Communication

Dear Editor: In the Herald, under date of Feb. 8, I read a communication from Mrs. F. B. Pennock in which she objected to the resolution passed at the dairymen's meeting Jan. 29.

Though I am one of the smallest dairymen on the Project, (both in stature and from the number of cows I keep) I feel it my duty, as one who is starting into the dairy business, and who is taking an active part in dairy work on the Project, to answer this communication through your columns.

First—I wish to say there are absolutely no "Butter substitutes" except in name; and I think I am right in saying that it was the spirit of the meeting of Jan. 29 that nothing should be sold in Hermiston as such, and that any merchant who sold or advertised for sale anything as such, should know that they did not have the backing of dairymen and citizens, of Hermiston, who are well informed on the use of Dairy products.

Second—Referring to Mrs. Pennock's statement accusing the dairymen of saying to the poor man, "If you cannot afford to buy my milk, and butter for your children's bread then they must eat it bare." When the health and vigor of any man's children, whether he is rich or poor, is considered, there is not a man, who is able to buy bread for his children, who cannot afford to buy milk and butter for them, when the life giving substances in milk and butter (vitamines) and the food value is considered. The following table from the U. S. Department of Agriculture, with local prices substituted, shows the high food value of milk. One quart of milk at 10 cents is equal to 9 oz. of round steak worth 17 cents; 6.4 eggs worth 21 cents or 9.6 oz. of fowl worth 16 cents. There are only two common foods that contain vitamines in sufficient quantity to be of value to young children. They are butterfat and the fat in eggs. Butterfat contains the greatest quantity and does not need any preparation, while eggs need very careful cooking to prepare them for the delicate digestive organs of a child.

Third—Mrs. Pennock said: "What mother love and instinct would not recoil at the world of today; what woman would wish to help furnish these innocent lives to be crushed between the grinding mill stones of indolence and greed?" Note. Vitamines—A vital substance found in butterfat which is absolutely necessary for the maintenance of life in the young or adult. Dr. E. V. McCollum. The above means a great deal; but from my side of the fence it means there is not a mother that would deprive her child of milk or butter, and pay 17 cents for 9 ounces of sirloin steak or even, which is not as bad, 21 cents for 6.4 eggs, when she knows that these other foods do not furnish her children with the food they need as milk does. Milk is a perfect food; the food God gives to the young, and it cannot be substituted by man.

Last—I hope Mrs. Pennock has every legislator's name on her blacklist, for I know that when she becomes well informed on the subject, as she says she means to do, her list will change color and become as white as snow.

Don't forget, mothers, your babies can't grow to be vigorous and healthy men and women unless you feed them dairy products.

A. W. Agnew,
Member of two committees working for the interests of the dairymen.

With all restrictions on lumber being taken off by the government, why not build that barn that you need so badly. There is no economy in feeding damp or wet hay to your stock. A good barn will almost pay for itself in two years in the saving of hay and animal heat.

Wood remains the most universal and adaptable building material, the lightest and strongest weight for weight, and in cost remains one of the cheapest materials.

Its qualities are known, it is easy to work and can be shaped by anyone into many uses required for the shelter and comfort of man and beast.
