THE FALL FESTIVAL

Nothing connected with the industrial life of the people of this country is of greater importance at this time than the country and neighborhood fairs.

Whatever else we may be tempted to neglect, the fair should not be allowed to suffer. Every effort should be put forth to make the fair this fall bigger, better and of more far reaching influence than any previous effort.

At this stage of our history the big question, the question that overshadows all others, is that of production. We must produce, and produce, and keep producing. In times past this passion of production was based largely on desire; we desired the fruits of our labors for our gratification and pleasure. Now, however, we must produce as a matter of self preservation. Indeed, the issue of the great European conflict will turn largely upon the producing capacity of the United States.

The normal human being never outgrows his desire for appreciation of his efforts. The desire to excel, and to hear from one's neighbors and friends an appreciation of this excellence, is a most potent factor in stimulating effort. The big hog in the pen does not give us near the satisfaction that it does when we see it decorated with the blue ribbon. We appreciate the fine dairy cow in the barn yard, but become doubly proud of her in the ribbon decked show arena. In short, achievement without appreciation is but half success.

Then the spirit of competition will carry us a long way on the road to successful production. A desire to excel our neighbors is a powerful stimulus. The friendly rivalry for nominal premiums spurs us to unusual efforts.

THE WHITE HOUSE

Many Presidents Left It Without a Pang of Regret.

GLAD TO ESCAPE ITS CARES.

Jefferson, With Tears in His Eyes, Voiced His Joy in Returning to His Clover Fields—Johnson Also Departed With Feelings of Deep Relief.

The varied circumstances under which presidents of the United States left Washington following the ending of their terms of office is interesting, for no two followed exactly the same course. Each president's manner of farewell depended upon his temperament or upon his success in office. Washington and John Adams and Jefferson all said farewell with gladness in their hearts, for each of these was well along in life at the time, and each was glad to lay down the formalities of public office.

John Quincy Adams, like his father before him, did not wait to witness the inauguration of his successor. Thomas Jefferson, after two terms in the White House, said, with tears in his eyes, that he was glad beyond expression to return to the "clover fields of his farm at Monticello."

Andrew Jackson left the White House without regret. Not that he was tired of serving his country, but that age was creeping upon him and the mental and physical strain of public life was beginning to tell upon his general health.

President Van Buren left the White House on foot, becoming thus of a sudden once more an ordinary citizen, the transition taking place with as much apparent indifference as was his coming to the White House. An Albany newspaper of the time relates that "on Monday, March 1, a large number of the Democracy called upon Mr. Van Buren and were received by him in the celebrated east room, where he bid them farewell. He walked down the avenue today (March 4) as unconcerned as the most humble spectator in the crowd."

President Tyler, before leaving the White House, engaged quarters at a Washington hotel and, after welcoming his successor, President Polk, drove to his temporary home with Mrs. Tyler. President Johnson, beset by enemies whose attacks had continued to harass him all during his term of office, left the White House with feelings of deep relief. Reporters of that day tell us how, on the 3d of March, 1869, the day before General Grant came to the White House, "at 12 o'clock President Johnson's private reception room was thrown open to an immense throng of visitors. The president was in the room and shook hands with all the visitors, many of whom seemed much affected, being personal friends."

When President Hayes took his departure from the White House he remained for a short time in Washington as the guest of Senator Sherman, secretary of the treasury, and of Mr. Sutton. The evening before President Harrison's leaving his daughter, Mrs. McKee, held a farewell reception. The majority of the presidents have accompanied their successors to the capitol to be sworn in, departing afterward in their own private carriages. Many of them later revisited the White House, but the most striking of these revisits were those of President Grant and Benjamin Harrison. It was more than twelve years after his second term that Grant paid his visit to the White House. It was during President Arthur's term. He arrived there unannounced and was wandering about the building renewing old acquaintances, when he was taken in hand by Thomas Pendel, the head doorkeeper, who had occupied the same position during the Grant administration.

While President McKinley was the tenant of the White House he was one day approached by one of the ushers, who said: "Mr. President, ex-President Harrison is in the east room just to look around and says not to disturb you." Mr. McKinley at the time was holding a cabinet meeting, which he instantly adjourned and went to the reception room to welcome General Harrison and his wife. They spent a pleasant hour with the president and Mrs. McKinley in their private apartments. —San Francisco Chronicle.

Our National Hymn.

Why not, in all civil service and professional tests, make the ability to repeat the "Star Spangled Banner" from memory required? Not one person in a hundred can repeat this hymn from the beginning to the end. The same way with "America." Knowing these grand anthems speaks well for the patriotic instincts of a people, while the ignorance of them shows a marked deficit in our citizenship. No one should teach school, practice law, fill a public office or preach the gospel who cannot repeat the "Star Spangled Banner" all through.—Ohio State Journal.

Sabbath Day Point.

Sabbath Day point, on Lake George, is supposed to have been given the name from the fact that General Abercrombie embarked from this point on Sunday, July 8, 1758, for his disastrous attack of Fort Ticonderoga. It is said to have borne the name previous to this, however, even as early as 1750, according to Rogers' Journal. Putnam and Rogers in 1780 repulsed a superior force of French and Indians on July 5, also Sunday.—"Lake George."

Times are never too hard to be charitable to those who have less than you.

IN THE CIRCUIT COURT OF THE STATE OF OREGON FOR UMATILLA COUNTY

Edward R. Lammers, Plaintiff, vs.
Gladys L. Lammers, Defendant.

To Gladys L. Lammers, the above named defendant:

In the name of the State of Oregon, you are hereby required to appear and answer or otherwise plead to the complaint filed against you in the above entitled suit in said court within six weeks from the date of the first publication of this summons and on or before the 28th day of September, 1917, and you are further notified that if you fail to so answer or otherwise plead in this cause, within the said time, the plaintiff for want thereof will apply to the above entitled court for the relief prayed for in his complaint, to-wit: For a decree forever dissolving the bonds of matrimony now and heretofore existing between plaintiff and defendant and for an absolute divorce from defendant.

This summons is published pursuant to an order of the Hon. Gilbert W. Phelps, Judge of the above entitled court, made and entered on the 9th day of August, 1917, and the first publication of this summons is made on the 15th day of August, 1917, in the Hermiston Herald.

IN THE CIRCUIT COURT OF THE STATE OF OREGON FOR UMATILLA COUNTY

vs.
William Irie, Defendant.

To William Irie, the above named defendant:

In the name of the State of Oregon, you are hereby required to appear and answer the complaint filed against you in the above entitled suit within six weeks from the date of the first publication of this summons, and if you fail to answer, plead or otherwise appear within said time the plaintiff above named, for want thereof, will apply to the court above named for the relief demanded against you in the complaint filed in the above entitled suit, to-wit: For a decree of divorce forever dissolving the bonds of matrimony now and heretofore existing between plaintiff and defendant and for such other and further relief as to the court may seem equitable.

This summons is published pursuant to an order of the Hon. Gilbert W. Phelps, Judge of the above entitled court, made and entered on the 3rd day of August, 1917, and the first publication hereof is made on the 25th day of August 1917.

Makes Clubbing Arrangement With

The Oregon Farmer

Offers Unusual Opportunity to Its Readers

AMONG our large circle of readers there are a great many who are interested directly or indirectly in fruit growing, dairying and other branches of farming. All of these naturally wish to keep in close touch with agricultural activities throughout the state; and to know about any fight which is being waged for the measures Oregon farmers want and against all sorts of schemes that are detrimental to the people and agricultural interests of this state.

We have, therefore, made a special clubbing arrangement with THE OREGON FARMER whereby any farmer or fruitgrower, who is one of our regular subscribers and who is not now a subscriber to THE OREGON FARMER, will be entitled to receive THE OREGON FARMER in combination with this paper at the same rate as for this paper alone.

This offer applies to all those who renew or extend their subscriptions as well as to all new subscribers. If you are interested directly or indirectly in Oregon agriculture, do not miss this unusual opportunity, but send your order in now.

THE OREGON FARMER is the one farm paper which is devoting itself exclusively to the farming activities and interests of Oregon. It has a big organization gathering the news of importance to farmers, dairymen, fruitgrowers, stockraisers and poultrymen; and it has the backbone to attack wrongful methods and combinations and bad legislation, and support honest leaders and beneficial measures. We are confident that our readers will congratulate us on our being able to make this splendid and attractive clubbing offer.
