LEST WE FORGET.

To some of us who have passed through the epoch of putting the saloons out of business and have witnessed the degradation of the home through alcoholism and the dawning of the better era, it seems strange—almost unbelievable—that prohibition is the major presidential issue.

It was the morale of those interested in the welfare of humanity that brought about the 18th amendment to the constitution and we confidently believe that the morale will never tolerate a man in the presidential chair who personally recommends a return to state local option or to any plan which will tolerate or authorize the sale of intoxicating beverages.

We confidently believe that the old warriors against the saloon welcome the issue and that the people of the leading democracy of the world will, in November, serve notice through their vote to the world that there will be no compromise with the liquor business.

"God be with us yet, Lest we forget, lest we forget."

SENATOR JONES IN ACTION.

The wheel-horse pulls a good load. Republican leaders will receive with satisfaction the announcement that Wesley L. Jones, United States senator from Washington, has fully recovered from his recent illness, and is now ready to throw himself into the Hoover-Curtis campaign with characteristic vigor.

Senator Jones is a good republican, is chairman of the important commerce committee of the senate, whip of the senate, and extremely influential both in the capital and in Washington state. He is interested in all legislation, but he pays particular attention to shipping, and he was an active worker for Mississippi flood control.

Political Side Lights

(W. W. Williams) Smith Says McNary-Haugen Bill O. K.

In his speech at Omaha Smith says that he will, if elected, recommend that the McNary-Haugen bill be enacted into law as a means of taking care of the surplus farm products. This bill has been vetoed twice and the last bill was declared unconstitutional by the attorney-general.

It was a non-partisan bill, supported by both democrats and republicans. President Coolidge in his message to congress outlined to them the necessity of establishing a law which would give aid to the farmer. He presented to congress his recommendations and what would be acceptable to him. Notwithstanding these recommendations the bill which was presented to him for his signature contained the same objectionable features which the first bill contained and which he had specifically declared as undesirable and uneconomic.

The Budget and Accounting Bill.

United States is the last great nation to adopt a budget system. The older nations have employed the budget system of balancing the departmental expenses and making reports for appropriations for many centuries. In this country each individual department of the bureau of government made its own estimate and reports as to the needs of the coming year or fiscal period. During the war the increasing expense and extravagance led to the enactment of a budget and accounting bill which was submitted to congress and passed.

Prohibition Enforcement.

We have heard much concerning the lack of enforcement of prohibition. It is natural that the "out" party would accuse the "in" party of neglect, inefficiency, or lack of desire to enforce.

The "out" party is using its prerogatives and even going a little farther. "Give us a chance," says Smith. In the same breath the democratic party is lauded for its past performances.

Let us take the records and see what their performances have been in reference to prohibition and its enforcement. President Wilson vetoed the Volstead Act and about the same time he vetoed a bill to place the officers and field workers of prohibition under the civil service.

An era of corruption ensued. The spoils system and the prohibition enforcement was the result. Frequently the most inefficient, and even the ex-convict, were appointed to official positions to enforce the prohibition amendment. Corruption, violation of law, bribery were the natural consequences.

The republican party inherited this condition which was projected by the democratic party. The spoils system with its patronage was accepted by politicians and they were not slow to see the opportunity. The result has been one of the darkest and most disgraceful periods in our national history.

April 1, 1927, the prohibition enforcement officers and field workers were brought under the civil service rules. James Dorand was appointed commissioner of prohibition and Mabel Walker Willebrandt and the assistant attorney-general were placed in charge of the enforcement of the new regime. The United States is divided into districts and officers under the civil service rule have been established.

It is too early to note any great changes but it is a step in the right direction and it will produce good results.

Deflation Verses Decrease in Values.

Deflation follows inflation and boom prices. During the war farm land in the central west doubled in price but not in value. A large number of sales were made and bankers loaned money unwisely. After the war the deflation occurred, prices came down, banks failed, mortgages were foreclosed and many farmers were obliged to lose their holdings, a natural economic process.

However, Governor Smith sees a potent argument for his party. Of course like many other things over which there is no party control he attributes this deflation to the republican party. It might be better if he would analyze the cause of inflation.

It occurred during the democratic administration. It would be far more logical to blame the cause of the inflation rather than a natural economic law. It is a simple law that operates universally. If land is too high and the interest on the money invested is too great, decreasing prices will result. It does not occur all at once but takes time for adjustment like other large economic principles. It has not reached the lowest point of deflation. When it does the farmer will be on a better basis.

ORCHESTRA GIVES DATES OF CONCERTS

For the first time the Portland Symphony orchestra is making known in advance the exact dates upon which the orchestra's concerts during the season will fall. As was announced some time ago, the orchestra is to present two series of concerts during the coming season: Ten Monday evening symphony concerts, and seven matinee popular concerts, three of which are to come on Saturday morning and four on Monday afternoons.

The complete schedule of dates for the Monday evening series follows: October 22, opening concert; November 19, with Guy Maier and Lee Pattison, pianists; December 3, with Hans Kindler, violinist; December 17, January 7, with Efrim Zimbalist, violinist; January 21, February 4, with Barbara Lull, violinist; February 18, March 4, and March 18.

The matinee popular concerts will be given on these dates: Monday afternoon, November 5; Monday afternoon, December 10; Saturday morning, December 29; Monday afternoon, January 28; Saturday morning, February 9; Saturday morning, February 23, and Monday afternoon, March 11.

The Symphony society will issue tickets this season in booklets of scrip. By this method all season subscribers will have their entire allotment of tickets before the opening concert. This system has come into general practice throughout the country, and has served to lessen rather than to increase the confusion coming from mislaid tickets.
