BRINGING HOME THE HONEY

In most communities there are two classes of citizens—those who produce, and those who do not.

The productive class brings home the honey.

The other class merely consumes that which the producer produces.

There would be less hue and cry over the cost of living if more people would conscientiously produce instead of being content merely to consume. Food and other commodities are hard to produce at best, and the idleness and indifference of the non-productive class only accentuates its scarcity and contributes to its cost.

A hive of honey bees is a good thing for mankind to study. The bee that does not work is not allowed to eat—it is not permitted to consume the fruits of the labors of other bees.

We humans, with all of our superior intelligence, can still profit from the example set us by the little honey bee.

Future generations may learn to see, where we of today are groping in darkness.

The honey bee may teach them.

LET'S BE FAIR

During the past few weeks we have several times heard our home merchants criticised for the prices they charge for their goods.

The home merchant does charge a higher price—a much higher one—than he did before the war. He is compelled to do so or go out of business.

He is paying enormously high prices for all goods in the wholesale markets.

He is paying increased freight rates and cartage.

His help costs him more money and his overhead expenses are greater.

Everywhere he turns he is forced to pay a heavy increase in the cost of conducting his business.

Added to this, he is under an additional pressure in paying the high cost of supporting his family and himself.

All of this must come out of the business, and this can only be done by charging a reasonable percentage of profit over the wholesale cost of his goods.

The home merchant can not afford to profiteer. Were he to do so he would soon be trapped and would thereafter be a dead one in this community.

Prices are high—abnormally high—but we believe the home merchants are as reasonable in their charges as can be expected under existing conditions. Let's be fair and consider both sides before we criticise.

Some people are foredoomed to go through life without great wealth. They have honor instead.

It's a simple matter to see the faults of others, and quite as easy for others to see ours.

The laws of this country were made for all people to obey. A few people do.
