I'm Giving Them Both a Start

By C. C. Brown

My little lad plays all the live-long day,
No pausing for rest needs he;
And out on the air peals his laughter gay
As he chortles with childish glee.

My little lass plays, too, from morn till night
Although not so full of noise;
But her face is beaming with smiles as bright
As she plays with her dolls and toys.

It seems only right, little lad and lass,
That your Daddy should do his part,
And so as the days of your childhood pass,
I'm giving you both a start.

The time will come when this grim old world
Will turn you from play to work;
Against life's real problems you will be hurled
With many a jolt and jerk.

Now you could spend each nickel and dime
For pleasure, and that is well;
Alas, all too soon will come the time
You must face old H. C. L.

So now, little lass, and now, little lad,
Your Daddy's saving for you.
And it's with a feeling, half glad, half sad,
He knows you must soon save too.

For the going is rough on the road of life,
And nothing to you I gave
Would help you to win in the bitter strife
Unless you, too, learn to save.

So Daddy is saving and in your name
War Savings Stamps is buying,
And when you are older you'll find the game
Of saving is well worth trying.

It seems only right, little lad and lass,
That your Daddy should do his part,
And so as the days of your childhood pass,
I'm giving you both a start.
