbergh's Three-Month's Cruise Over Forty-eight States and Seventy-five Cities

NEW YORK—Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh may be one of the most daring aviators in the world, but that does not mean that he is not also one of the most careful and conservative. For, according to Harold Guggenheim, President of the Daniel Guggenheim Fund for the Promotion of Aeronautics, Inc., under the auspices of which "Lindy" is making a three-months flight into every State in the Union, the Colonel and his plane have been completely covered by insurance.

Four policies aggregating $150,000 have been written. The Independence Companies of Philadelphia issued three policies, insuring the plane for $15,000 against destruction by fire, $10,000 for property damage and from $10,000 to $100,000 against public liability. The life of the Colonel has been insured by the United States Life Insurance Company in favor of his mother for $25,000.

Thus "We" have been entirely covered, except against theft. Airplanes can, of course, be stolen, but the risk of separating the flying Colonel from his machine even in the big crowds which are receiving him on his all-American tour, was considered rather remote.
