Cleanup Workers Improve Cemetery

A creditable start was made on Friday in the cleaning up of the Gresham cemetery under the leadership of the American Legion auxiliary.

About 25 persons helped in the work during the day. In the forenoon and early afternoon representatives of pioneer families came and cleaned up their family lots.

The lunch was served in the basement of the Baptist church. The workers greatly appreciate the courtesy of the ladies of the church in allowing them the privilege of eating there.

The members of the fire department have volunteered to go with hose and fire appliances tomorrow evening and burn the accumulated rubbish, the result of the cleanup activities of last week.

Wednesday evening is the regular drill night for the firemen and it is thought their practice could be turned to account in this way.

There still remain some weeds, brush and ferns to be cut, so there is still need for scythes and workmen. It is thought by the ladies in charge of arrangements that tomorrow evening while some are burning the debris on hand, still others may engage in cutting the remaining and adding to the results of the cleanup.

At the close of the work tomorrow evening lunch will be served in the fire hall to those who assist in the work.

A new edition of the popular Oregon road and information map folder has just been received at the office of the district forester at Portland, Oregon.

This map shows main paved and gravel roads in red. Trunk highways, other automobile roads and secondary roads are also indicated on the map. National forests are shown in green, while recreation centers are located by means of red circles and numbered references to the printed description.

The text on the reverse of the map gives brief descriptions of the principal recreation features on each of the fourteen national forests in the state. A list of city and roadside automobile campgrounds is also included. There are several attractive forest photographs, a brief statement of national forest policy and purpose and some suggestions for forest travelers as to care with fire.

Copies of the map may be obtained from the district office library, located in the new postoffice building, Portland or from any of the fourteen forest supervisors in the state. The forest service makes no charge for these maps, simply

Hoover Declares for High Standards of Citizenship

Spiritual and Moral Development Necessary for Nation, Says Republican Nominee.

The incident recalled that a publisher of one of the national magazines heard Woodrow Wilson deliver a notable address several years before he became president.

The interest of Woodrow Wilson in the spiritual, intellectual and moral welfare of mankind was what attracted that publisher and later made him president.

A similar interest is reflected in Hoover's speech of acceptance. His keen analysis of the problems confronting the American people, coupled with his humanitarian interests, leaves no doubt in the minds of the millions who listened on the radio that he is the man of destiny, trained and best fitted to guide "the ship of state" for the coming four years.

The Morning Oregonian in a news article summarized Hoover's fitness for the presidency in the following language:

Herbert Hoover's deep-rooted Americanism, his masterly understanding of the problems of this nation and those of the nations of the world, his definite notions looking to the solution of domestic problems, his sound policy on farm relief, his broad-mindedness, his humanitarianism, his political acumen, his sincerity and high ideals, his fearless stand on prohibition, are among the virtues of the man who is the strongest presidential candidate who has been before the people for many years.

Mr. Hoover's masterful analysis of economic problems, coupled with his emphatic declaration that "successful democracy rests wholly on the moral and spiritual quality of its people," leaves no doubt that he is the man to keep the forces of progress well balanced.

His entire speech of acceptance, delivered at Palo Alto, California, in the large stadium holding over 70,000 people, and heard by millions over the radio, was characteristic of the thoroughness and masterful efficiency of the man. This efficiency he has proved in every occupation of his life and is certain to carry into the presidency of this great republic, if the people will.

The following selections from the acceptance speech of last Saturday will give the reader an insight into Hoover's mind on some of the important problems and policies that should enter into a choice of the next chief executive:

Economic advancement is not an end in itself. Successful democracy rests wholly upon the moral and spiritual quality of its people. Our growth in spiritual achievements must keep pace with our growth in physical accomplishments. Material prosperity and moral progress must march together if we would make the United States that commonwealth so grandly conceived by its founders.

Generosity of impulse, cultivation of mind, willingness to sacrifice, spaciousness of spirit—these are the qualities whereby America, growing bigger and richer and more powerful, may become America great and noble. A people of government to which these values are not real, because they are not tangible, is in peril. Size, wealth and power alone cannot fulfill the promise of America's opportunity.

American Children Aided We have doubled the use of electrical power and with it we have taken sweat from the backs of men. The purchasing power of wages has steadily increased. The hours of labor have been abolished. Great progress has been made in stabilization of commerce and industry.

Most of all, I like to remember what this progress has meant to America's children. The portal of their opportunity has been ever widening. While our population has grown but eight per cent we have increased by 11 per cent the number of children in our grade schools, by 66 per cent the number in our high schools and by 75 per cent the number in our institutions of higher learning.

people been selfish. They have met with a full hand—the most sacred obligation of man—charity. The gifts of America to churches, to hospitals and institutions for the care of the afflicted, and relief from disasters have surpassed by hundreds of millions any totals for similar periods in all human history.

For many years I have been associated with efforts to save life and health for our children. These experiences with millions of children, both at home and abroad, have left an indelible impression, that the greatness of any nation, its freedom from poverty and crime, its aspirations and ideals, are the direct quotient of the care of its children. Racial progress marches upon the feet of healthy and instructed children.

There should be no child in America who is not born and does not live under good conditions of health; that does not have full opportunity of education from the beginning to the end of our institutions; that is not free from injurious labor; that does not have every stimulation to accomplish the fullest of its capacities.

Agricultural Problem Discussed In my mind most agricultural discussions go wrong because of two false premises. The first is that agriculture is one industry. It is a dozen distinct industries incapable of the same organization.

There are many causes for failure of agriculture to what it is capable of. The first is the failure of agriculture to what it is capable of. The first is the failure of agriculture to what it is capable of.

Destructive Competition The increase in transportation rates since the war has greatly affected the price which the farmer receives for his products.

The whole tendency of our civilization during the last 50 years has been toward an increase in the size of units of production in order to secure lower cost and a more orderly adjustment of the flow of commodities to the demand.

Constructive Program Retarded Differences of opinion as to both causes and remedy have retarded the completion of a constructive program of relief.

GRANGES TO PLAN HARVEST FESTIVAL A meeting of all the grange committees on the harvest festival and field day to be held September 14, 15 and 16, on the fair grounds will be held in the agricultural building on the grounds tomorrow evening at 7:30.

The trip was made by way of McMinnville, Hebo, Tillamook, Seaside and Astoria. A stop of an hour was made at Tillamook for Miss Grace Welch who had been visiting with friends there for a week.

The Berry Growers Packing company is to be congratulated on the way they carried out this order to its successful completion.

DANGER SHOWN FROM TYPHOID CARRIERS From investigation carried on by the state board of health it is evident that persons who are supplied with safe water and milk are not thereby necessarily free from danger from typhoid, since persons apparently healthy may be carriers of the germs of the disease.

The following from the office of the state board will serve as a warning to the public: Several months ago there were reported from Warrenton, Oregon, eleven cases of typhoid fever.

A careful study of the epidemic showed that all were infected approximately within the same day. Further investigation brought out the fact that about two weeks previous to the outbreak a social was held at the house of one of the patients, each guest contributing some food for the meal.

Miss Mildred and Lucie Kummel, Quinton Kummel, Carl Arvidson, Mr. and Mrs. V. Hendrickson and children, with other guests from Portland, spent Sunday at Gresham, Ore., where a picnic dinner was enjoyed by the members of the Hoyer clan, relatives of Mrs. Kummel.

Marie Hamilton is visiting at Welches with Laura Todd, who is spending some time there with her grandmother, Mrs. R. H. Todd.

Lawrence Griffiths surprised his parents Sunday by arrived from San Francisco on a two-week furlough from his ship, the U. S. S. Tracey, then stationed at Mare Island naval base.

BIG BERRY ORDER FILLED IN QUICK TIME

From the office of the Berry Growers Packing company comes the account of an unusually speedy delivery of goods. On Tuesday of last week at 11 a. m. the cannery office received orders to deliver 950 cases of canned goods to an Atlantic-bound steamer which would sail that afternoon at 3 o'clock.

After this important procedure had been arranged, Mr. Fisher got in touch with Ted Wright who immediately placed five trucks at the disposal of the cannery. The loading of these began at 11:45 and they left shortly after 12 o'clock.

Several factors contributed to make this speedy movement possible. First might be mentioned the telephone, which is so common a convenience it is scarcely thought of. Next are the good roads, without which the work could not have been accomplished on time.

The Berry Growers Packing company is to be congratulated on the way they carried out this order to its successful completion.

SERIOUS DISEASE ATTACKS CATTLE The extremely fatal disease, hemorrhagic septicemia, which was so prevalent in this locality two years ago, has again made its dread appearance and has already caused a loss of around a dozen cattle.

The disease, which is thought to be spread by means of birds, dogs or other animals, is one of the most dreaded and most fatal of any disease known in the animal kingdom, according to Dr. H. C. Johnson, well known veterinarian of Gresham.

Vaccination is considered of avail, according to Dr. Johnson, unless administered while the cattle are in good health. The state veterinarian advises vaccination as the sole means of combating the disease.

The communities in which the disease has made its appearance are Troutdale, Corbett, Cottrell, Pleasant Home, Dodge Park, Sandy and Lent.

Auto Races, Airplane Stunts Labor Day Portland and vicinity is scheduled for one of the biggest and most spectacular outdoor attractions that has ever been staged here.
