The members of the Senior class are the proud possessors of new class pins and rings which arrived in the early part of the week. These emblems are of a design carefully selected by a committee appointed by the class, and are a source of envy to the lower class men.

The annual track meet for the west end of Umatilla county will be held on the Hermiston field on Apr. 21. This meet will determine which students from the various schools shall enter the Pendleton meet later in the season. Mr. Gralapp has been devoting a great deal of his time to the training of the Hermiston athletes, so some good records are to be expected on Saturday, April 21.

The Hermiston base ball nine was victorious over the Umatilla players in an interesting contest last Friday afternoon. This is the second clash between these two teams, Hermiston being the victor in each case. The score Friday was 16 to 9.

The Misses Gertrude Beisse and Pauline Morris were hostesses at a most enjoyable party at the home of the former on last Saturday night. A large group of young people were asked to enjoy the hospitality of the young ladies. The principal diversion of the evening was 500 at which highest honors fell to Lenore Dyer, and consolation to Earl Benschel. A delicious luncheon, consisting of salad, punch, sandwiches and cookies, was served at the close of a short program of dancing.

The dignified(?) Seniors forgot their dignity for a few hours Wednesday evening and gathered for a waltzer round the Umatilla buttes. After some strenuous climbing to the highest precipices in sight and after several members of the party

Adams to said Crandall on the 6th day of September, 1920, and recorded in Vol. 35, of Chattel Mortgages, page 249, Records of Umatilla county, Oregon, given as security for the payment of rent upon the building described above as the Playhouse for three years from the 6th day of September, 1920, and the purchaser at the time of sale will be required to pay the sum of $183.00 now in arrears of rent to May 1st, 1923.

SILVER AMONG GOLDEN STORE

Gray Tresses of Tutankhamen's Queen Found in That Monarch's Recently Discovered Tomb.

There was silver buried amid the gold with which Tutankhamen's tomb is heaped—the silver of hair. The gray tresses of the ancient king's dead queen have been dragged to light and now rest with other relics rescued from the oblivion to which vanity or greed or whatever it was that prompted their burial and passing centuries condemned it. The monarch who defied death to rob him of his treasure could carry it with him to his tomb, but he could not carry youth there. The years mocked him, as they mock man of today, and worked their havoc upon him and his as they work it on rulers and ruled today.

The gray tresses of the dead king's queen leave no telltale trace of youthful hue. Were they ebon or were they gold before age transmuted them to silver? Whatever hue they were, they were cherished by him who was the owner of the huddled wealth at Luxor. He was a king. And he was a husband. The heart that beat in his breast may have hungered for gold and precious stones and found satisfaction in laying them up, but it also held love of the queen whose locks were buried with them. Else he would not have given them place among his rarest treasures.

had taken a reverse advance down the hill, a large bonfire was built and the coffee pot put on to boil. The sandwiches and wieners brought forth such expressions as, "I'm starved" and "that coffee sure smells good!" After the marshmallows had been toasted and several jokes were told, the fire was allowed to die and each one left feeling that the Senior waltzer was entirely successful.

Operetta Friday A student—"Are you expecting to attend the operetta?" Athlete—"I'll say, I wouldn't miss that for a good bit."

Member of the cast—"That's the way to talk. Everybody is going." Student—"Who is in the operetta?" Member of the cast—"Oh! Mabel Brown, you know the girl that sings like a lark, and you should see Embry Warriner, he makes the best blent-eyed Celestial imaginable. Earl Benschel with his cue makes it impossible for you to frown, and Anita Paulsen as Buddha reminds you of a jealous leading lady in the movie last night with Michael McKern as the jealous object."

Student—"Is that all there is to it?" Athlete—"Ah! no, there are some nifty choruses and the scenery will be great, so hurry along and buy a ticket for two, as 'she' will want to go along."

Student—"That's right, I had better get a date tonight so we won't miss seeing the "Crimson Eyebrows."

The content among the girls that are eligible for being May Queen is getting very heated and the outcome seems as uncertain as the weather. The contest ends next Monday so you had better hurry and vote for the pretty girl who is your choice.

Naturally Affected Her. The magnate came home grinning and sat down in a cheerful frame of mind to carve a large roast.

"My private secretary," he announced, "told me today that he is engaged to be married. On his salary the girl will starve."

At this the daughter of the house burst into tears, whereat dad was considerably taken aback.

"Why, what's the matter, daughter?" he inquired solicitously.

"It's me he is engaged to-o-o," sobbed the girl.

Moving. "The editor of the Tumlinville Torch of Liberty gives his brother-in-law, the Hon. Pete Pufferfish, a nice funeral notice, don't he?" asked a neighbor.

"Eh-yah!" replied Gabe Gonnell of Gredges. "He writes durn nigh as pitiful about him as if he had been a good dog."—Kansas City Star.
