UMATILLA ASK FOR NEW BRIDGE

A delegation from Umatilla met with the State Highway Commission at Portland February 4 and 5 on the matter of the highway bridge at Umatilla. Mrs. Alice R. Nugent, of the Umatilla Woman's Club, Mr. George Howard, formerly of Irrigon and Mr. Fred Knudsen, of Umatilla, spoke on the proposition. Mrs. Nugent presented facts and figures and answered many questions asked by the chairman of the commission after which the body informed the delegation they would go fifty fifty with Umatilla county and build the bridge.

The same delegation met with the county court on Wednesday. D. R. Brownell was chairman. A petition was presented with about 900 or 1000 names secured in every town from Boardman to Pendleton. A detailed report was given of the State highway meeting. The County court informed those who presented the case that a lack of funds was the cause of the delay in building the bridge. Umatilla business houses closed on the day the visit to the County court was made.

Old Romance Blasted Brings Girl $150,000

When the will of Louis T. Lehmeier, ninety-two years old, was filed in New York recently, a bequest of $150,000 was made to Miss Elizabeth Rosalie Wurthmann, attractive young school teacher, and thereby hangs a tale of a blasted romance three-quarters of a century old, says the Kansas City Star.

Seventy-five years ago in Mainz, Germany, two young men were deeply devoted to a girl. They were boon companions, and because it was inevitable that one must lose should the other win their friendship was unstrained when Lehmeier's rival and friend led the girl to the altar. Lehmeier was best man and he wished them godspeed on their matrimonial voyage.

Lehmeier's friend and his wife emigrated to America. A year later Lehmeier came also. His friend had settled in New Jersey. Louis Lehmeier chose Manhattan. As the years passed Lehmeier acquired one parcel of property after another. He built tenements and apartment houses. He was known as a man who always had money.

On late summer afternoons of recent years Lehmeier would sit in the garden of the home where lived the daughter of the woman he had loved in his youth. Elizabeth Rosalie, the granddaughter of her whose image was graven on his heart, would knit in the shadow of the vines. Lehmeier, with a shawl thrown around his shoulders, turned his thoughts to the Mainz of yesteryear and murmured: "My dear, I wish you could have seen your grandmother in her youth. Ah! but she was one of God's noblewomen."

Resourceful Girl Who "Parked" Her Sleeves

I am not going to reveal her identity more than to say that her name is Margaret, and she lives in Hamburg, but I will say that on a certain occasion this young woman showed herself possessed of resourcefulness. When she dressed for that reception or whatever it was, she did not know that it was going to be a formal affair, so she put on a dress or a gown or a frock or—gee, being a man is something awful when it comes to writing about women's clothes. Guess I better call it a dress. She put on a dress with long sleeves.

When she got to the place where the reception or whatever it was, was going on, she discovered that every other woman there had on a sleeveless gown. I guess gown is right. But did she let that spoil the occasion for her? Not this young woman. Not by a long shot. She slipped upstairs, slipped into a room, slipped off her dress, ripped out its sleeves, slipped the "gown" on again and slipped downstairs in less time than it takes to tell it.

Approaching her hostess she said: "Tell me, please, where I can park these sleeves."—Buffalo News.

Her Servant Borrowed the Guests' Napkins

"Personal property meant very little to Persian servants. On one occasion a certain charge d'affaires, dining with some English residents, noticed his hostess, who was sitting next to him, turn as red as fire.

"Whatever will you think of us?" said she, pointing to the initials on her napkin, which were those of her guest.

Her servant, it appeared, being of opinion that their mistress' linen was not sufficiently good for such a distinguished visitor, had sent to the latter's butler for a supply of the legation napkins, which they placed on the table as a matter of course.—Unconventional Memoirs, by Ralph Nevill.

Changing the Flavors and Odors of Milk

Undesirable flavors and odors in milk produced by feeding green alfalfa, green corn or turnips may be prevented by giving these feeds at the proper time or they may be reduced by thorough aeration of the milk, according to tests made by the United States Department of Agriculture.

It is shown that green alfalfa produces much more pronounced "off" flavors and odors than does green corn. Even when 25 pounds of green corn is fed one hour before milking the milk is only slightly tainted; if fed after milking nothing undesirable is noticeable. Feeding 30 pounds of green alfalfa one hour before milking, or as little as 15 pounds, produced objectionable flavors and odors.

In some regions root crops are used to supply succulence in the fall and winter, and among these crops turnips are one of the most commonly given. They have long been suspected of being responsible for off flavors and odors in milk. Feeding 15 pounds of turnips an hour before milking produced taints, and increasing the quantity fed to 30 pounds greatly intensified them. By feeding even the maximum quantity just before milking practically all the objectionable flavors and odors were avoided. As in the case of alfalfa, slight off flavors and odors were removed and strong ones reduced by aeration. The taints were more noticeable in the cream than in the milk.

Greenland Journalism Is Rather Primitive

According to the captain of a British bark, journalism in Greenland is in rather a primitive stage. The captain makes frequent voyages to Greenland and is held to be an authority on conditions in that country. The one newspaper in Greenland is a Dane of the name of Moeller, who conducts the only newspaper and enjoys the singular distinction of printing the paper for the natives and teaching them to read it.

Mr. Moeller is not only the editor and proprietor, but he is the reporter, printer, distributor and business manager, and every two weeks he performs a long journey on skates to dispose of his journal. Originally it contained only a few crude illustrations, but gradually other matter was introduced, until now it contains articles on affairs of the day. This man actually taught his subscribers to read his paper, first introducing words, then sentences, and now articles on the topics of the time.

Red Man Prefers Red Color.

The red man's fondness for gaudy color schemes has long been known, but it has remained for Dr. T. R. Garth of the University of Denver to scientifically ascertain the color preferences of the Indians in the Southwest. Full-blooded Indians were found to prefer red to all other colors, then blue, violet, yellow and white in the listed order. White men, living in the same social and educational environment, preferred blue, then green, and then red.

The education of the red man has little apparent influence upon his favorite colors. The squaws and the braves agreed more closely in their selection of colors than the whites and the Indians did. The full-blooded Indians were found to be very emphatic in their color preferences, much more so than the mixed bloods and the whites.

Not What He Needed

A new baby had arrived in a certain household, and it was expected that the little brother would give it a hearty welcome.

Instead, he was very annoyed when the news was announced, and, going into his mother's room, remarked with a frown, "That is all right, spending money on a baby when we've been wanting a wireless aerial so long."

Flashlights Replacing Lanterns in South China

Electric flashlights, batteries and bulbs are finding an increasing demand in the markets of South China, Hongkong alone buying about 30,000 gold dollars worth annually. About 40 per cent of this trade has been secured by the United States, Japanese exporters taking most of the balance. There are no flashlights or parts manufactured in the Hongkong district.

Most of the flashlights sold are for use on board vessels. A large number, however, are being purchased by the Chinese themselves, especially in the country districts. The electric flashlight is beginning to replace the old-fashioned lantern in South China.

Tiberius' Gallies

From beneath a layer of 19 feet of mud and rubbish, the conglomerate of 10 centuries, the floating palace of Emperor Tiberius will be brought to the surface.

The floating palace consisted of two galleys, which are certain to contain marvels of ancient art, according to the archeologists engaged by the municipality of Rome, says the Detroit News.

The palace lies at the bottom of Lake Neul, near the Eternal City. Private individuals are taking charge of the expenses in order to save the government money.

Britain's Taxable Wealth

Taxation since the war has changed the distribution of individual holdings that make up Great Britain's taxable wealth. Landowners now possess more bonds or cash than previously, and fewer ancestral acres. The proportion of stocks and bonds in the largest estates is about twice as great as that in the smaller estates subject to inheritance tax. Every individual, rich or otherwise, seeks to adjust his holdings in such a way as to make the tax burden least oppressive.

Paradise Nuts

Paradise nuts are sweet and oily and resemble the brazil nut. The nuts are formed inside a large urn-shaped shell, commonly known as a "monkey pot," similar in construction to that enclosing brazil nuts, but much larger. When a mature pod falls to the ground the natural gas within blows off the neatly-fitting lid of the urn, scattering the nuts, and at the same time producing a characteristic report which brings all the neighboring monkeys rushing to the feast.

Where Bears Live

The black bear is the best-known member of this family in North America. Three of his grand-uncles live in northern latitudes, the white polar bear amongst the ice on the Arctic ocean, the grizzly in the remote fastnesses of the Rockies, and the Kodiak that giant amongst wild animals, on the islands adjacent to the coast of Alaska. These three species are very much larger than their dusky relative, but are not nearly so harmless and attractive.—Nature Magazine.

Ford THE UNIVERSAL CAR
Forecasting A Tremendous Spring Demand
739,626
 more Ford cars and trucks were produced last year than the previous year, an increase of over 50 per cent.
 In spite of this tremendous increase in production, it was impossible to meet delivery requirements during the spring and summer months when orders for 350,000 Ford Cars and Trucks could not be filled.
 This year winter buying for immediate delivery has been more active than ever before—and in addition 200,000 orders have already been booked through the Ford Weekly Purchase Plan for spring delivery.
 These facts clearly indicate that the demand during this spring and summer will be far greater than ever, and that orders should be placed immediately with Ford Dealers as a means of protection against delay in securing your Ford Car or Truck or Fordson Tractor.
