POLITICAL PROPAGANDA.

We hear some strange things these days. Perhaps it has always been so during presidential campaigns. Indeed, some of the small talk seems to us to border on blind partisanship rather than upon ordinary good sense.

LITERARY DIGEST WILL TAKE STRAW VOTE.

The Literary Digest has announced the undertaking of a straw vote to determine who will be the next president. A similar vote was taken four years ago and the results were strikingly accurate.

The opening paragraph announcing the straw vote is interesting and when combined with the emphasis placed upon the prohibition issue in the following paragraph it should receive serious consideration by every American citizen.

"The big question before the country today is: Who will be the next president? and the answer is fraught with significance not only to the millions of our own time but to the unborn millions of the future who will inherit the America we are building for them.

UNTIMELY DEATH OF "HAPPY" HORSTMAN.

Friends of Erwin "Happy" Horstman were shocked to read in the daily papers of the accident on the race track at Yakima September 10 which caused his death.

Louise Ann LaBelle, who was to have been Horstman's bride the following day and who accompanied him as his nurse on his run, witnessed the tragedy.

New things under "Classified."
