OTIS SKINNER'S "KISMET," IS WONDERFUL STAGE SUCCESS

America's Leading Romantic Actor Gives Last Performance of Celebrated Play in R-C Film.

"Kismet," that colorful masterpiece of the stage in which Otis Skinner, America's foremost character actor, achieves the greatest success of his celebrated career, has been transferred to the screen with Mr. Skinner playing the stellar role. Directed by Louis J. Gasnier, admittedly a wizard at his trade, and produced by Robertson-Cole, the picture has been hailed as "The Miracle of the Movies." It will be seen at the Play House for a run of two days, beginning Saturday, May 10.

The screen version of "Kismet" has been aptly called a cinema miracle because not only does it show the greatest actor of the country in the greatest play of the decade, but because in its production have been combined the finest workmanship, materials and intelligence obtainable in the motion picture world. The picture is a poem in colors as well as an epic of the newer form of dramatic expression. Its production cost ran well over $500,000.

The filming of "Kismet" is also noteworthy because of the fact that in it Mr. Skinner makes his screen debut, a step he would not have taken had it not been for his desire to immortalize this great play. After refusing the offers of various producing concerns Mr. Skinner consented to preserve the marvelous artistry of his role as Hajj, the beggar, for all time when the Robertson-Cole company promised to produce the play for the screen with even greater beauty and splendor than marked its stage production which played to crowded houses in the United States and Europe for years. Mr. Skinner himself appeared continuously in the play for more than three years. His screen performance marks his last appearance in his justly famous role.

The action of the play is set in the Asiatic city of Bagdad and for this reason an almost perfect reproduction of the city had to be built on the expansive grounds of the Robertson-Cole studio recently purchased in California.

So strikingly spectacular is the new Bagdad reared by Robertson-Cole that thousands of persons, attracted by newspaper and magazine articles, visited the studio during the filming of the picture to get glimpses of what had been hailed as the greatest set ever erected in the United States or Europe.

Work on the Bagdad reproduction gave employment to 1,350 skilled and unskilled laborers. The set, which covers many acres, required more than two months to build, the workmen being employed continuously in day and night shifts.

NORTHWEST MERCHANTS TO HOLD CONVENTION

The ninth annual convention of the Pacific Northwest Merchants' Association is to convene in Portland August 1st to 6th. The importance of this convention is growing year by year. It is expected that this year's gathering will include delegates from Wyoming, Montana, Colorado, Alaska and from other far distant points, while the attendance from Oregon, Washington and Idaho will be much greater than previous years, judging by the number of letters received by the committee in charge of the arrangements.

In connection with the convention the ninth annual Buyers' Week, inaugurated by the manufacturers and jobbers of Oregon will be held. The committee has arranged one of the most elaborate series of entertainments in the history of the organization, including a "high ginks" for the men and theatre parties for the ladies. In addition there will be river excursions and trips about the city and its environs.

The committee has arranged with Portland jobbers and manufacturers to refund the railroad and Pullman fare of any merchant attending the convention, whose aggregate purchases from members of the association during the convention exceed $500.00.

Clever McLean Comedy
Douglas MacLean, the young Tom-as H. Ince star in Paramount pictures appears to excellent advantage in "The Rookie's Return," his latest starring vehicle, which will be shown at the Play House Saturday, May 14. The story deals with the trials of an American dough-boy who on his return from France finds it difficult to adjust himself to his new environment, especially after he comes into a fortune and has to deal with the servant problem. Doris May who plays opposite the star, heads a clever supporting company. There are many humorous situations all of which will be heartily enjoyed.
