Swinburne.
What will time, the great decider of men's labor and fame, eventually say of him? We are too near him to judge with any certainty how he will appear to those who look back to him as he looked back to Coleridge and Shelley. But it is hard to believe that any change of the perspective will dim the brightness of his lyric achievement. He was prodigal of his music, that new music he had taught the old tongue; over-prodigious at times, seeing that verse may run once too often in the triple-lilt of his magical cadences. But he has left English poetry reinforced at point after point.—Ernest Rlys.
