ARMISTICE IS SIGNED AND WORLD WAR ENDS

President Announces to Congress the Cessation of Hostilities.

Washington.—President Wilson issued a formal proclamation at 10 o'clock Monday morning announcing that the armistice with Germany had been signed.

The world war ended Monday morning at 6 o'clock Washington time, 11 o'clock Paris time. The armistice was signed by the German representatives at midnight.

The terms of the armistice with Germany were read to congress by President Wilson at 1 o'clock Monday afternoon. Assembled in the hall of the house, where 19 months ago senators and representatives heard the President ask for the declaration of war, they today heard him speak the words which herald the coming of peace.

Evacuation, reparation and restitution are the keynotes of the armistice.

Terms of Armistice.

Here are the principal things Germany must do, or, powerless before the victorious allied armies, will have done for her:

Immediate evacuation of Alsace-Lorraine, Belgium, Luxembourg, Russia and Roumania without further destruction or harm to inhabitants.

Then occupation by American and allied troops of all the countries on the west bank of the Rhine.

Then, further creation of a neutral zone in a strip of territory on the east bank of the Rhine 30 kilometers (about 20 miles) wide, extending from Holland half way down to the Swiss border and 20 kilometers wide for the remainder.

Meanwhile as a guaranty of good faith, the occupation by American and allied troops of Mayence, Coblenz, and Cologne, the principal crossings of the Rhine within a 30-kilometer radius of the bridge-heads.

On the eastern front all German troops are to be withdrawn from territory which before the war belonged to Russia, Roumania or Turkey.

Then, the German war machine must disarm. The principal portions of its navy must be handed over; arms, munitions and engines of war numbered by the thousands are to be taken from the army.

American and allied prisoners are to at once be repatriated, without reciprocal action by the associated governments, and the thousands of wretched civilians dragged off into slavery from the invaded territories are to be returned.

Compensation for Devastated Country. The provision for compensating the occupied territories for the havoc wrought by the invaders is contained in a simple sentence—reparation for damage done.

As a step to restoring the map lines, the treaties of Brest-Litovsk, which laid Russia prone, and of Bucharest, which plundered Roumania, must be abandoned.

Monies, securities, precious metals and other valuables looted from the invaded countries must be returned in trust to the allies until the conclusion of peace.

In the west the railways of Alsace-Lorraine, the valuable stores of iron and coal, all the stores and supplies in Belgium with arms and armaments must be handed over.

In the east the Black Sea ports must be evacuated, the warships taken by Germany from the Russians must be surrendered; in the Baltic forts and defenses barring the way at the Cattegat must be delivered, and there must be free access to the sea for the allies.

Allied Blockade Remains Unchanged. The allied blockade is to remain unchanged. Meanwhile German merchant ships are to be delivered for missions of mercy in carrying food to the starving; allied shipping held by the Germans is to be released without any obligation to restore to Germany her ships now in the hands of the associated government.

Germany is to notify the neutrals they are free to trade with the associated governments without molestation. One provision of the armistice which was supplementary to the text as first drawn by the supreme war council, and therefore does not appear in the text as President Wilson delivered it, was inserted after the German revolutionists took possession of the German fleet.

It provides that if the fleet is not delivered as specified in the agreement the associated governments may occupy the Heligoland fortress as an advanced base to secure possession of it.

Dutch May Object to Kaiser. Amsterdam—The Dutch government will object to ex-Kaiser Wilhelm living in Holland, according to the newspapers here. It is also reported that he will be interned, for coming into the country armed and in uniform.
