DO AS I SAY OR I QUIT

What would you say to the man who was working for you if he came to you and said, "you've got to do this my way or I quit?" Chances are ten to one he would quit, or get fired. For if he got away with such a threat, he, not you, would be the boss from then on.

The same thing, practically, happened with "Hiram" the "rule or ruin" senator from California. Things had to go his way or he would quit the party. Good. If that's his caliber we hope he does quit. The man who can't stand defeat and stand it gracefully, we don't want him in the camp. He's a disgrace to the party.

William Randolph Hearst, the gentleman who was described as being pro-German during the war in some of the leading publications of the country, and by the way before we forget it, the German population of Oregon was 100 percent for Johnson; this Hearst chap calls upon the people to create a new political independence.

Hearst is a Californian, consequently is a strong Johnson man, and it seems as though they can't stand defeat, although Johnson pledged himself to support the man the convention in Chicago nominated except Wood or Lowden. Neither were nominated and Johnson is a slacker if he does not support the man of the parties choice. But, Hearst and Johnson are of the "rule or ruin policy." If they can't rule, they will ruin.

They might have done some real damage to the party had they not been so well known, but the people have their pedigree, and know their brand, and both are fast proving to be "outlaws" of the wildest sort.

"NATION'S GREATEST MENACE"

Gov. Henry J. Allen of Kansas told the National Association of Credit Men at Atlantic City, that the industrial problem was the most menacing of all the nation's troubles.

"Today the question of foreign relations is forgotten, but our domestic relations problem, is the vital question of the hour," he said. "Profiteering by capital and labor and the fights between them have piled the cost of living to such a height as to minimize the cost of the war. The constant quarrel between capital and labor is the only fight still on. Laws have been passed stopping duelling and fist fighting, but the statesmen of this country have not had the courage to end the war between capital and labor.

I'LL SAY SO

Tobacco is a filthy weed—
I like it.
It satisfies no normal need—
I like it.
It makes you thin, it makes you lean,
It takes the hair right off your head,
It's the worst damn stuff I've ever seen—
I like it.

Favors a National Budget System; All Sense of Values Has Departed.

By CARTER GLASS, Former Secretary of the Treasury.

I am heartily in favor of a budget system. Without effective control over governmental expenditures and limitation of them to the government's income we shall bring down upon our heads the splendid structure which our fathers have built and which we have preserved.

The very success (which you will pardon me if I call brilliant) with which the treasury has financed the stupendous requirements imposed upon America by the great war may become a menace. All sense of values seems to have departed from among us. The departments, bureaus and boards, all inspired by a laudable enthusiasm for their work, but some by a less laudable instinct to magnify its importance and incidentally their own, bombard the committees of congress with projects, some more or less meritorious, some of no merit whatever, but all conceived in sublime indifference to the fact that the great business of government is being run at a loss and that each one of these projects increases the deficit of the government, and consequently the burden to be thrown upon the great body of people, whether the deficit be met by increasing taxes or by floating additional loans.

The congress votes with a lavish hand stupendous sums conceived in a magnificent spirit of generosity with a view to the enhancement of the prestige of the nation, or for the benefit of this or that element in the community. This it does upon the advice of the committee of congress charged with the business of caring for such special interests. Then, speaking through the great committee on appropriations, it pursues a policy of restriction with relation to the expenditures of some of the departments of the government which makes it impossible for those departments to conduct the vast affairs imposed upon them with efficiency and economy.

WHY A FUSS OVER ROSES.

Portland is having a rose festival this week. One might ask what's it all about anyway. The rose has no intrinsic value. You can't eat it or make anything out of it. All you can do is to look at and smell it. In short it is simply to gratify one's taste for the beautiful. Is that much. Yes, it is a good deal, people do well to be surrounded by everything that is beautiful in nature, and to strew the pathway of life with just as many flowers as possible. There is more in life than eating and much more than dress. There is an aesthetic side to our character which we do well to cultivate, and the world is in pretty good business when it spends millions just to gratify our love for the beautiful. What a dull old life this would be if our walls were barren, our yards dried up patches and thistles took the place of roses and lilies. A love for the beautiful ought to be planted in the hearts of everybody and we do well when we have those things which should help promote a higher taste for the pretty in nature and art.—Selected.

COAL SITUATION IS ALARMING!

The coal situation in the United States today is rapidly becoming alarming. It is impossible to secure mine labor. The car situation is becoming acute and of nation wide scope with no immediate relief in sight. Due to the long, hard winter, coal stocks of both commercial consumers and industrial users are depleted. The situation is most unusual.
