SEES PICKWICK AS JOHNSON

Canadian Writer Believes Dickens' Famous Character Was Sketch of the Great Lexicographer. A discussion has arisen between E. R. Thompson in the Nineteenth Century and a writer in the Toronto Mail and Empire as to whether Dickens' famous character of "Mr. Pickwick" is an adaptation of the personality of Dr. Samuel Johnson. The magazine writer holds that this is the case; that the novelist was inspired by James Boswell's "Life of Johnson" and that the alleged plagiarism is proved by a certain characterization of Pickwick which coincides almost to a word with one of Boswell's descriptions of Johnson. The Toronto writer believes if Dickens did copy his character from the noted lexicographer he did it unconsciously and without any attempt to steal the fruits of Boswell's writing. It is admitted that there are many points of resemblance between Pickwick and Johnson. Both were rather portly, burly men. They had a common weakness for the use of round and dignified speech; both had little difficulty in summoning immense reserves of dignity to suppress the impudent or the flippant, and both had great hearts. "But," says the Mail and Empire writer, "we have not the imagination to picture Doctor Johnson disporting himself on skates after the fashion of Mr. Pickwick, and there is a sort of kindly credulity about the latter that we find distinctly lacking in Johnson. Moreover, we never suspect Mr. Pickwick of being a bully, although it is to be admitted that when he orders the skates of Mr. Winkle to be removed he shows a Johnsonian sternness and impatience with pretense." Two Timely Tips. Lodine stains may be removed from bureau scarfs, towels, etc., by using peroxide. If the first application does not remove it let the article dry and try again. Do not use peroxide on colored clothes, as the color will come out as well as the stain.

ROUP IS SERIOUS DISEASE IN FALL

In Many Respects This Ailment of Fowls Is Similar to Influenza of Humans.

ISOLATE ALL AILING BIRDS

Symptoms, Preventive Measures and Treatment, Described by Specialists of United States Department of Agriculture.

As cold weather approaches poultry raisers should take every precaution to prevent their chickens from getting colds. If the flock is not properly cared for it is easy for this ailment to get a start and so reduce the vitality of the birds that other more serious diseases are readily introduced. One of the most common as well as serious diseases which follow colds is contagious catarrh, more generally known among poultrymen as roup. It resembles the more malignant forms of influenza in the human family and among animals. It attacks principally the membranes lining the eye, the sacs below the eye, the nostrils and other parts about the head. It is attended with high fever and is very contagious. New birds and those which have been in exhibitions should be isolated and kept under observation for two weeks before they are put with the flock and all animals and wild birds excluded so far as possible. The houses should be kept clean and dry and occasionally disinfected. If the disease appears notwithstanding these precautions, isolate the affected fowls at once at a distance from the well ones and apply disinfectants freely about the houses and runs. Also place sufficient permanganate of potash in all drinking water to give the latter a deep purple color. If the disease proves of a severe type it is often better to kill the entire flock, and after a thorough cleaning and disinfection of the premises to begin with new birds. This radical method avoids the retention of the birds which may harbor the contagion and cause the development of subsequent outbreaks.

PREVENTION IS BEST

The treatment of sick poultry requires much time and patience and there is always the risk that they may carry the contagion for several months after they are apparently well. Prevention of colds and roup is, therefore, much more satisfactory and profitable than treatment, say specialists of the United States department of agriculture. The poultry house should be kept free from drafts, and measures should be continually enforced which will exclude contagion of all kinds.

To Distinguish Roup.

Roup is distinguished from diphtheria by the absence of the thick, tough, and very adherent newly formed membranes (false membranes) in the nostrils, mouth, and throat which are characteristic of the latter. There may sometimes be a deposit of yellowish material on the walls of the mouth and throat, but it is easily broken up and removed.

Box for Dust Bath.

Provide a box partly filled with road dust or wood ashes so as to give the hens an opportunity to take a dust bath. It gives them needed exercise and keeps them free from lice and mites.

Uniformity of Purebreds.

Purebred poultry means uniformity of products. Uniformity of products means increased profits if they are properly marketed. Given the same care and feed, purebred fowls will make a better profit than mongrels.

Profit-Producing Period.

The hen's greatest profit-producing period is the first and second years, and unless a hen is an especially good breeder she should be disposed of at the end of her second laying season and before starting to molt.

As a general rule, feed mash early in the day and scratch grain in the evening.
