MASQUERADE DANCE ATTENDED BY MANY

A number of persons were in costumes Friday evening at the Areme club masquerade dance. People from all classes and trades of life were depicted by the brilliantly arrayed men and women who were in costume.

Miss Florence Ryder and Robert Bromley of Portland received a large box of candy for being the best dressed character couple. They represented a Spanish dancing couple. Mrs. S. B. Hall, dressed as a quaint elderly lady of the early '90's, carrying her knitting, was presented with a box of silk hosiery for being considered the best individual character in mask.

The best comic couple honors went to Wilson Eastman and Mrs. Lloyd Anderson. The prize was another huge box of candy. Mr. Eastman's costume attracted much attention. It was made from copies of the Oregonian printed in 1913 printed on cloth. A. J. Baumer of Portland, dressed as a clown was the recipient of a box of silk hosiery, for being the best dressed comic individual.

TELEPHONE COMPANY INSTITUTES CHANGES

K. A. Miller has resigned his position as manager of the local exchange of the West Coast Telephone company and will devote his time to the conduct of his fire insurance and brokerage business.

The policy of the West Coast Telephone company is to operate all its exchanges through a local cashier under the direction of a district superintendent located in the center of each area.

Miss Mayme Hoss will have charge of the commercial department as local cashier and will move into the new telephone office today.

TEAMS JUDGE STOCK TO KEEP IN PRACTICE

The Multnomah County Livestock Judging team, accompanied by their county agent, W. H. Baillie, spent a day recently in Clackamas, Polk and Marion counties, judging livestock. This team, which is known as the Victory Cattle club, expects to compete in the judging contests in the Pacific International Livestock exposition held in Portland November 3-10, and has been making a few trips on judging excursions to keep in practice.

New Flower Shop to Open. Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Wilson of Flower Acres have built an attractive dwelling and store combined on the Sandy road east of Bairdsdale road. The building is finished in stone-tone stucco and trimmed in red. About the first of January an up-to-date flower shop will be opened. At present Mr. Wilson is conducting a sale of shrubs and perennials that is attracting attention. Chrysanthemums are shown in profusion.

Poultry Conference to Be Held Thursday

A general poultry meeting for this part of the state will be held in the Linnton community house Thursday, November 1, for poultrymen of Multnomah, Washington and Columbia counties. This will be a short course in poultry raising from 10 to 12 in the forenoon and from 1 to 4 in the afternoon. Dr. W. T. Johnson will speak on poultry diseases, and A. G. Lunn on breeding for egg production, feeding and managing layers. Other possible speakers and their subjects are E. J. Dixon, manager of the Pacific Cooperative Poultry Producers association, on "The Market Egg Situation in Oregon," and M. S. Shrock, on "The Poultry Business."

The seating capacity of the hall is about 350 and there are other available rooms for conference. A large crowd is expected.

Lunch will be served at noon at the community house under the auspices of the O. S. A. C., for which a charge will be made.

FORMER TEACHER HERE DIES IN PORTLAND

Friends of Mrs. Coy Woodard, a former teacher in the Gresham high school, were shocked to learn Sunday of her sudden death in Portland. Mrs. Woodard, who was an instructor in chemistry in North Pacific Dental college, suffered an attack of flu but continued at her work until pneumonia developed. She was taken to St. Vincent's hospital but succumbed quickly to the malady. Funeral services will be held Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock from Sunnyside Methodist Episcopal church in Portland. O. I. Neal of Gresham and J. N. Farris of Portland, a former Gresham resident, will be among the honorary pallbearers. The active pallbearers will be members of the faculty of North Pacific college.

Mrs. Woodard was born December, 1879, in Indiana. She attended higher institutions of learning in Indiana, and the University of California. She took degrees from the latter institution and from the University of Indiana. She was married to O. E. Woodard in 1908, came to Oregon and engaged in high school work in this state. She taught in the Gresham school at two different times, five years in all, leaving here in 1915. She was greatly beloved by her pupils and associates here and wherever she worked. She is survived by her widower, a daughter, Cloethel, who is a student at the University of Oregon; a son, Don Ernest, a high school student in Portland; also her mother, two brothers and other relatives.

COLUMBIA HEIGHTS

Mayor Rolph of San Francisco and his party were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Julius Meier last Saturday at Menucha, their country home here.

Mrs. Swanson, owner of Crown Point Chalet, gave a party in honor of her daughter Thelma's 16th birthday last Saturday evening, which was enjoyed by about 35 friends. The Chalet was beautifully decorated for the event. The party was a complete surprise to the young lady who had just arrived home after spending a few days in Portland. Dancing was much enjoyed by the young folks and at midnight a delicious banquet was served in the main dining room. At the head of the table was a large package which the young lady was requested to open. After cutting many strings and unwrapping much paper she finally reduced the package to the size of a walnut, which contained a beautiful diamond, the gift of Thelma's parents. She also received a substantial check from her father and a number of gifts from her friends. Mrs. Swanson proved to be a delightful hostess.

Mrs. Susan Harding, Mr. and Mrs. George Wilcox and Mrs. P. Andersen attended chapter last Friday at Parkrose when Troutdale chapter was entertained at the Parkrose temple. Dr. Webster, past grand patron of Oregon and Mrs. Webster, and several other distinguished persons were present and a most delightful evening was spent.

Mrs. Marie Morgan was host on Saturday evening to the members of Martha Washington chapter of O. E. S. at Chanticleer Inn.

Friday evening the Laundry association of Portland held its annual banquet at Chanticleer Inn. About 150 people enjoyed the dancing and supper.

Miss Anna Etling of Portland spent the week-end at the home of her parents here.

Mr. and Mrs. O. M. Plummer expect to take possession of their new home this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Swanson, who own the Swanson grocery store on the Sandy boulevard, and several other from Kansas were Sunday callers at Columbia View farm.

Mr. and Mrs. Mulkey spent the week-end with relatives in Portland.

HURLBURT

S. M. Davis' brother from Roseburg was a visitor at the Davis home Saturday and Sunday. Other visitors were Mr. and Mrs. Pay Davis and son Bobby, Mr. and Mrs. A. T. Nordin and son Everett and Ray Lasley.

Albert Henshaw of Astoria and his mother Mrs. Henshaw and Mr. Henshaw's son Gene were week-end visitors at the Henshaw and Morris Johnson homes.

Mrs. Mildred Ellis and Agnes Soderstrom spent the week-end with Mildred's cousin, Helen Ellis, of Portland.

Mrs. Berry Watts returned to her home Tuesday. She is much improved in health since her operation.

Ed. Wilson is in the Veterans hospital, recovering from a surgical operation.

Mrs. Laura Ross Samuelson from California, arrived Thursday to be near her mother Mrs. James Ross, who is at St. Vincent hospital.

Fred Lasley from Taft visited his daughters Mrs. Ed Wilson, Mrs. Claude Woodie and Mrs. Albert

Gresham Pastor Has Strenuous Summer

Rev. E. Horstmann, pastor of the Zion Evangelical church of Gresham, who recently returned from a 12-week speaking tour in the central part of the United States, says that he had a most enjoyable though strenuous trip. He traveled under the auspices of the mission board of Evangelical Synod and especially represented Home Mission work of the denomination in the Pacific Northwest.

Mr. Horstmann left Gresham on the 30th of July and after a few days with relatives at Pinedale, Wash., departed for Milwaukee, Wis., where he attended the Third Quadrennial National Missions conference where he was one of the speakers and served as secretary. At Milwaukee he also attended the Tenth National convention of the Evangelical League which was held in the public auditorium, the use of which was offered free by the city of Milwaukee. Other important functions attended and participated in were the Evangelical Leadership Training school at Elmhurst, Ill., with over 240 students in attendance; the Sunday school and Young People's League convention of the New York District at Dunkirk, N. Y., beautifully located on the shore of Lake Erie; the Seventh National Brotherhood convention at Indianapolis, Ind., where he was the principal speaker on Sunday evening. Other cities of importance visited were St. Louis, Cincinnati, Louisville, Cleveland, Detroit, Buffalo, Columbus, Dayton, Chicago and Omaha.

Among the chief enjoyments were a day at Niagara Falls, a class reunion at Indianapolis, several days at the Alma Mater visited for the first time since graduation 15 years ago, a week with relatives in Nebraska, a visit at the Ford automobile factory in Detroit, sight-seeing tours in the various cities, meeting old and making new friends.

Nearly 50 addresses were delivered, including those at national conventions and to the student bodies at Elmhurst college and Eden Seminary. Dozens of churches were visited and thousands of friends were made for home missions. The social and the official contacts were most pleasant, the weather was beautiful and the varying landscapes were interesting throughout the 9000-mile tour. On the return trip it was necessary to stop long enough at Spokane to conduct a funeral service and to baptize a child. The Pacific Northwest with its gorgeous and brilliant fall colorings bade the busy and weary traveler a welcome home.

Salzman, from Tuesday until Saturday.

Mrs. Lydia Ostrand is assisting Mr. Ross at Summit in the absence of Mrs. Ross.

The Dorcas society will meet with Mrs. Roy Emily Wednesday, October 31.

Columbia grange will hold its regular monthly meeting Saturday, November 3.

Complimenting Mrs. Nettie Kincaid and daughter, Mrs. P. D. Settlemeier, about 29 of their friends surprised them by gathering at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Chamberlain, Friday afternoon, where light refreshments were served and a pleasant afternoon spent in celebration of the two ladies' natal day.

Miss Dorris Graham of Portland visited her sister Mrs. Fred C. Reed over the week-end.

Mrs. Polk of Astoria was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Fred C. Reed from Monday until Thursday.

W. Harmon of Portland visited in the Lewis Reed home from Thursday until Sunday.

Harry Rickert and Francis Reed are salmon fishing near Bonneville.

Miss Evelyn Reed who is teaching near Silverton, was home Saturday and Sunday.

A GREAT EXPERIMENT.

"Prohibition was and is a great experiment—like democracy or Christianity. But, like these other experiments, it has been carried far enough to produce certain tangible results. These results do not prove that it is fully successful. They only prove that, practically speaking, it has justified its continuance."

With these words Stanley High, assistant secretary in the department of home cultivation of the board of foreign missions of the Methodist Episcopal church, concludes his argument on "Is Prohibition a Success?"

Mr. High has made extensive investigation of conditions in the United States and Canada, also in Europe, Russia and China. Among his recent books are China's Place in the Sun; The Revolt of Youth; Europe Turns the Corner; and Looking Ahead with Latin America.

EDITORIAL

A CHANCE TO VOTE "NO."

There's a fine magazine published in Portland, edited by C. C. Chapman, called the Oregon Voter. It is fearless, clear, incisive. It tells what's what about candidates and issues. It is broad, pleasantly charitable, well informed and aims to help the voter. Not all will agree with the Voter in all things but that's no reflection on the Voter. It gives to its readers week by week more meaty facts regarding candidates, measures, policies, taxation matters and civic and state affairs than any other publication of its size we know of. It is multum in parvo and, in its field, ne plus ultra.

The Voter is published to help the Oregon voter and the voters of Oregon are soon to have their innings, or outings, dependent on how they vote on November 6.

It is not often that Mr. Chapman has occasion to recommend as thorough a cleaning of the slate, as to measures, as he does in a recent issue. He says voters shouldn't vote No indiscriminately. They owe it to their consciences to vote intelligently. But those who cannot do their own thorough investigating should think over what Mr. Chapman says about the measures on this year's ballot. He says:

"This year the state ballot contains not one measure that possesses merit sufficient to command united support. Most of the measures are so ill-drawn that their enactment would do positive damage, some of it serious and on a large scale.

"Take the two Dunne bills—they are a threat against our state highway finances, and have been repudiated on their merits by their author.

"The grange income tax bill represents the sincere effort of a group to reform taxation, but it fails to solve the state's revenue predicament, does not affect the inequalities in property assessments and cannot raise adequate revenue in a state of small incomes such as Oregon is. Oregon cannot afford to be the one state on the Pacific coast to resort to this type of taxation.

"The four water and fish bills would close a fourth of the state to development; they are the poorest pieces of legislation in the batch, and threaten more real damage.

"The bill prohibiting an emergency clause on voted bills would deprive the legislature of power to dispose finally of any real emergency that might arise under any voted bill.

"Yes, this year affords an excellent opportunity to vote "No" on each measure, with the conviction that in each instance the vote is a sound and sensible vote."

NUTS FOR THE NUTS.

If you eat nuts, and you ought to, take this bit of advice: Eat Oregon nuts and crack your own—that is, those you buy if you don't grow them.

This bit of advice will appear timely if you read what Carroll D. Bush says in an article in the October issue of Better Fruit. After telling of the inroads many foreign products are making on those of the American farmer he turns to China, where he has traveled, and he says:

"In the back districts of China the population has found that it pays them to crack their walnuts, carry the meats by caravan to the seacoast and ship them to the United States. The cracking and picking out of the meat is done under conditions so filthy that only a person who has traveled through the country can picture them. The Chinaman lives by eating no food that has not been cooked and drinking no water that has not been boiled.

"These nut meats come to this country and we use them on sandwiches, cakes and candies. My children do not know what a nut sundae is. I have seen a little of China. I do not know of a confectionery that even tries to use only American nuts.

"In Portland our milk and cream supply is watched closely. Food handlers have to pass a health inspection. Cooked foods are safe but nuts are one food we eat raw, more especially those cheap nut meats from foreign countries. It seems impossible to insist upon inspection of the handlers of those meats in Turkey, Sicily, or China. We might however tell the public how clean American nuts are."

Kiwanis and Wives Feast and Fellowship

If any were skeptical as to the purpose and success of the Kiwanis club at its beginning in Gresham their doubts must have been dispelled at last night's fine meeting when almost 100 per cent of the membership attended with their wives, making in all about 80. There has rarely been a more pleasing occasion when so many substantial business and professional men and their mates gathered for a dinner and good fellowship. And it did not end with satisfying the inner man and pleasant conversation. There was singing to cheer, led by Leslie Walrad with Mrs. Walrad at the piano. A special number was Miss Augusta Hahn who renders sweet music on her own natural and well trained wind instrument. The dinner was most gratifying, served by one of the local church societies, as have been the others at the Monday night meetings so far.

The Kiwanians have a custom of calling each other by their first names which promotes friendliness and it has been a surprise to some to be familiarly called "Jim," "Harry," or even "Al," of whom there are several. Well, "Jim" (Martin) reported on the progress of a golf club of Kiwanians and proposed tournament; "Harry" (Holloway) reported on the medalion badges; "Bill" (Baillie) reported on the plans of the agricultural committee, and there were others.

The principal guest and speaker of the evening was "Jim" Palmer, a real Kiwanian and assistant secretary of the Portland Y. M. C. A., who gave an inspiring talk on the meaning of Kiwanism, basing his points on seven words suggested by the letters of the word Kiwanis. He said Kiwanis meant "We Build." In developing this thought he took the suggestive words, Knowledge, Inspiration, Work, Affability, Nobility, Integrity, Service.

Mr. Palmer introduced "Joe" Tebbitts, his associate, and in doing so made quite a hit by saying that after listening to Miss Hahn's whistling Joe said to him, How would you like to be her dog?

Mr. Baillie, in reporting for the agricultural committee, announced the committee planned to do active work in making Gresham a better and cleaner city, especially urging and helping people to make their home places more beautiful and attractive.

To this end a public meeting has been planned for next Thursday evening at the grade school as the opening move in a "better homes" campaign. On this occasion a series of slides will be used to show the improvements brought about by gardening, paint and clean-up days. These slides will be shown by Clayton Lewis of the Russellville nursery. McClarey, editor of Better Flowers, a Portland publication, will give an address.

The Kiwanians desire the cooperation of the P.-T. A., the American Legion and Auxiliary and other organizations and persons interested in improving conditions. The public is cordially invited to this meeting.
