LUCKY STRIKE CIGARETTE

IN a year it has become famous; the man's cigarette for the men who are working over here, and fighting over there.

The reason? Because it's made of Burley pipe tobacco and because—

IRRIGON NEWS ITEMS

SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE

Sales made by the land company during the week are: 10 acres to Ira Hoffman in the Irrigon district and 40 acres each to Royal Rands and James Nelson in the Boardman district. All these parties will improve their land.

Pyron Powell, who recently purchased 40 acres south of Irrigon, has also purchased the W. A. Jeppe acre west of town. Mr. Powell has gone to Kendrick, his former home, and will return in a few weeks with teams and his household goods.

Col. and Mrs. Newport are staying at Irrigon for a few days while the Colonel is overseeing the shipping of a car of cement pipe for use at Hermiston.

A. J. Abernathy returned from Hermiston a few days ago with a fine team of horses that he purchased for use on his ranch.

Mrs. W. B. Beasley was down from Hermiston on a visit over Saturday and Sunday.

The school is having fine success in the war savings stamps drive. Mr. Davis, Lyle Seaman, Batic Rand and Ralph Walpole have already sold $50 worth or more and are now proud of the fact that they are members of the Rainbow club.

There will be choir practice at Mr. Suddarth's home Wednesday evening at 7:30. This is for the purpose of practicing a few Easter hymns. All interested are invited to help out with the singing.

The indications are that the total sales of war stamps will be over $400.

BOARDMAN NEWS

SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE

Lyle Blayden was down from Hermiston Tuesday between trains.

C. H. Aylesworth and family went to Hermiston Saturday on a shopping trip.

County Agent Brown was here Wednesday and gave a talk on dairying. A club was organized.

A full house greeted the Colored Suffragettes Saturday evening and a number of the young people took in the dance after.

A contract has been let for the digging of a deep well for the school house. The men and machine have arrived.

Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Ballenger drove to Hermiston Monday. Mrs. McMillen returned with them to spend a few days visiting.

L. J. Blayden and wife received a telegram Saturday calling them home, as Mrs. Blayden's mother was very sick. They left Sunday morning.

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES

Preparations for this year's oratorical and declamatory contest have been begun.

Are you coming to the High School play? As Lord Crackenhorpe says: "Why not? why not? why not?"

The Hermiston school children have joined the Junior Red Cross League. Ruth Bessel was the first Junior Red Cross worker to finish her 100 gun wipers in the first grade.

The first grade room collected $14.75 this week on Thrift Stamp sales. The sixth grade collected during the week $152.50, making a total of $286.75 for that room.

The average attendance of pupils for March was 210.3, as against an average attendance during the same month last year of 208.3. The school census shows a decrease this year, but since the compilation of the report many new pupils have come here with their parents, thus more than making up the deficiency.

The total amount of War Savings and Thrift Stamps sold by the pupils of Hermiston School during the week March 18-23 was $796.74. Following are the names sent in for enrollment in Rainbow Regiment: Fred Irvin, Janice Brigham, Martha Winslow, Lawrence Winslow, Mabel Brown, Dorothy Ross and Gladys West.

Words Which Have Strayed.

Hardly any words in the English language have strayed farther from their original meaning than the terms of forestry. Thus a forest was originally a great tract of country, which might include woods, cultivated lands, pastures and even towns and villages, all the hunting rights over which were reserved to the monarch. A chase differed from a forest mainly in the fact that the hunting rights were vested in a subject instead of a king. A park was a fenced preserve, either in or out of a forest, while a warren was a piece of waste ground over which the right to hunt the hare, the rabbit and the fox, the pheasant, the partridge and the woodcock had been granted by the king.

In the same way the term afforestation had nothing to do with the planting of trees. It meant the subjecting of any tract of country to the forest laws—in other words, it was the setting aside of this tract as a forest. A forest might and commonly did include vast estates of landowners and large towns whose rights remained untouched except as to game.—London Mail.

The Outdoor Woman.

When that husky brute, man, goes into the big woods for the good time of the year no longer does he leave a bundle of frills and laces at home or the shore, with nothing to assuage her grief at parting with her lord but a stack of the latest fiction, a fond kiss and, perhaps, a hypocritical "Wish you could go with me." No, indeed! Now she goes with him, and he is finding out that he is very glad she does.

Whether either he or she is glad, however, depends, in a measure—in fact, rather largely—upon her clothing. She must be warm in cold weather, not too warm in hot weather, not be bedraggled to helplessness when it rains, nor snagged every few minutes in rough getting by stepping on her skirt or getting caught on a stub. If she is to be a real companion to a man she must not hold him back by adding to her natural handicap, lack of strength, the unnecessary and exasperating unsuitable costume.—Outing.

Delightful.

A certain young person had attained her twenty-fifth year so many times that her ingenuity was about to crack under the strain of getting away with it. In other words, she would soon be an old maid if something wasn't done.

But what? In her perplexity she consulted the seventh daughter of a seventh daughter. "I feel," declared the young person tragically, "as if I were drowning." The seventh daughter of a seventh daughter was not lacking to herself. "Precisely," she replied. "Drowning is described by all who have given it serious trial as a delightful sensation, provided you don't struggle against it." Whereupon the young person saw a great light and went home and lived happily ever after.—New York Post.

Walking and Health.

As a foundation for health there is nothing better than four miles a day in the open air, taking the weather as it comes. Your family, your work and your life insurance company will all appreciate the benefits derived, and your face will show the difference in a few months.—Collier's Weekly.

And if you cannot make it four miles a day better than nothing is two miles or a mile or even a half a mile if it is done briskly with chin up, shoulders back and to the accompaniment of deep breathing.—Hartford Post.

Why She Went Home.

Wife—Tom, dear, this my first plum pudding. Hub (dubiously)—It looks rather nice. Wife—Do you know, I was wondering while making it why we call it plum pudding when there isn't a plum in it. Hub (having eaten a little)—I fancy, my dear, the word should be spelled "plumb," which, you will find by the dictionary, means "a little mass or weight of lead."—Boston Transcript.

Defined.

A number of scholars were asked to explain the meaning of the term "righteous indignation," and one little chap wrote, "Being angry without cussing."

No Paving.

Bill—And her father would not pave the way for her wedding? Jill—Sure! He refused to furnish the rocks.—Yonkers Statesman.

+ PRACTICAL HEALTH HINT. +
+ Prevent illness. +
+ The laws of health have, every one, a penalty attached, and ignorance is never accepted by nature as an excuse. +
+ Prevent illness. Build up the natural defensive resources of the body. Use the automatic scavenger system with which you are supplied, but do not make the mistake of thinking that you can neglect it at pleasure and then escape by whipping it up with irritating drugs. Drink freely of clear water. Eat to satisfaction rather than repletion and let the diet be of good balance. Never let the drudgery of daily routine obscure the end for which you live. A rush of work is not legitimate excuse for progressive suicide. +
+ As Pythagoras has wisely said, "Have thou moderation in all things, keep thyself from wild joy and from walling sorrow, strive to hold thy soul in harmony and concord, like the strings of a well tuned harp." +
