

Old King Tut

That old Egyptian king may have been the big man of his day, but he has been dead 3000 years, and there since he had charge of things. We now ride through the air like a bird, speak through the air like gods, go under the sea like the fish. We do all these things and hundreds of others that would have started King Tut in his day. And banking keeps pace with progress, too. The treasures of the old King's tomb haven't earned a cent, because they were buried all the time.

QUEEN IS FAIRY GODMOTHER

But Wilhelm's Gift to Laborer's Child Was Grabbed by Father and Brother.

Little stories reflecting Queen Wilhelm's popularity with her subjects appear from time to time in the continental press.

The Petit Parisien reports that recently, while motoring in the outskirts of The Hague, the Dutch sovereign was attracted by the unusual beauty of a laborer's child who waved to her. She stopped her car to chat with the little girl, asked her name and kissed her.

A few days later the delighted child received a parcel from the palace containing a beautiful pair of gloves, the right-hand glove filled with caramels and the left with gold pieces. Accompanying the gift was a note from the queen asking her little friend to write and tell her which of the gloves gave her the most pleasure.

In due time the child's reply, on tear-stained note paper, reached the palace. "Your majesty," it read, "I don't know which glove I liked the best, because my daddy took the left-hand glove and my brother took the right."

The queen, in good story-book style, promptly duplicated the gift, making certain, however, that the child should not be robbed by grasping father or greedy brother. It is not related whether or not she repeated her rather embarrassing inquiry.

Great Ideas Last Long. Why is it that there are some great men whose memory the world "will not willingly let die"? Most of us perish with our generation. A few personalities linger on for one or more generations. But there are some of men whose recollection does not seem to fade.

Jesus of Nazareth is still a lively influence in millions of lives. Socrates, Plato, Buddha, Dante and Shakespeare are still vital. Men are like bells. They are struck with a "big idea." As the reverberation goes on long after the stroke has been made, according to the quality and size of the bell, so the great man is made of such metal that the reverberations of his initial impulse are not deadened by the passing of years.

What a chime is that composed of all the echoes of the world's great souls!—New York American.

Lights to Kill Insects. One Texas farmer has doubled his yield of cotton by placing lights at intervals in his field and under the lights putting basins of water to catch the unwary insects.

The scheme sounds reasonable. The same thing gets the human being. The bright lights of the big city attract the attention of the unwary boy and girl from the happy country home and has been the means of doubling the yield of broken hearts, blasted lives and degeneration along the brightly colored broadways of the country as well as providing a testing place for those with characters of true blue.

The scheme works so well on people it would be a wonder if the bugs could not be caught by the same bait that is so alluring to man.

Nothing New. An African of peculiarly dusky hue was hailed to court one morning for stealing chickens. The judge said to the clerk: "Swear the prisoner."

"Sam, do you solemnly swear to tell the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth, so help you God?" "I do, sah."

"Sam, what have you to say for yourself?" "Well, judge, with all dem limit' tions you has just put on me, I doan't believe I has anything at all, sah."

Quake Caused Earth to Drop. Intense damage in the vicinity of Yokohama, caused by the recent earthquake in Japan, was due to a drop of four feet in the surface of the earth, which may have resulted from activity of the volcano on the island of Oshima, southwest of Yokohama, in the opinion of Thomas A. Jagger, Jr., volcanologist in charge of the Hawaiian volcano observatory, who has returned to Hawaii from Japan, where he made a survey of the damage wrought by the temblors. The death toll in the earthquake, tidal wave and fire was estimated at 400,000 by Mr. Jagger, and the damage to property at $3,000,000,000.

Acting With a Lion. A Hollywood motion picture director was trying to persuade a super to wrestle with a lion. "You needn't be afraid," he said, "the beast is perfectly tame. He never tasted raw meat."

"No; perhaps not, replied the perspiring actor. "But that doesn't mean that he may not have curiosity."—Everybody's Magazine.

IN THE CAFE DES EXILES

Gable's Beautiful Description of the Old Creole Cottage Falling Into Ruin.

An antiquated story-and-a-half Creole cottage sitting right down on the banquette, as do the Choctaw squaws who sell bay and saffron and life-everlasting, with a high, close board fence shutting out of view the diminutive garden on the southern side. An ancient willow droops over the roof of round tiles, and partly hides the discolored stucco, which keeps dropping off into the garden as though the old cafe was stripping for the plunge into oblivion—drobbing for its execution. I see, well up in the angle of the broad side gable, shaded by its rude awning of clapboards, as the eyes of an old dame are shaded by her wrinkled hand, the window of Pauline. Oh, for the image of the maiden, were it but for one moment, leaning out of the casement to hang her mockingbird and looking down into the garden—where, above the barrier of old boards, I see the top of the fig-tree, the pale green clump of bananas, the tall palmetto with its jagged crown, Pauline's own two orange trees holding up their hands toward the window, heavy with the promises of autumn; the broad, crimson mass of the many-stemmed oleander, and the crisp boughs of the pomegranate loaded with freckled apples, and with here and there a lingering scarlet blossom. —Cable.

Autos Thick in London. According to officials of the London safety first council, it is less safe to walk the streets of London than to travel by rail or by air. During the past year 684 people were killed and 28,322 injured in London's streets. During the same time the toll on the whole of England's railways was only 728 killed and 19,462 injured.

Long periods of flying occur without a single passenger being killed. Of the fatal accidents in London, 505 were caused by motorcars, motor vans, etc., and 65 by motorbuses. In the first quarter of the present year street accidents in the metropolitan area totaled 18,990, of which 149 were fatal. Of the latter 107 were caused by motorcars, motor vans, etc., and 16 by motorbuses.

Paternoster Row. Paternoster row is a street in London, near St. Paul's cathedral. Early in the last century it was the seat of the great publishing houses; but, in later years, these moved away to the neighborhood of the Strand and Piccadilly and left the "Row" to the book-sellers of the metropolis. The origin of the name is variously accounted for. According to some, the street was so called from the rosary, or paternoster, makers that dwell there; others, however, say that it was so named because all funeral processions, en route for St. Paul's, commenced their paternosters on entering this street, and continued to say them until they reached the gate of the cathedral.
