HERMISTON'S HOUSE OF QUALITY AND SERVICE

PROPER HOUSING MEANS MORE PROFITS IN HOG RAISING

The Hog needs protection more than most domestic animals because it lacks natural protection, and is very susceptible to the influence of cold, heat and drafts.

Hog houses should have tight walls, roofs, doors and windows, abundant sunlight, well drained floors and plenty of fresh air without drafts. They should be strongly built of good materials.

Frame construction meets all these requirements and Tum-A-Lum is recommended because it is carefully and accurately made, is strong, durable, dependable and will give live-long honest service.

Picture of Hog House here shown is only one of the many properly designed styles that our architectural department has worked out.

C. W. Kellogg returned Sunday afternoon from Portland where he had been on a business trip.

E. J. Kingsley arrived in Hermiston the first part of the week from Portland. Earl was attending medical school at Eugene but had to stop school on account of an infected finger that put him in the hospital for a couple of weeks. He expects to leave for Portland the latter part of the week.

Dr. W. J. Miller, of Portland, eye, ear, nose and throat specialist, announces that he will be at the Hermiston hotel in Hermiston Wednesday, November 21, to do work in his line, including testing eyes and fitting glasses, and adenoid and tonsil work.—Adv.

N. Neimeyer of Touchet, Washington, is visiting at the home of his son-in-law, H. Rubner.

Prof. B. T. Simms, of Portland, is expected here Monday to continue the work started in testing for abortion among cattle. The announcement was made Saturday so that all interested might expedite matters by having their stock handy when Prof. Simms calls.

Several teachers in the Hermiston school attended the teachers institute held in Pendleton last Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. L. D. Wood, of Salem, are visiting at the J. M. Biggs home in this city. Mrs. Wood is an aunt of Mrs. Biggs.

Willard Felthouse returned Friday from Pendleton.

A number of friends gathered at the F. L. Sampson home last Tuesday evening the occasion being his birthday.

THE "STICKS"

A few days ago while in a Pendleton hotel we overheard a conversation between two men who were sitting in the lobby. One of them was a salesman and was complaining to his friend about having to make a trip into the "sticks," naming a nearby town.

He was one of those fellows who does not hate himself one bit and is willing to admit it. He wore about a number 4 hat and a size 12 shoe. It was disgusting to sit and listen to the complaints registered concerning the lack of accommodations he had to put up with while on his trips to the towns in the "sticks." It would have been a safe bet, even if you had to give odds, that his brains wouldn't have been a load for an underweight gnat. He no doubt believed the antidotes he related funny as he told of the stunts he had pulled while in the "hick towns". But you could look into the window of an undertaker's parlor at a display of caskets and feel as mirthful as you would by listening to his stories.

We do not wish to convey the idea that we are casting any reflections upon the Knights of the Grip for as a whole they are gentlemen and it is only once in a great while that you happen to meet up with a "boob" like this peddler whom God forgot when he was passing out the allotment of brains.

The places that at one time were designated as the "stick" are no more. Modern ideas and inventions have been responsible for the change. Today a man can rig up a radio set and bring the best talented musicians of the land into his home. By the same method he is able to listen to lectures by men of national reputation no matter how far his abode may be from civilization. His daily paper is delivered at his door. Automobiles have replaced the "old gray mare." The telephone has brought the people of the rural communities within speaking distance.

In this day the word "sticks" is only used in sketches on the vaudeville stage and by smart alecks who are so ignorant they believe the Farm Bureau is a rustic piece of furniture stored away in the garret of some dilapidated farm house.

A VISIT TO THE ATTALIA OIL WELL

(By One of the Party)

We thought of Attalia as afar off, a town which could be reached over good road only by a trip of over 100 miles. We were told however that the town could be reached by car via Holdman and so agreed to try it once. Suffice to say, that we reached Attalia within two hours. When one becomes acquainted with the road it is possible to make the trip in an hour and a half.

The object of the trip was to see the Attalia oil well, and although we had been told there was a good showing of oil and gas by those who were ordinarily responsible, we went with much skepticism. But "facts is facts" and we were soon convinced that the well has a fine gas and oil showing. There is quite a noticeable flotation on the water which is coming from the well at all times, but when the 60 foot bailer returns from the depths of the well, its coming is announced by the appearance of much oil. When the bailer appears at the top a match is touched to it and a big flame continues for five or six minutes. The water evaporates from the side of the bailer which becomes so hot that it cannot be touched. The flame is smothered in the bailer. It is difficult to tell how long it would burn if the full contents of the bailer could be utilized. So it is difficult for the novice to say what would be the result if the tremendous pressure of the more than half mile column of water were shut off. Whatever may be said, the showing there beyond doubt proves that this country is "alive" and a pool of oil will be discovered somewhere in this inland country.

The party, consisting of Otto G. Sapper, Pat Siscoel, Frank Bilderback, E. E. Brown, and O. C. Young, returned feeling that they had been well repaid for their trip. In looking through the Wallula Gap, which Sam Ash, an old timer of Wallula claims to have helped shovel out, one can imagine that this side of the glorious sunset he can see the city of Hermiston, certainly but a few minutes run if a highway were completed to Cold Springs. It is not so bad however over the hill at this time of the year and a run over there is an interesting one.

For Your Ford— Exclusively!

FOR years, folks lubricated their Ford cars—many still do—with the same oils that other folks used in Buicks, Dodges, Locomobiles and a host of other cars—correct oils for those cars, perhaps, but not for the Ford.

The only oil that will perfectly lubricate the Ford should be made for the Ford—exclusively. That's why Veedol Fordol was created.

Stop and let us refill your crankcase with Veedol Fordol. The smooth operation of your car will make you feel a new respect for your compact little motor.
