

A Squeezed Dollar

It pays to save a dollar at any time, but this is especially true now, when money is hard to get and the purchasing power is increasing.

The inflation is pretty well squeezed out of the dollar you handle today. It is not the same cheap, easily-earned, "come easy, go easy" dollar of the period of war inflation. It will probably become more valuable instead of cheaper. Now is the time to save.

RECLAMATION BILL PROVISIONS

with the provisions of this subsection or for the deferment of such construction charges for a period of three years from the approval of this section, or both.

Subsec. G. That whenever two-thirds of the irrigable area of any project, or division of a project, shall be covered by water right contracts between the water users and the United States, said project shall be required, as a condition precedent to receiving the benefits of this section to take over, through a legally organized water users' association or irrigation district, the care, operation and maintenance of all or any part of the project works, subject to such rules and regulations as the Secretary may prescribe, and thereafter the United States, in its relation to such project, shall deal with a water users' association or irrigation district, the care, operation and maintenance of a project, the operation and maintenance charges for the year then current shall be covered into construction account to be repaid as part of the construction repayments.

Subsec. H. That the penalty of 1 per centum per month against delinquent accounts provided in section 3 and section 6 of the Act of August 13, 1914 (Thirty-eight Statutes, page 686), is hereby reduced to one half of one per centum per month as to all installments which may hereafter become due.

Subsec. I. That whenever the water users take over the care, operation, and maintenance of a project or a division of a project the total accumulated net profits, as determined by the Secretary, derived from the operation of project power plants, leasing of project grazing and farm lands, and the sale or use of own sites shall be credited to the construction charge of the project, or a division thereof, and thereafter the net profits from such sources may be used by the water users to be credited annually, first, on account of project construction charge, second on account project operation and maintenance charge, and third, as the water users may direct. No distribution to individual water users shall be made out of any such profits before all obligations to the government shall have been fully paid.

Subsec. J. That all moneys or profits as determined by the Secretary heretofore or hereafter derived from the sale or rental of surplus water under the Warren Act of February 21, 1911 (Thirty-sixth Statutes, page 925), or from the connection of a new project with an existing project shall be credited to the project or division of the project to which the construction cost has been charged.

Subsec. K. That on each existing project where, in the opinion of the Secretary, it appears that on account of lack of fertility in the soil, an inadequate water supply, or other physical causes, settlers are unable to pay construction costs, or wherever it appears that the cost of any reclamation project by reason of error or mistake or for any cause has been apportioned or charged upon a smaller area of land than the total area of land under said project, the Secretary is authorized to undertake a comprehensive and detailed survey to ascertain all pertinent facts, and report in each case the result of such survey to the Congress with his recommendations: Provided, That the cost and expense of each such survey shall be charged to the appropriation for the project on account of which the same is made, but shall not be charged as a part of the construction and operation and maintenance cost payable by the water users under the project.

Subsec. L. That in any adjustment of water charges as provided in this section all due and unpaid charges to the United States, both on account of construction and on account of operation and maintenance and including interest and penalties, shall be added in each case to the total obligation of the water user, and the new total thus established shall then be the construction charge against the land in question.

Subsec. M. That every entryman or assignee on a project farm unit not yet patented which unit shall be found by the Secretary to be insufficient to support a family and pay water charges shall have the right upon application to exchange his entry for another farm unit of unentered public land on the same or another project located in the same state, in which event all installments of construction charges theretofore paid on account of the relinquished farm unit shall be credited on account of the new farm unit taken in exchange: Provided That where two entrymen apply for the same farm unit under the exchange provision of this subsection, only 1 of whom is an ex-service man, as defined by the joint resolution of January 21, 1922 (Forty-second Statutes, page 358), the ex-service man shall have a preference in making such exchange.

Subsec. N. That all contracts providing for new projects and new divisions of projects shall require that all operation and maintenance charge shall be payable in advance. In each case where the care, operation, and maintenance of a project or division of a project are transferred to the water users the contract shall require the payment of operation and maintenance charges in advance. That whenever an adjustment of water charges is made under this section the adjustment contract shall provide that thereafter all operation and maintenance charges shall be payable in advance.

Subsec. O. That the cost and expense after June 30, 1925, of the main office at Washington, District of Columbia, of the Bureau of Reclamation in the Department of the Interior, and the cost and expense of general investigations heretofore and hereafter authorized by the Secretary, shall be charged to the general reclamation fund and shall not be charged as a part of the construction or operation and maintenance cost payable by the water users under the projects.

Subsec. P. That where, in the opinion of the Secretary, a right of way or easement of any kind over public land is required in connection with a project the Secretary may reserve the same to the United States by filing in the General Land Office and in the appropriate local office copies of an instrument giving a description of the right of way or easement and notice that the same is reserved to the United States for Federal irrigation purposes under this section, in which event entry therefor shall be subject to the right of way or easement so described in such instrument; and reference to each such instrument shall be made in the appropriate tract books and also in the patent.

Subsec. Q. That where real property or any interest therein heretofore has been, or hereafter shall be, donated and conveyed to the United States for use in connection with a project, and the Secretary decide not to utilize the donation, he is authorized without charge to reconvey such property or any part thereof to the donating grantor, or to the heirs, successors, or assigns of such grantor.

Subsec. R. That there is hereby authorized to be appropriated from the General Treasury, the sum of $100,000 for investigations to be made by the Secretary through the Bureau of Reclamation to obtain the necessary information to determine how arid and semiarid, swamp, and outover timberlands may best be developed.

Sec. (59) 6 That this Act hereafter may be referred to as the "Second Deficiency Act, Fiscal Year 1924."

Passed the House of Representatives June 4, 1924.

Passed the Senate with amendments June 5, 1924.

Claims to Have Seen Owls Flying in Flock

It is common knowledge that tawny, barn, and long-eared owls have increased considerably in numbers in East Lothian in recent years, and there is no doubt that they are today far more numerous than most people have any idea.

Motoring recently after the fall of darkness along a byroad between Macmerry and Penciltand, writes H. M. B. in the Edinburgh Scotsman, I drew the attention of my passenger to an owl flying overhead, and at the same time I slackened speed so that we might obtain a better view of the bird. We then noticed a second owl, and almost immediately a third and a fourth, flying over the field on our right; indeed, it seemed that there was a whole flock of them, as we counted as many as six clearly visible against the sky at the same time. At first I thought that they must be peewits, which often besport themselves thus after darkness, but as the birds crossed the rays of the head lamps there was no doubting that they were owls—tawny or barn, I think the latter. Certainly they were not long-eared owls.

Long-eared owls are, to some extent, gregarious and sociable by disposition—that is, a number of them may roost together irrespective of food or mating attractions. Such meetings are purely social, and in the case of the long-eared owl they may occur at any season, day or night; but I have never heard of a purely social gathering of brown or barn owls.
