

Highest Testing Herd in Entire State of Oregon Fed From Tum-A-Lum Silo

To begin with, Henry Helmholtz of Redmond had the highest herd in the state of Oregon. His 14 Holsteins walked away from 1600 cows in the test and won first place in the November Record, averaging 953.7 lbs. of milk and 44.3 lbs of butterfat in 20 days. The next highest herd averaged only 555.1 lbs of milk and 21.1 lbs of butterfat. Mr. Helmholtz fed his cows Sunflower Ensilage and reports that the cows relish it as much, if not more, than corn—sunflowers went 25 tons per acre, while corn went 8 tons.

INVESTIGATE SUNFLOWERS FOR ENSILAGE Ask the County Agriculturist. Sunflowers produce several times as much per acre as corn—just as good feed—can be grown on non-irrigated land.

NORTHWEST STOCKMEN ARE GOING TO SILOS Dairyman, sheepmen, beef cattlemen are going to build TUM-A-LUM SILOS. TUM-A-LUM WOOD HOOP SILO recommended over all other types of silos by Washington State College and many county agriculturists.

Plant Ensilage Corn Early
Northern and western farmers, especially dairymen, are urged by the United States Department of Agriculture to plant the strong germinating seed of ensilage varieties which they secure from Virginia and Missouri or other Southern States at least two or three weeks earlier than the home-grown seed which they plant for grain production. Otherwise according to the Federal corn experts, the silage corn makes a rapid, long-jointed, tender, succulent growth, and is so green that when fall frosts occur that it is heavy to handle, low in feeding value, and produces ensilage which is sloppy and too sour. On the other hand, if the silage corn is planted late in April or early in May it makes a slower, hardier growth, it better withstands spring frosts and summer drouths and reaches a more advanced condition of maturity and produces more grain. This applies particularly to the large-growing ensilage varieties, and usually does not include the early maturing home-grown varieties which, as a rule, are not benefited by unusually early planting. Northern ensilage crops should be judged by their feeding value, and not by their height or weight or the amount of labor necessary to ensile them. Although earlier planting necessitates earlier cultivation, it pays. Early tillage dries and warms the soil surface and promotes the germination and early growth of the corn.

Turkey's interest in the peace proceedings is now merely a mild curiosity as to who gets what.

To everybody April 6, the war anniversary, is associated with the words "to make the world safe for democracy;" and to many March 4 similarly meant "to make the treasury safe from democracy."

We mustn't be too hard on the Germans. We oughtn't to do anything worse to them than they planned to do to us.

In joining the League of Nations the United States practically gives up nothing. The main feature of the League is that every nation joining the same agrees to give "three months notice" to the world before starting a war. If Germany had said to the world on August 1, 1914 that she would start the great war in three months, the "power of public opinion" would have prevented that war.

Nobody seems to have been thoughtful enough to take up a subscription in the United States senate to buy President Wilson a loving cup.

After the bitter experience of the world war one would think that Austria would never again seek an alliance with Germany.

His friends say that at the proper time William Hohenzollern will be heard. The proper time will be when St. Peter inquires blandly: "What on earth caused you to believe you could get in?"

At Head of Navigation

"You will find at the head of navigation Echo, Stanfield, Hermiston and Umatilla when the 28 miles in Umatilla county from Echo to the Morrow county line is completed," says C. G. Brownell, representative from Umatilla county, who is at the Imperial. "Porter & Connelly, the contractors, tell me that they will start dirt flying in a week. The road will put those towns on the Columbia river, for the wheat can be transported in motor trucks to the boats at the river. People in the Willamette valley cannot begin to realize what that and similar roads mean. There will be the greatest field for motor-truck transportation in Umatilla in handling wheat that a truck dealer could wish for. The road amounts to the same thing as moving Hermiston, Stanfield and Echo to the bank of the Columbia. It will bring the river to the wheat fields."—Portland Oregonian.

There are two ways of getting into a newspaper—purchasing an interest and purchasing an interview. There is still another way—pulling the wool over the editor's eyes and getting in for nothing. This is a very popular form of entry.

Yes it is true that there are none of us that would regret, to some extent, to see this country join the League of Nations. But is it not better to join the League than to have our sons, brothers and fathers slaughtered in another war a few years hence.
