Published every Tuesday and Friday at Gresham, Oregon, by the Outlook Publishing Co., H. L. St. Clair, Editor and Manager.

One year, $2.00, six months, $1.10, three months, 60c. Combination rates with all the Portland Dailies.

Entered as second-class matter March 3, 1911, at the Postoffice at Gresham, Oregon, under the Act of March 3, 1879.

Hoover is just about elected so far as Oregon is concerned. His campaign is being organized and will go over big. It is said by careful students of the political situation that Hoover may be the only presidential candidate named on either the republican or democratic preferential ballot in Oregon.

Such craziness. We're crazy, say the Hickman family, according to reports of the trend of testimony in depositions presented by the defense in the insanity hearing of Hickman in the Los Angeles court.

We're crazy, too, if we as a people let such representations excuse so wary a youth as Hickman in committing the crimes charged against him. He was just criminally minded. Of course, some of his parents or ancestors were "peculiar" and most any of us could find the same conditions existing.

Next Friday Thrift Day. Have you a habit of saving? Are you saving all you can? Are you investing your savings so as to make a reasonably sure gain?

These and other things are involved in the idea of Thrift. As next Friday is Thrift Day in Gresham it is a good idea to think over the above questions.

As it applies to dealings with the merchants thrift means the prompt payment of bills, or buying for cash, buying wisely the foods that build health and strength.

Thrift means for all reasonable savings and conservation of resources of time, money and material.

Only one day is set apart to emphasize this idea of thrift but it should become the habit of a lifetime.

Thrift on the part of individuals will make a community thrifty, a state thrifty, a nation thrifty which means safety and success for a people.

The next ten years. The region of greatest growth during the next decade will be the Pacific coast, says Roger Babson.

Commenting on this prediction by one of the best informed students of economic conditions in this country the Pacific Stationer reviews the past 21 years growth in the western coast states and shows by inference how near correct Roger Babson may be.

Twenty years ago, approximately San Francisco was starting to recover from one of the greatest disasters in this country. Los Angeles was an overgrown country town. Oakland was scarcely more than a village. Denver was a sleepy cattle town. Seattle and Portland were just awakening to possibilities of metropolitan growth.

At that time the population of California was around a million and a half. Washington was about half that number and Oregon a poor second to its northern neighbor.

Today, says the Stationer, San Francisco rises as one of the most queenly and beautiful cities of the world, with nearly a million and a half people grouped about the bay including Oakland. Oakland alone is bigger than San Francisco 21 years ago. Los Angeles is one of the five or six largest cities in the United States. Seattle and Portland are nearing the half-million mark.

California is conservatively estimated today at six million people. Oregon approaches the million mark. In ten years Portland will be nearing a million, perhaps double its present population, and Oregon ought to be nearing two million.

That seems big as an estimate but once the tide sets in, with improved methods of travel and the great Oregon country coming into its own, it is not outside the limit of possibilities and is worth thinking of and preparing for.

Sick or Well. An Electric Warming Pad will comfort you far more than the old hot water bottle. Light as a feather, soft, pliable and with a temperature range to suit any purpose. Safer by far than the hot water bottle. Get one during January for $1.55 down and $2 for two months. P. E. P. Electric store, Gresham.

Oriental Theater Is Marvel of Beauty

Beautiful beyond description, weird in oriental imagery and atmospheric throughout is the impression one gets of the new Tebbetts' Oriental theater, at Grand avenue at E. Morrison. A lure seems to take hold of one to linger in the comfort of this east Indian setting and revisit the scenes again and again. It is east Portland's magnificent playhouse and one of the finest on the coast.

Ten thousand Hindu devotees, in the sixth century, chiseled out of the rock the temple Angkor Vat, after which this theater is said to be fashioned.

A recent visit of six members of the Outlook force, who were shown throughout the building, left an impression that will be long remembered.

The interior architecture is remarkable in effect and the decorative painting shows a carefully designed scheme of coloring said to be taken from the beautifully painted temples of ancient days. The furnishings are magnificent. The furnishings are magnificent. The furnishings are magnificent.

When you enter this beautiful playhouse you can veritably breathe the oriental incense, for greeting you on both sides of the spacious lobby are two huge statues of the great Hindu leader—Buddha—seated in a prominent niche and place of honor. Upon the walls hang several gorgeous tapestries upon the panels of which are told the history of this mighty Hindu god. Nearing the ceiling are life-sized sacred elephants at various intervals—so impressive that one is almost inclined to pay them homage—as did the ancient worshippers.

Upon the beautifully colored frieze are many figures highly symbolical of East Indian life, such as the dancing girl, whose presence in the old temples was absolute; the swine and the dog, representing competition in life, and the monster seven-headed hydra, or serpent, symbolical of the seven cycles of creation.

Scattered about the lobby and the lounge room are dozens of almost priceless curios selected by Mr. Tebbetts on his recent world tour from the art centers of the world: Paris, Berlin, Vienna, New York, and East Indian cities. In a convenient nook in the lobby are two handsome walnut frames, 14 feet high, and 9 feet wide, upon which are hand carved animals of the jungle, such as lions, tigers and elephants. The frames incase heavy French mirrors and these together with the frames cost $2,000 each. At the sides of the mirrors are imported East Indian vases about four feet in height, which are exquisitely embellished with oriental life symbols.

Numerous davenport, also hand carved, beautifully upholstered with a basic color of yellow satin and handsome embroidered figures upon them are to be found in the lobby and lounge, as well as many nick-nacks that add a further mystical charm to the interior.

Family Policy Exists. The policy of the theater, said Mr. Tebbetts, will be first run pictures, by the best producers, showing for a week at a time. The finest symphony music, splendid stage attractions and prices that are family prices—25 cents in the afternoon, 35 cents for the evening, and 10 cents for children, which means that parents can attend Tebbetts Oriental theater for the price of one admission at the usual first run houses.

Provides Excellent Music. The Oriental symphony, which is second to none on the coast, is under the direction of Josef Srodka, the talented young symphony orchestra director, who recently resigned as first viola in the Portland symphony orchestra to accept the position at the Oriental.

At the console of the organ will be seated Glen Shelley, the well-known Portland organist, and former popular Franklin high school student.

High-class Entertainment. "The Gingham Girl," that started a week's run at Tebbetts' Oriental theater Saturday, Jan. 28, is a fine wholesome bit of comedy that will help to drive dull care away. It is a screen version of the big Broadway musical comedy that ran for more than a year on the street of bright lights four years ago. The stars are Lois Wilson and George K. Arthur, popular screen artists.

On the stage "Helen and Her Gang" will offer a refined atmospheric prologue with specialty numbers that are a treat, and the company of seven players that are to remain at the Oriental for an indefinite period are all players of ability and wide experience.

W. C. T. U. COLUMN

In an address by Mrs. M. Frances Swope, corresponding secretary of the state W. C. T. U., at the regular meeting of the union held Thursday at the home of Mrs. C. E. Risher, she urged the attendance of all women at the national conference to be held in Portland February 14 and 15. This conference, which will be conducted by Mrs. Ida Wise Smith, vice president of the national W. C. T. U., is one of 11 being held at various points in the United States during January and February.

The conference, which will be held at the First Methodist church, has prepared a program which is replete with interesting numbers. Mrs. Charles Carver Jr., chairman of the League of Women Voters, will speak at 11:30 on Tuesday, a forum to follow her address. On Tuesday afternoon addresses will be given by Mrs. Ida Wise Smith, Miss Edith Whiting president of East Washington W. C. T. U., R. E. Close secretary of the Anti-Saloon League, and Miss Helen L. Byrnes.

Mrs. Mary Mallett, honorary state president of the W. C. T. U., will preside at the evening session of the conference Tuesday, and at 7:45 Dr. Wilbert Dowson, pastor of First church, will speak.

Wednesday forenoon will be given over to various items of business, including several short addresses. At 11 o'clock Roy C. Lyle, prohibition commissioner of the 20th district, will speak on the problem of enforcement. At 12:15 luncheon will be served at the Portland hotel with Mrs. Ada Jolley, Oregon state president, as toastmistress. Miss Jane Spurlin, president of the Portland Federation of Women's clubs, and Gov. L. N. Patterson will be among the speakers at the noon luncheon.

Many fine musical numbers will intersperse the various addresses of the conference.

Mrs. Lulu Horning is state director of official papers and is hoping that the state unions will soon reach the quota set by the national W. C. T. U. At present they are in arrears to the number of 115.

At the local meeting held Thursday Miss Mand Aldrich, national director of the department of motion pictures, reported of the possibility of securing two moving picture films of an educational nature. The matter of securing these will be taken up by the state and local officials. The need of real aggressive educational work looking toward better enforcement of prohibition laws, and the electing of officials in sympathy with the 18th amendment, was emphasized by all speakers.

The Gresham union authorized its local director to challenge other unions of the state in a contest for subscribers to the "Union Signal" and "The Young Crusaders." The two unions selected are the Sunnyside of Portland for the "Union Signal" and the College Hill union of Corvallis. It is not yet known whether or not these unions will accept the challenge.
