

MONTH END CLEAN UP SALE

This month end Clean-Up Sale will be held Saturday and Monday, the last two business days of this month. It is for the purpose of cleaning up all broken lots and short lines that naturally accumulate in the course of business. Wonderful reductions have been marked on all these goods and it will more than pay you to attend this sale and lay in a supply of all the goods offered.

Final Clean-up of All Summer Suits, Coats and Dresses

What do we mean by final? Just that every suit, coat and dress in the house must GET OUT. What's what! They have outstayed their welcome here as it is, and do not want to dilly dally further about showing them the door—they'll go through it like hot cakes, feel sure, at the reductions we've made on them, which means we do not think it is at all necessary to suggest to you to be on hand early Saturday to make your selections. The sale will be for two days—Saturday and Monday.

Month End Sale Embroideries

This sale of embroideries is going to be one of the most noteworthy during 1919. Every piece of insertion, banding, edging, flouncing or allover, whether new this month or received early in the year will be sacrificed at these special prices. It's a case of too many embroideries, and these drastic price cuts will sell them.

If you need embroideries at all now is the time to buy. Here are the finest Swiss edgings and insertions to match, also flouncings that are plain or with ruffles, direct from St. Gaul, Switzerland. Then there are Convent Nainsook embroideries for underwear that will give the very maximum of service, also cambric edges and flouncings in open eyelet of blind designs. A truly great assortment of the season's best staple and novelty styles at a real sacrifice.

A DIVORCE KILLER

By DOROTHY CROWELL.

Mrs. Roberts darted furtive glances at her daughter who was idly drumming on the closed window. Finally unable to stifle her curiosity longer she burst out: "Grace stop that silly pounding. What in the world is the matter? Has Richard developed a grouch?"

Grace shrugged her shoulders and sighed. "I hardly see enough of him to know." Something was forming in her mind of which the mother, despite her superior knowledge of the world, was ignorant.

Mrs. Roberts went to her. "Never mind Grace. You will find after you have been married as long as I that men are peculiar creatures, and that it is best to let them fight out their grouches alone."

"Oh, it isn't that," Grace declared seriously. "But I can see that gradually I am losing Richard's love. In many ways he shows it."

Mrs. Roberts tried to comfort her daughter, vowing to give Richard a piece of her mind at the first opportunity. Mrs. Roberts was to be farther shocked before the visit was over. The cause of this new worry was her daughter's firm determination to bury herself in the country, and think out the reason for the growing coldness between herself and her husband, and of all places in the world at Grandmother Stetson's away up in the wilderness miles and miles from everything. Mrs. Roberts threw up her hands in despair as she heard this insane folly of her silly daughter.

Grandmother Stetson while living in the wilderness knew human nature with a knowledge that her daughter could never acquire, and when Grace walked dejectedly into the little sitting room of the house in the wilderness, she was met with ready sympathy and folded in two substantial arms.

In a few words Grace unfolded her grievance, and when she had finished Mrs. Stetson declared with conviction: "That is a mighty poor apology for a woman who cannot keep her husband's love once she has won it."

Within the week Grace had discarded her city frocks for more suitable garments, which her own hands had fashioned under the critical eyes of the grandmother. Mrs. Stetson took matters into her own hands now, and immediately forwarded a telegram which brought Richard to the house in the wilderness within a day. He burst hastily into the sitting room. "Great Scott," he cried. "Where is she? I never realized Grace was as ill as that. Oh, I knew there was something, but—"

"Grace is not ill," Mrs. Stetson told him. "That telegram is something between myself and my conscience. You wrote a pretty letter about going away for months, and leaving your wife didn't you?"

"Well, a business man has to attend—," he began.

"Hum," Mrs. Stetson sniffed disdainfully. "Go in the kitchen and wash up." She pointed to a door at the end of the short hall. Richard pressed the latch and went in.

The figure bent over the table, rolling pin in hand, he failed to recognize. Alarmed at the heavy tread the girl looked up. "Dick," she gasped in astonishment. Both were embarrassed, and acted like two children. A formal handshake which left his hand white from the flour was her greeting.

As the day passed Mrs. Stetson refused with a positiveness that forbade argument to assist in the kitchen, and left the entire management to her granddaughter. Richard seemed to find little if any time to think of business. This new order of things appealed to him immensely. He had never known Grace in this new role.

Mrs. Stetson's teachings were certainly bearing fruit. One day Grace went to her perplexed and not a little peeved. "Tell me, Grandmother Stetson," she asked, tears perilously near, "is a man's heart only gained through his stomach? That is horrible." She shuddered and brushed her hand furtively across her eyes. "If I thought that—," Mrs. Stetson smiled and interrupted: "My goodness, Grace, don't be so tragic, but you just remember this in spite of all the fool notions these city friends of yours have filled your head with, a spick and span gingham apron and the color in your cheeks, I don't mean that kind they advertise, and well-cooked meals will hold a man stronger than any other ties invented by mortal, and here's another thing, it don't cost much to give a good smile with it, too. A man will respond to good treatment every time and if he can't get that at home, then, just tell me where in the vale of woe he can."

After they had returned to their city home Mrs. Roberts dropped in for one of her weekly calls, seeing Grace at work attired in a plain gingham, her sleeves rolled up, and humming a tune, she threw up her hands in horror. "Good gracious, child," she wailed, "are you crazy working this way and in such a rig with the income Richard has? Do you want him to despise you?"

Grace laughed. "Despise me, mother dear." She put her plump arms around her mother's neck and kissed her on both cheeks. "Why, Richard says I look good enough to eat in this and for a divorce killer a gingham every time. Why it is the greatest thing in the world."

LUCK AND CHANCE OF LIFE

Abundant Reasons Why Fighting Men Develop a High Degree of Fatalistic Reasoning.

As I tour the military hospitals, says a writer in a London paper, I hear strange stories from the ward sisters, from matron herself, and from men of all grades in the serried rows of beds. Poor M— braved all the terrors of war—wounded at Mons, and gassed at La Basse—only to be ignominiously killed by an omnibus in the city street at home! Whole families of sons lie buried in France. But I know a case in which four sons and a son-in-law joined up in August, 1914, and went clean through the whole stupendous drama, without one of the five getting so much as a scratch! I know a heroic major, who had the maddest escapes from shot and shell, and was killed at last by a falling branch of a tree whilst at home on leave.

I know a chaplain V. C. who all but broke his neck on a flight of stone steps at Saighton Towers, where he was Countess Grosvenor's guest. I know a war correspondent, of many fierce campaigns, who met his death after all in a London air raid. And I talked with the sole survivor of a ship, who turned out to be the only member of the crew who couldn't swim! How shall we explain these vagaries? They made fatalists of our men; and one day in the hospital, I came upon a lad who was reading the Moslem Koran. He held up the page to me, and pointed to the verse: "No hap chanceeth, but the same was written in the Book of Decrees!"

Saw a Resemblance.

Little Andrew was playing in the yard, in which there is a coop for his pigeons. All pigeons were inside with the exception of one which was walking up and down in front of the door. Andrew ran up to his mother in great excitement and said:

"Mamma, is that one a collector?" Whereat his mother asked him why. Then Andrew said:

"Well, he can't get in."

No Escape.

"Good morning, Mrs. Jagsby. We are peace delegates."

"Peace delegates?"

"Yessum. We were sent by Mr. Jagsby, who was unable to get home last night. He wants us to arrange the armistice terms and settle on the size of the indemnity he owes you."

"Umph! You tell Mr. Jagsby if he don't show up here in the next hour I'll come and get him. He's not in Holland."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

In the County Court of the State of Oregon for Umatilla County In the Matter of the Estate of Joseph G. Bedale, Deceased.

To Nellie Bedale, being the widow and heir at law of Joseph G. Bedale, deceased.

In the name of the State of Oregon: You are hereby cited and commanded to appear before the Honorable Charles H. Marsh, Judge of the above entitled court, at his office in the courthouse, in Pendleton, Umatilla County, Oregon, on the 9th day of July, 1919, at the hour of ten o'clock a. m. of said day, then and there to show cause, if any exists, why an order of the above entitled court should not be made permitting and directing F. B. Swayze, as administrator of the estate of Joseph G. Bedale, deceased, to sell at private sale in one parcel, for cash in hand, for the purpose of paying the funeral charges, expenses of administration and the claims against the said estate, all or such part of the hereinafter described real estate belonging to said estate as it may be necessary to sell for such purpose, the said real property being described as follows, to-wit:

An undivided one half interest in and to the Southeast Quarter of the Southwest Quarter of the Northwest Quarter of Section 5, Township 4 North, Range 29 E. W. M., less the dower interest therein of Nellie Bedale, widow of the said Joseph G. Bedale, the said lands being subject to a lien of the United States of America for water thereon.

You are further notified that this citation is served upon you by publication thereof pursuant to order of the Honorable Charles H. Marsh, Judge of the above entitled court, made and entered on the 26 day of May, 1919.

In Testimony whereof, I, R. T. Brown, clerk of the county court, aforesaid, do hereunto set my hand and affix the seal of said court, this 26 day of May, 1919.

(SEAL) R. T. BROWN, Clerk of the County Court.
