Water in the Home

The following paragraph is an extract from an article written by the home demonstration agent in Halifax county, Virginia, and has been sent to The Herald by Lorene A. Parker, home demonstration agent for this county with headquarters at Pendleton:

"By actual figures one woman in Halifax county walked 112 miles in one year carrying water. Since she has been keeping house she has traveled 3808 miles carrying water. Figure her time at 25 cents an hour. She has spent $238 in carrying water. This is just one specific instance, and this well was only 45 yards from the house."

It would be an eye-opener for some in our county if they would keep account of the time spent and distance traveled in carrying water for a few days or a week. Many women in this county have added to their already crowded days of caring for a family of small children and cooking for hired men the task of carrying water from a distance of 20 to 120 feet. The men on the farm do not seem to realize that it takes many gallons of water in a day to do the regular routine work of the kitchen, of washing vegetables, cooking and washing dishes.

If your wife is discontented or the farm begin to study her home conveniences and learn the reason why. Carrying water, no sink in the kitchen, bare floors in the kitchen that are hard to keep clean when linoleum would be so easy to care for—such tasks as these are the ones that take the life out of many rural women and makes them want to leave the farm.

The local office of the Pendleton Laundry has been moved from the Rest Room to Wm. Shaars' barber shop.

Some Pull

L. M. Compton of Umatilla, believes he has the only simon pure pulling auto truck in the Denby which he recently purchased from a firm in this city. He pins his faith on its ability to "eat up" any sandy road on the project—loaded or unloaded—to such an extent that he is always ready and willing to back up his argument with deeds—not words.

This was shown Wednesday when he gave a demonstration of the truck's powerful strength out east of Hermiston on a road that was level with sand that had no bottom. He was told by the party that selected this sandy road that he might as well "give in" before beginning as it was impossible for any machine to pull through it. Nothing daunted, Mr. Compton "headed in," and to the utter amazement of the skeptical one "slid" through the sandy road to a nearby alfalfa field where he loaded on 2 1/2 tons of baled hay and returned with it over the same "highway." The return trip with this necessitated some heavy pulling, but without stop or pause the 2-ton Denby came right through and thus Mr. Compton's judgment of the strength of his auto truck was vindicated.

What She Was Looking For.

One of the many excellent stories told by Lady Jepson in her "Notes of a Nunad" concerns her godfather. "He came often to our house," writes the authoress, "having an obvious admiration for the pretty young aunt who lived with us. One day he called as usual and I at once climbed on his knees and stared searchingly into his clear, brown eyes. 'What's the matter, child?' said he, 'and what are you looking at?' 'Mamma said to papa, 'quoth I, 'that you had a wife in your eye and I'm looking to see if I can find her.'"

Security Against Pellagra.

The United States public health service reports that the disease, pellagra, is largely, if not entirely, due to a faulty diet. When meat and milk are supplied in adequate quantity there is a practical security against this disease, which last year caused 3,700 deaths.
