FARM REMINDERS

Winged forms of the currant aphids begin to appear in the fall in Oregon and fly from bush to bush. The sexed forms evolve and the males lay eggs on the bark where some remain all winter. Aphids hatch from these eggs in the spring as "stem mothers," capable of giving birth to young. Lime sulfur 1 to 20 plus nicotine sulfate 1 to 800 is the standard spray for this pest recommended by the experiment station.

Hungarian vetch, because of its winter hardiness and resistance to over watering, is coming into favor in Oregon as a cover and green manure crop especially in orchards. It has not been winter killed on the experiment station farms or other farms reporting, even at a temperature of 10 degrees, when other vetches were severely damaged.

Proper pruning of the bearing grape vine removes about 90 per cent of the wood—a heavier pruning than is ordinarily given any other fruit. A mature vine making good growth is left the same number of buds it had the previous season in the O. A. C. experiment station plantings, while a weak vine is allowed a fewer number of buds.

Straight, even honey combs made up of worker cells are used in the O. A. C. station apiaries, to facilitate handling and increase the output of the colony. It is necessary to use full sheets of foundation in the frames to get this type of comb.

Preparing World War Motion Picture University of Oregon, Eugene, August 14.—"A history of the World War," a motion picture now in preparation by Alfred Powers, of the University Extension division, will be released in September. Mr. Powers is cutting the scenes most important historically from a dozen official war reviews, which he is re-arranging, re-titling and re-editing to form a six reel film, to be included in the university loan collection.

"This film will satisfy a specific demand on the part of the schools, American Legion folk, and other organizations interested in historical subjects," stated Mr. Powers.

The picture will show life among the men in the various forms of service during the war: famous battles, including Chateau Thierry, in which the American forces were active; leaders in the war, Wilson, Poincarre, Pershing and others; the machinery used in war; camouflage; and scenes which have historical significance.

The University film service now has a half million feet of film which is available in the loan collection. The pictures are educational, and include scenic, industrial, and historical material. The films are loaned, some free of charge and others for a small rental fee. They are especially popular with schools, churches and community organizations.

The Christian Science services are held in rooms next to the Auditorium every Sunday at 11 o'clock. Sunday school at 10:15. All are cordially invited to attend. Wednesday evening meeting first Wednesday each month.

A 1000 per cent Investment

That's the way to look at painting—as an investment, not an expense. Look around you at the houses going to rack and ruin. What is doing it? The weather. There is only one defense against weather and that is paint. But paint, like weather, is of many kinds. Beware of the fair weather paint. It does not protect, it only deceives. Buy a paint that has proved its staying power.
