

UNAWARE

By AGNES G. BROGAN.

Barris sat before a confusing litter of papers, and passed his hand in troubled fashion over his forehead.

Allan Barris was a play-writer, as well as manager of various departments connected with that work. His ambition was to present a new and truly great actress in one of his original plays.

Here, among the litter, were pitiful letters, begging work of almost every kind—those of confident would-be "stars" he found it necessary to ignore. The city seemed to be filled with inexperienced girls certain of their own histrionic ability.

Here was one, from a young woman who had at first written in the enthusiasm of sure success, asking for a certain part in one of his prominent plays. "Though she was unfamiliar with theatrical work," she frankly confessed, "she knew that she could portray his character of 'Normand' faithfully." Her request for a personal interview and trial had been ignored.

The second letter which came from the aspirant was decidedly humble; she would be glad of "a few speaking lines."

The next appeal was for an interview only, and the last, which claimed Allan Barris' amused attention, was for office work of any kind which he could give her. She had suffered "strange misfortune," she wrote, and her need was great.

The appeal touched him, not so much by its pathos as by its cheerful persistence. He wrote the girl, asking her to call upon the following day, and he had almost forgotten his indulgence when she was announced.

In his mind, Barris pictured his frank applicant as a glowing creature garbed in popularly approved fashion. Instead, it was a small gray-clad figure which awaited diffidently his invitation from the doorway. The gray dress was softly clinging, with a quaint kerchief about her shoulders, and it was the girl's shy, glancing purple eyes which first impressed him.

She had spoken advisedly, she was "unusually good looking"—"unusual" was the word.

"Can you do stenography and typewriting?" he asked.

The girl sadly shook her head. "If you could give me other things at first, I would learn that later," she spoke in a sort of soft eagerness.

"Heretofore, I had no opportunity of learning. My life was—all ease." She caught her breath tremulously and threw out her hands in a hopeless gesture. The wistful eyes were misty with tears.

"Everything changed for me in one moment. That was the strange, hard part of it."

Quickly she brushed the tears from her eyes and leaned toward Barris.

"Can you believe me," she asked, "that I have now between me and starvation just twenty-five cents?"

At his astonished stare, she smiled suddenly, very bravely, Barris thought.

"If you will give me some work to do at once that part of the trouble will soon be disposed of," she told him.

The busy man, whose sympathy and anxiety were usually bound up in his own intricate work, found himself moved now as he had never been moved to pity and admiration. The girl's sincerity could not be doubted; her plucky willingness to work herself out of a discouraging situation won his immediate championship.

"You might begin," he suggested, "by answering that irritating telephone; use your judgment as to whether response upon my part is imperative, or may be postponed. I'm maddeningly busy."

The girl, her hat swiftly removed, was already at the telephone.

Barris noted approvingly the soft arrangement of her hair, in keeping some way with the trim gray frock and serious eyes. For a time he was not disturbed by the telephone, continuing his dictation to an observant young woman typist. Subconsciously, at last, he sensed the stranger's troubled gaze in his direction. Mutely, she seemed to be signaling his help.

Barris abruptly dismissed his stenographer and turned to answer the girl's silent appeal. Her eyes, as he looked down upon her, were darkly tragic.

"I must go," she said, breathlessly. "I must leave you; and, oh, I did so want to stay—my first chance—and the crying need for money—" Her voice broke in its despair.

Again Barris was moved, deeply; the secret, the mystery of her unwillingly gripped him.

"Explain yourself," he said tersely. "Are you, after all, an impostor, or an innocent mistakenly enduring some trouble?"

He was surprised at his own emotions. "I ask, because I honestly wish to help you," he added gently.

The little gray figure came close. The girl held out imploring hands. Into the purple eyes came a laughing gleam of triumph.

"Thanks," she said. "Your own belief in my acting is the surest proof of its success. I told you that I could do it. For the past hour I have been your 'Normand,' and you have forgotten her in me."

And so it happened that Allan Barris realized his dream, presenting a new and truly great actress in one of his original plays.

PETITION

In the County Court of the State of Oregon for Umatilla County. In the Matter of the Organization of Hermiston Irrigation District Umatilla County, State of Oregon.

To the Honorable County Court of Umatilla County, Oregon: The undersigned petitioners respectfully show:

That petitioners are more than fifty or a majority of the owners of land irrigated or susceptible of irrigation within the boundaries hereinafter described and desired to provide for the construction of works for the irrigation of the same and to provide for the reconstruction, betterment, extension, purchase, operation or maintenance of works already constructed and for the assumption as principal or guarantor of indebtedness on account of district lands to the United States under the federal reclamation laws, and petitioners do now propose the organization of an irrigation district to be known as Hermiston Irrigation District, within Umatilla County, State of Oregon, under the provision of Chapter 357 of the general laws of Oregon for 1917 and acts amendatory thereof.

That the lands of your petitioners are included within what is known as the Umatilla Project built by the United States Reclamation Service and said lands are susceptible of irrigation from the waters of the Umatilla River as a common source and all of said lands are located within Umatilla County, Oregon.

That the boundaries of said proposed irrigation district are described as follows:

Beginning at a point on the west line of Section 3, Tp. 4 N. R. 29 E. W. M., where the south boundary line of the right of way of the "A" canal of the Umatilla project as now permanently located and constructed by the U. S. Reclamation Service intersects the west line of said Section 3, at a point southerly 385 feet, more or less, from the northwest corner of the SW 1/4 of NW 1/4 of said Section 3; thence running in a southerly and westerly direction along the said boundary line of the right of way of said "A" canal a distance of 86 miles, more or less, to the east line of the SW 1/4 of SW 1/4 of Sec. 20 in Tp. 4 N. R. 28 E. W. M., at a point distant 290 feet, more or less, and in a northerly direction from the southeast corner of the said SW 1/4 of SW 1/4 of said Section 20; thence running in a southerly direction 290 feet, more or less, to the said southeast corner of the SW 1/4 of SW 1/4 of said Sec. 20; thence running along the south line of Sections 20 and 19, Tp. 4 N. R. 28 E. W. M. in a westerly direction to the southwest corner of the SE 1/4 of SE 1/4 of said Section 19; thence running in a southerly direction along the east line of the NW 1/4 of NE 1/4 of Sec. 30, Tp. 4 N. R. 28 E. W. M. 1200 feet more or less, to a point on the east bank of the Umatilla river; thence running in a northerly direction along the east bank of the Umatilla river eight miles, more or less, to the north boundary of Section 4, Tp. 4 N. R. 28 E. W. M. to a point westerly and distant 290 feet, more or less, from the northwest corner of the NE 1/4 of NE 1/4 of said Section 4 and at the southeast corner of the Government Reserve for the Three Miles Falls diversion dam on said river; thence running in a northerly direction along the east boundary line of said Reserve two miles, more or less, to a point on the south boundary line of Section 21, Tp. 5 N. R. 28 E. W. M. westerly and distant 670 feet more or less from the southwest corner of the SE 1/4 of SW 1/4 of Section 21; thence running in a westerly direction along the south boundary line of Section 21 to a point on the north boundary line of the Government reserve westerly and distant 760 feet, more or less, from the said southwest corner of the SE 1/4 of SW 1/4 of said Section 21, Tp. 5 N. R. 28 E. W.
