Just now interest centers in our peach crop which will begin to move in carload lots next week. This, though, is a very small item as compared with all products of the Hermiston country. The third crop of alfalfa will soon be ready. Watermelons and cantaloupes are coming along rapidly with the early ones already on the market. Potatoes were never better nor more plentiful and car shipments have been necessary to take care of some of the surplus with the big end of the crop yet to be marketed. Shipments of hogs have become so common as to no longer call for more than passing notice. Through it all, however, winter and summer the dairy cow patiently adds her share to the upbuilding of the country—a share though little at a time, becomes a mighty ocean at the end of a year when several hundred cows are contributing their individual mite.

Once in awhile one sees an effort along certain lines where it is difficult to determine the true feeling which prompted it. Either of two things may be responsible. It may be an endeavor to be sarcastic, in which event it is a very poor imitation. Or it may be an honest attempt to be serious, and if so is equally ghastly. In either case the effort is pathetic and the perpetrator should be pitied rather than censured. A case in point was last week's Stanfield Standard.

We should accept the invitation of Kennewick and send a good exhibit of grapes to the carnival there in September. Such a spirit of friendly feeling is appreciated and there is no doubt that good would result to us, too. Then a party should be organized to attend the carnival. This courtesy would very likely be returned by a Kennewick delegation coming to our dairy show. People of that section have a friendly feeling for us and many would like to see our country.

There is some agitation toward placing on the ballot at the next city election the question of annexing Stanfield, a small municipality to the south of this city. There is plenty of argument both for and against such a proposition. While it is admitted that Hermiston might gain slightly by such a move, the greater advantage would be to Stanfield.

The Hermiston country can win prizes at the O. W. R. & N. corn show if entries are made. Why not do it? In addition to the premiums it means good advertising for our country.

The 1915 Hermiston Dairy and Hog show will be by far the best yet. Those owners of stock who do not enter into the competition will see the day when they will be sorry.

SOLDIERS' BURDENS.

Loads They Have to Carry on the March and in Action.

While the ride of the infantrymen of the world's armies has steadily lessened in weight during the last fifty years, and while constant attempts have been made in other ways to lighten the soldier's burden on march, it is nevertheless a fact that the unformed fighter of today carries very little if any less than he did a generation or two ago. His gun and bayonet and some other details of equipment that had an exact counterpart in the old armies may be lighter, but modern military necessities have added to his carrying requirements.

He must now face this marching load: Magazine rifle, bayonet, scabbard, rifle cartridge belt and fasteners, rifle cartridge belt suspenders, first aid packet, canteen, canteen strap, set of blankets, roll straps, haversack, meat can (used as a frying pan), cup, knife, fork, spoon, one shelter tent (half), five shelter tent pins, one poncho (rubber blanket), one pair shoes, one housewife (needle and thread), one overcoat, one trenching tool.

These marching loads have varied from 40 to 100 pounds in the past and weigh about the same now. Of course, in going into action much of this load is discarded, some of it never to be possessed by the owner again, even though he escapes the battle peril. In the old days knapsacks were always cast off by seasoned troops, who grew calloused as to the boarding up of little trinkets and mementos that so appeal to the amateur soldier.

After a battle these discarded knapsacks might be recovered, but it was not likely. At any rate, while another knapsack might be issued, it would not be the one possessed by the soldier before the battle.

Whenever a new levy of troops was mustered in and arrived in a camp where veterans were stationed the newcomers were greeted with mock praise for their spick and span soldierly appearance, with special emphasis on "How nice those knapsacks look!" This time honored receipt of everything a soldier desired or hoped to keep ever near him is no longer reckoned in the latter day, universal fighting equipment. While troops on going into battle discard everything not absolutely necessary to them for the fight and are thus lightened up some, they have to take on some weight in the place of that relinquished in the shape of an extra number of cartridges.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

FIGHTING INSOMNIA.

Some Advice About How to Woo "Nature's Sweet Restorer."

In fighting sleeplessness I have found nothing so helpful as a simple procedure based on the conditions which recent psychological experiment has proved to be fundamental to sleep. These are:

Mental and muscular relaxation, limitation of voluntary movement and monotony of sensation.

To obtain these the next time you find yourself wakeful select on the wall of your room some ornament or spot which, by reason of a ray of light from the moon or street lamp, seems to stand out clearly from its surroundings. Having selected this spot, assume a comfortable position in bed, taking care that you lie in such a way that you can see the spot on the wall without straining any part of your body.

Next, remaining perfectly motionless and thinking of nothing but the spot on the wall, gaze at it through half closed lids in such a way that it seems remote and indistinct.

Be sure not to try to get a full view of it. That would mean tension, not relaxation, and would defeat your purpose. Your gaze at the spot, while steady, must be without any straining of the attention.

Soon, if you have continued to lie perfectly quiet and to think of nothing but the spot on the wall, you will find your eyelids grow heavy and close completely. Open them half way, as before, and resume the process of gazing.

They will again grow heavy and close, when you must, if you can, open them once more. Before long you will find it impossible to open them, for you will be sound asleep.

Even if your room be in total darkness you can still make use of this sleep bringing method by calling up before your mind's eye some imaginary object and gazing at it between half closed lids exactly as though it were really before you. Remember, however, that you must lie perfectly still, moving neither your hands nor your legs.

Try this device the next time you are troubled by wakefulness. From personal experience I am satisfied that, if you follow it faithfully in its details, you will find that it works like a charm.—H. Addington Bruce in Kansas City Times.

AND STOP AT HERMISTON
Irrigated Alfalfa and Fruit District

By Inference.

Pater and his small boy were passing St. Paul's churchyard when the father pointed out some of the larger monuments about.

The boy asked why they were erected. His father explained that they were in memory of good men and women. Soon the boy noticed some stones which are laid flat. He pointed to these and asked:

"Do they put those that way to keep the bad ones down?"—New York Post.
