LOCAL BRIEFS

Jimmy Todd is again with us, and he says to stay, too. No more "Gob" for him now that Uncle Sam is no longer in a scrap.

John Waldo, brother-in-law of Philip Baars, proprietor of Baars' Garage on the West Side, left Wednesday on a visit to the parental home in Oregon City, Ore.

The large alfalfa mill of the C. S. McNaught Co. is this week emancipating from its dull coat of red to a more brilliant and pleasing hue under the artistic paint brush of H. A. McKeen, general foreman of the concern.

A. W. Agnew has received a quantity of registration and transfer blanks from the American Jersey Cattle Club, which are for free distribution among the breeders of pure bred Jerseys. These can be obtained from C. M. Jackson, H. M. Sommerer, or A. W. Agnew.

W. H. Warner, after a three months' visit at the home of his son, Attorney W. J. Warner, has departed for California to visit another son residing in Los Angeles before returning to his home in Springville, N. Y.

Mr. and Mrs. Arlie Winter arrived Wednesday overland from Fresno, Calif., in their Chevrolet car on a trip through a few of the western states. Mrs. Winter is a niece of Mrs. Belscamper, and they are spending the week as guests at the Belscamper home east of town.

L. D. and Phil L. Lay were Pendleton visitors Wednesday. They report a very heavy sale of new and second hand cars in that section. The more popular makes of cars are entirely out of stock with chances very uncertain when the orders could be filled. Lays' Garage was able to get the promise of only one Chevrolet out of the next shipment.

Oregon Jerseys Score Again

Geo. E. Cressy, president of the local Jersey Breeders' Association, is in receipt of the following letter from R. L. Burkhardt of Albany, Oregon, secretary-treasurer of the Oregon Jersey Cattle Club:

"You are no doubt aware of the fact that Oregon Jerseys again have demonstrated the fact that they stand at the top. The latest event is the phenomenal records made by the cows Vive La France and Old Man's Darling 2nd owned by Pickard Bros. of Marion, Oregon. On March 24th Vive La France finished her magnificent year's work which made her champion cow of the breed with many other trophies to her credit. Her stable mate, Old Man's Darling 2nd, finished just a month previous a record which gave her the championship in the junior four year old class. The Jerseys of Oregon have brought many other trophies of the American Jersey Cattle Club to this state.

"The Oregon Jersey Cattle Club has decided to hold a Jubilee May 20 to 24, inclusive, commemorating this wonderful work of the Jersey cow. This jubilee is to start in Portland with a program for the first day. The rest of the time is to be spent in an automobile tour visiting as many of the Jersey herds in the Willamette Valley as possible.

"You are invited and urged to come, bring your family, get your machine into the procession as we expect to have at least one hundred in line at all times."

Then and Now.

"Charley, dear," said young Mrs. Torkins, "do you remember when you used to stand outdoors and serenade me?"
 "Yes. What reminds you of it?"
 The way I now have to stand on the front doorstep and holler for the latch-key?"

A Mistake.

"Poor thing! She labors under the hallucination that she is the queen of Sheba."
 "Whoever told you so must be mistaken. Even in her crazy moments she would never dream of imagining herself somebody who went to another person to learn wisdom."

His Training.

"A ship's chaplain ought to make a good aviator."
 "Why ought he?"
 "Because he's already a sky pilot."

A TAME LOVER.

Jack—She refused me point-blank.
 Fred—Did she give any reason?
 Jack—Yes; she said I didn't look half as eager and interested when I proposed as I did when rushing the puck down the ice in the hockey game.

Reflections at Forty.

Age teaches many things, by Jink,
 "The just immense,
 And every new and then I think
 I'm getting sense.

Yes, it'll be There.

Mrs. Fussery (testily)—I shall not go to that butcher shop again. Why, the impudent thing gave me a pain.
 Fussery—Don't be too sure, my dear; he's probably included it in his bill.

Doubt of it.

"Did you hear anything of a lobster famine?"
 "No; the gold brick schemes seem to be prospering as usual."
