THE STORY WE DID NOT PRINT
 Last week there occurred events that would have been the embryo for a sensational and interesting newspaper story. It would have implicated certain young men who lives near Hermiston. When the story failed to appear in last week's issue of the Herald a friend of ours asked us why it was we passed up this bit of news. We are going to explain the reason why we did not broadcast this article to our readers.

The day before going to press a certain farmer of the project dropped in the office for a chat. During the conversation reference was made to the story and the young man around which it centered. The farmer stated that the boy felt blue and was down hearted over the accusation against him and that he acted in the manner he did from fright, believing the authorities were after him. This belief preyed upon his mind. Our informant explained that at no time was there a criminal intent in the mind of the lad. He had merely been the victim of circumstances. He told a straightforward story to the authorities when questioned, and they finding nothing against the boy had turned him loose. The man who contemplated prosecuting has dropped the matter after an explanation. If it had been an older person the mere fact that he had been exonerated would have been sufficient to make them forget. But with a boy it was different. He believed that the story would soon leak out and all whom he met would point to him with a finger of scorn. His inexperience made him look upon the situation in a different light. It would have, in all probability, broken the boy's heart if he had published the story.

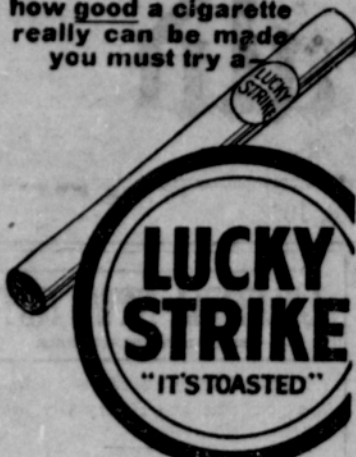

There is enough thorns along life's pathway; and the burdens allotted to each as we journey through this old world is sufficient without any of us adding to them. Rather let us help to make the rocky places smoother or the burdens a wee bit lighter.

The country newspaper's mission is not to bring sorrow or add to the grief of any one. Some times it is better to forget.

It was a case of "when a feller needs a friend," and somehow our conscience does not bother us one bit concerning the story we did not print.

Someone should present a geography to the man who was the author of the article that appeared in a recent issue of the American Magazine wherein he stated that the Columbia River Highway started at Pendleton, Oregon, and ended at Astoria, Washington.

There must be a handsome bunch of men loitering around the Athena hotel in Athena. Last Monday week a woman crashed an automobile through the front of this structure. This is the second instance the hotel front has been butted into by an automobile, and both times women have been driving. They seem to lose control when driving in the vicinity of the hotel.

The Lord's prayer should be tackled up along the highway where it intersects the railroad tracks coming into Hermiston so that those who have occasion to travel over this dangerous crossing may repeat it before making the venture.

If you could stop people from growing the products that is necessary for the manufacture of moonshine; if you could round up all of the bootleggers and keep tab upon them; if you could find every still that is making the illicit liquor; if you could Keeley cure every old soak in the land; if it was possible to pass a law making it a penitentiary offense for a man to have pockets in his clothes, then prohibition would go a great success.

It seems that all you have to do to be elected United States senator in Minnesota is to find something the matter with the government and then inform the people that you have a remedy for it.

In the whole World there is no contest so intensely exciting, and with more thrilling and spectacular climaxes, than the riding of "outlaw" bronchos by cowboys and cowgirls.

Those contests, also the wild horse races, wild steer roping and bullcogging, Indian dances and pow wows are all that remain of the young, wild, vigorous, yet livable West.
