

Watch The Dimes

Your money eventually gets to the Bank anyway. Why not put it there yourself? Isn't that worth thinking about?

The pennies, the dimes and the quarters you scatter around are all carefully collected by somebody, and safely deposited. Why not try the plan of making a small deposit regularly at our bank? You profit by the money you earn if you save it. Others profit if you spend it.

Ruskin's Voice About His Only Attraction

I never met anyone in my life whose personal appearance disappointed me more than Ruskin's, writes Frank Harris in American Mercury. Until I saw him I had always believed that a man of great ability showed his genius in some feature or other, but I could find no hint in Ruskin's face or figure that suggested abnormal talent.

His appearance was not even prepossessing. He looked shriveled up and shrunken, though he was perhaps five feet seven in height; he was slight to frailty and stooped; in spite of a large nose, his face was too small, bony, thin and very wrinkled; the gray hair that must once have been reddish was carefully brushed flat; the beard and whiskers were gray, too, and straggling thin; the eyes were bright, grayish-blue in color, quick-glancing now, now meditative under the thick outjutting brows; the high aquiline nose was matched by a somewhat receding chin; nothing in his face or figure was impressive or arresting; his clothes even were loose and ill-fitting; his manner shy, self-conscious, unassuming; I was disappointed to doubt his ability.

But as soon as he got excited in speaking I noticed his voice, a thin high tenor irresistibly pathetic; it often wailed and sometimes cursed, but was always intense. The soul of the man was in that singular, musical voice with its high rhetoric and impassioned moral appeal.

Cows Peacefully Graze Where Once War Ruled

Southern Denmark has many things to show to the stranger within her gates, and in the south of Seeland—best known of the three islands, ferry-bridged, which, together with the restituted portion of Schleswig-Holstein, make up the modern kingdom of Denmark—one may visit a model Danish dairy farm which has its being in a sixteenth century fortified farmhouse, says the Christian Science Monitor.

At the quaint old farm of Holmegaard a stone taken from the ancient archway gives the date of the building as 1571, and, though the whitewash which covers the masonry hides its rugged outlines in part, still where the water of the moat laps the foundations one can still see the massive forms of the old stones.

There are many of these old fortified farms in Funen and Seeland, now happily requiring no moat to guard them against aggressions, but in olden days they were little forts in themselves, sheltering in troublous times the whole neighborhood and storing provisions enough for a siege in their capacious granaries. The out-buildings of Holmegaard are immense, built around a great quadrangle paved with cobblestones.

Making Writers Efficient

A "scheme of work" for writing short stories is given by Max Bontier in "Fiction Writers on Fiction Writing," the short story analysis compiled by Arthur Sullivan Hoffman, from answers to a questionnaire he sent more than 100 authors concerning their creative methods. The scheme is:

1. Be sure an idea is worth developing from a "human interest" standpoint.
2. Develop the climax first.
3. Start off the characters like a bunch of obstacle racers and bring them to the climax as quickly, but as logically, as possible.
4. Write tersely at first, expanding where advisable—rather than write voluminously and chop out.

"Killjoys" of Various Kinds, but All Pests

Are you a "killjoy"? Your negative is indignant and emphatic. Good! But wait a minute.

The activities of the ordinary killjoy we know. The fraternity is out to spoil in the mess all innocent fun and gaiety. But there are other killjoys. These are not organized; they don't seek to spoil the fun of crowds. Their line is to take the joy out of individuals, one at a time. And yet they do it without malice or deliberate intent. But the effect is exactly the same.

Some parents are killjoys, observes London Answers. They are too particular with their children, too careful, too much concerned. A childish game in which angels might join is brought to a sudden halt. "Bobby, you mustn't do that!" "Elsie, little girls should not tear about as though they were boys. Sit down quietly at once."

The joy is killed. Uncle gives Tommy a shilling, and Tommy, with great joy, pictures what he will buy. But a killjoy parent insists that the money should be put in the savings box.

Little Mona, with great joy, lays the table for tea. Mother will be so surprised! But mother has a rebuke. "Never do that again, Mona! If you had broken a cup I should have been very upset!"

Today, without knowing or meaning it, you may have acted as such a killjoy. Have you snubbed anyone? Have you turned against the enthusiasm of one of the young and joyous your older, perhaps cynical, wisdom? Have you laughed in superior fashion at some eager idea?

Then you are a killjoy. Anything which darkens the sun of youth or causes shining, eager eyes to cloud or ends innocent happiness, kills joy, and those who do the darkening, the clouding, or the like, are killers.

Sister of African King Longs for Fine Clothing

Evidence that the sister of a king, even though she be in "darkest" Africa, sometimes hankers for finery, is found in a letter written by the reigning monarch to the agent of a trading post at Habatini, says a dispatch from Olympia, Wash.

Several of the royal communications were received by Archibald C. Tweedie of the state department of labor and industries from his brother, George Tweedie, who is stationed at the trading post. One of the letters is as follows:

Mr. R. C. Dorkin, Habatini: Please allow my sister, Miwa, to have 22 ladies' dresses done give her more with kindest regards, Yours faithfully, I Mawaker Sigan, King of Pondoland.

The letter is written in English in a plain and legible hand: The trading post at Habatini is about 150 miles inland and Tweedie and Dorkin are said to be the only white men in a radius of 100 miles.

Problem!

Sunday afternoon—and the Bible class was over. The teacher was standing by the door saying good-by to all the bright little darlings who had listened so attentively to her discourse.

"Good-by, Susie!" she said, with a sweet smile to one small child.

"Good-by, teacher," came the shrill reply, and then she added with pride: "It's my birthday tomorrow!"

"Why," returned the teacher, "it's mine, too!"

The little girl's face was clouded with perplexity as she answered: "How did you get so much bigger'n me?"

Western Mustangs

The ponies of the western states, the mustangs, are mostly southwestern breeds, apparently Moorish in origin, coming to this country by way of Mexico and having been brought over originally by the Spaniards. To these ponies the term "bronco" is often applied. Many of the small horses at the present time have been crossed more or less with the American trotter, the thoroughbred, or the Arabian horses. These still are known as "broncos," although in recent years they have been more commonly termed cow ponies and are used exclusively in herding.

Why He Looked Tired

The head of a large business house noticed that one of his clerks had been looking off color for some months, and, one morning, when he was looking rather paler than usual, he tackled him on the subject.

"You look tired this morning, Jones," he said kindly. "Don't you sleep well?" "No, sir," was the reply. "The fellow I share a room with and I suffer from alternate insomnia! What is that?" "Whoever gets to sleep first keeps the other awake all night!"
