PROFIT IN FAIRS.

The Oregon Journal, editorially referring to the fact that the Lane county fair had this year a deficit of $1500, explains that ordinarily the state would have contributed $2500 to the fair but this year it was withheld. This would have saved the fair from debt.

The Eugene Guard is referred to as expressing doubt if the county court will make up the deficit and consider the fair worth continuing.

The Journal thinks Lane county is ahead of the game and comments as follows:

"If it has held an exposition of its agricultural and industrial products; if its boys and girls have displayed prize-taking pigs, chickens and cakes, and if it has permitted the showing of fine livestock at the expense of a deficit of only $1500, its profit must be large.

"If a merchant sought to charge the expense of his show windows against sales made in the windows, he, too, would confess a deficit. But he is interested in the people who stop to look. He has an eye for the people who come through the door. He watches the sales back in the store.

"And he never suggests that because they do not show a direct profit the show windows should be turned into blank walls."

The Multnomah county fair is in the same boat. Almost the same things can be said of it. The board tried to keep up the premium offers to the former amounts though short the state apportionment of $2500. It was hoped the amount could be made up from the gate receipts. In this the fair was disappointed. It was necessary to draw from the general receipts to pay premiums and this left the fair short.

A hard struggle is being made to clear up the two or three thousand dollars deficit and it is believed it will be cleared up when the board succeeds in collecting outstanding accounts owing to the fair. Recently an appropriation of about 25 per cent was made on debts which was the limit of the fair's ability to pay at present. It is promised that future apportionments will be made as possible.

The annual meeting of stockholders of the fair association will be held next week, Thursday evening, October 6, at which time a full financial report will be presented.

MOTORISTS SHOULD AFFILIATE.

The Oregon State Motor association, affiliated with the A. A. A., is one of the best assets the motorists of the state have. It guards their interests, renders assistance and encourages highway development and protection. Yet with around 130,000 car owners in Oregon only 6000 are members of the state motor association. California, of course, has a much larger population, and so does Washington, but California has two motor associations (divided sectionally) with a total membership of 205,000 and Washington has 18,000 members.

Why is this lagging in membership in Oregon?

Perhaps it is because Oregon through its highway commission has done more proportionately for its motorists than any other state and the motorists don't realize the influence the motor association has had and is having in bringing about many of the advantages Oregon motorists enjoy.

The cost of membership is merely nominal. The direct benefits are well worth the membership and the indirect benefits are worth many times the cost.

The general manager of the national automobile association said recently in a public address in Portland that Oregon had the best highways of any state in the union.

C. C. Chapman, editor of the Oregon Voter, who with his wife recently motored generally over a half dozen western states and has been all over Washington and California, and is a close observer and careful student of civic and economic conditions, has this to say of Oregon highways:

"In Oregon we are singularly blessed, not only by climatic advantage and scenic grandeur, but in having had a state highway program carried out by a commission composed of our upstanding, patriotic business men—men who had courage, vision, integrity and practical ability, who because of their established reputations enjoyed public confidence, and were granted the means and employed the methods which resulted in our having today a highway system of better roads, more mileage and better maintenance than any other western state except California—and, population and wealth considered, far superior to California."

Gresham Boy Pledged.

Dale Altman, a former student at Gresham Union high school, has been pledged to Tau Kappa Epsilon, national social fraternity at Oregon Agricultural college. With the first days of rushing over, more than 300 students have been pledged to some house. Due to lack of adequate dormitory facilities, pledging partially solves the campus housing problem at the college. Over 900 students live in fraternity houses, while the remainder live in private homes and the old re-vamped war barracks. Last year from statistics available at the college, it was shown that fraternally men ranked higher scholastically than the general student body, making an average of 84.92 as compared with 82.40 for the entire school.

PLEASANT HOME
